Litvinoff's Bitter Attack on Mussolini Stuns Swiss Parley.

Eden, Delbos Push Protocol Through

Duce, Hitler Obviously Need No Protection, Russian Says.

By the Associated Press.

Geneva, Sept. 10.—Soviet Russia today warned the nine-power Mediterranean conference at Nyon failure of the gathering to halt submarine "piracy" might lead to an armed clash between Italy and Russia.

The announcement, made by Maxim Litvinoff, Soviet delegate and foreign commissar, exploded like a bombshell in the tense gathering.

The conference, acting swiftly in the face of the warning, agreed tonight on an international warship patrol to stamp out the mysterious Mediterranean attacks.

Italy, whom Russia accused of sinking Soviet merchantmen herself will be asked to join in putting down outlaw torpedoings under the agreement. She will be asked to police with her warships a zone in the sea while other navies patrol other zones to sink "pirate" submarines on sight.

Italy Expected to Refuse.

That Italy would reject the proposal was indicated, however, when Premier Mussolini's own newspaper, Popolo d'Italia, declared:

"Italian solidarity with the Franco-British proposals regarding the Mediterranean has been smashed by the recent Soviet diplomatic aggression."

It was the same reason that earlier had been given for Italy's and Germany's refusal to attend the conference at Nyon.

Meanwhile the reported sinking of a "pirate" submarine off the southern Spanish coast added fresh dangers to the Mediterranean crisis.

Spanish Loyalist warships off Pornat were reported to have dropped several depth bombs, apparently destroying a submarine that had been preying on ships in the region. Crews from the naval base at Cartagena began a search for wreckage in an attempt to identify the undersea craft.

Warns of Russian Action.

In his warning, Litvinoff did not mention Italy by name, but he left no doubt in the minds of the delegates on what nation he referred to when he shouted:

"Everyone knows the name of the state which is pursuing this policy—the name is on everyone's lips, even if it may not be pronounced in this hall."

Litvinoff declared Russia "must and will take its own measures" if attacks on its merchant vessels continue.

In the perturbed silence that followed his speech, the motion of Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden of Great Britain that the conference go into secret session to iron out technical details of a protocol submitted by Britain and France was adopted.

In this session an agreement in principle was reached for the international warship patrol.

Expect Accord Tonight.

British and French warships, under the plan, will survey the western Mediterranean while other

Italy to Strike Back if Russia Tries Mediterranean Reprisals

Nation Will Know How to Deal With 'Aggression,' Fascist Asserts; Holds Litvinoff Attempted to 'Torpedo' Piracy Conference.

By the Associated Press.

Rome, Sept. 10.—A high official of the Fascist regime indicated tonight Italy would strike back if Soviet Russia put into effect anti-Italian reprisals in the Mediterranean crisis.

Referring to the strong hint given at the Nyon conference by Soviet Foreign Commissar Maxim Litvinoff that Russia would act against Italy if submarine attacks in the Mediterranean do not cease, this official said:

"This would be an aggression with which we would know how to deal."

He declared, however, that Russian action in the "pirate" submarine crisis could not be accepted as reprisals "any more than the Russian accusations have been accepted." He referred to charges made by Moscow in two stiff notes that Italian submarines had sunk two Russian ships.

The Italian official said Litvinoff's "efforts to torpedo the Nyon conference" were foreseen. He added:

"Italy remains calm and will deal with any situation that may arise, secure in her desire for peace."

Reports circulated in Rome tonight—but could not be confirmed—that additional Italian volunteers had been dispatched to Spain to fight in the insurgent armies. A Fascist official said:

Typhoon Rages In South Japan; Tokyo in Path

By the United Press.

Tokyo (Saturday), Sept. 11.—The Weather Bureau announced today a typhoon was raging throughout the densely-populated island of Shikoku in south Japan.

Communications were severed. The storm was moving northeastward toward the crowded cities of Kobe, Osaka, Sakai, Wakayama—50 miles across Kii Channel—and Tokyo, 300 miles away.

The typhoon crossed the City of Okayama, doing heavy damage. Power plants were put out of commission. Officials prepared to move their offices to a place where there was no danger of floods.

The velocity of the storm was increasing.

Steamships delayed departure from Kobe because the typhoon was sweeping across the western inland sea. Other vessels hurried to port.

Tokyo felt the edge of strong winds spasmodically, and it was raining heavily.

Manila, Sept. 10 (AP).—Observers reported today a typhoon of great intensity was moving northeast 80 miles off Naha Island, east of Formosa. The typhoon was sweeping toward the East China Sea, and the observers said it may hit the China coast near Shanghai.

Co-ed at Stanford Relates Kidnaping; Slashed 20 Times

Palo Alto, Calif., Sept. 10 (AP).—Aroused police and university authorities investigated today the story of a bruised 17-year-old Stanford co-ed that she had been kidnaped and attacked near the campus.

Exhibiting 20 slight cuts on her right cheek, several scratches on her body, and tattered clothing, the girl said she escaped after her assailant slashed her with scissors.

Hull Cautions U. S. Shipping Of China Peril

Blockade Attitude Hints Protection May Be Denied Vessels.

By Franklyn Waltman.

In an unusual "announcement," the State Department last night warned American shipping the Sino-Japanese conflict had resulted "in the creation of a danger zone along the coast of China."

American ships were told this zone made it "dangerous to operate in the adjacent waters." The announcement was broadcast to American mariners over the Seven Seas and in American ports through the Navy Hydrographic Office.

Vessels of the United States were not forbidden to enter Chinese waters, nor was it suggested they stay away. The State Department's announcement consisted solely of information regarding the danger, along with a summary of communications received from both Japanese and Chinese authorities.

Yet the notice was interpreted in some quarters as a preliminary step on the part of this Government toward disavowing responsibility for the safety of American vessels venturing into Chinese waters, such as the steamship Wichita, now en route to China with 19 Bellanca airplanes aboard.

Follows Pirate Warning.

The State Department's announcement was the second action taken this week by American authorities in warning this country's shipping of danger zones. The first was a "caution" notice sent out by the Navy Hydrographic Office warning of attacks on ships in the Mediterranean Sea by unidentified airplanes, surface vessels and submarines.

The text of the announcement issued last night by the State Department was as follows:

"The conflict in the Far East has resulted in the creation of a danger zone along the coast of China which makes it dangerous for American merchant vessels to operate in the adjacent waters.

"The Japanese authorities have announced a blockade of the entire coast from Chinwangtao to Pakhoi

Cholera Hits Japan Lines At Shanghai

Epidemic Strikes Near Americans; Defenders Shell Warships.

Copyright, 1937, by the United Press.

Shanghai (Saturday), Sept. 11.—Pestilence today came to the aid of more than 140,000 Chinese soldiers battering at the Japanese army and its covering warships in this war-devastated city in the Yangtze River delta.

It struck hardest at the Japanese army, clinging precariously to footholds on the banks of the Whangpoo and Yangtze rivers, and at the International Settlement, the French Concession and adjacent areas.

More than 5,000 Americans, including U. S. naval forces, were endangered and it was believed cholera might hasten the evacuation of many who have braved a month of aerial bombings and shell explosions to stick to their homes and jobs.

The Shanghai municipal council declared cholera had reached epidemic proportions and revealed 103 cases were under treatment in isolation hospitals in the Settlement and the Concession.

Low Death Rate.

Before the present outbreak there had been no cases in these areas in four years.

The mortality rate so far has been low—only 5 per cent.

No foreigners have been stricken. All the cases were among Chinese refugees.

The municipal announcement followed a statement by a Japanese military spokesman, who revealed 20 Japanese soldiers had died of cholera in the Paoshan area, just northwest of the Settlement, and that 80 more were dying.

The Japanese said Chinese had spread cholera germs before they were driven from the walled town this week after a bitter siege.

Chinese denied the charge but said there was no cholera among their attacking armies, which have stopped Japan's major offensive on this front and now are attacking scores of Japanese warships in the Whangpoo and off its mouth in the Yangtze.

Doctors, Supplies Lacking.

General health conditions in the whole Shanghai area have grown steadily worse since the Sino-Japanese war spread here. Physicians saw a possibility of almost unparalleled epidemics.

There is a shortage of doctors and all hospitals are jammed with military and civilian casualties, which now have reached a total of more than 25,000.

Dr. F. C. Yen, superintendent of Red Cross hospitals, said his stocks of medical supplies, gauze and bandages were extremely low and that 5,000 wounded Chinese soldiers in regular and makeshift hospitals in the Settlement were not receiving adequate treatment.

Other developments during the last 24 hours included:

1. Bitter fighting continued around Shanghai, and the Chinese still appeared to have the upper hand. They were preventing some of the efforts of the Japanese to land reinforcements from transports off Woosung.

Attack South of Peiping.

2. Japanese marched thousands of troops southwest from Peiping, indicating they may be launching a general offensive against some 200,000 Chinese soldiers who have been entrenched around Paoting-fu

Autoist Escapes One Officer, but Gets Two Fines

One thing led to another for Lyman M. Strong, 1722 Willard street northwest, and he found himself in Traffic Court yesterday charged with two offenses of speeding.

Strong was driving along Little Falls road when Policeman R. M. Kirby attempted to overtake him. But, according to Kirby, Strong outdistanced him. A few moments later, on Massachusetts avenue, Policeman W. N. Cook spotted the speeding car.

This time Strong didn't get away. He was arrested and Cook said he was unable to produce a permit. Because Policeman Kirby failed to overtake him, it was impossible to impose two speed charges against Strong.

But a check of his traffic record showed another speeding offense in July, so Strong was arraigned before Judge Edward M. Curran and fined $55.

Tax Increase Fought Here By Business

Hazen's Proposal to Borrow $20,000,000 Also Frowned On.

By James D. Secrest.

Washington businessmen, supported by a scattering of citizens' associations, yesterday informed the District Commissioners that they are opposed to any increase in municipal taxes, regardless of the need for civic improvements.

They also opposed a suggestion of Commissioner Melvin C. Hazen that the District float a $20,000,000 bond issue or borrow funds from the United States Treasury to finance a municipal center, new schools and other projects.

The Washington Board of Trade and the Merchants and Manufacturers Association warned the District heads that they would fight any increase in the city budget above the $46,000,000 voted for this year. The proposed budget for next year is $68,000,000.

Clayton Opposes Raise.

"Regardless of the demand for civic improvements," Clayton said, "the istrict should plan to spend no more money during the next fiscal year than it anticipates revenue to finance."

He explained that estimates might even be held down to an estimate of revenue that does not include the business privilege tax which is due to expire June 30, 1938.

After hearing more civic spokesmen today, the District heads will confer with department chiefs Monday and Tuesday.

The District's 1939 budget probably will be submitted to the Budget Bureau by the end of next week.

Edward F. Colladay, president of the Board of Trade, stated $46,000,000 ought to be the "top figure" for next year's budget and charged that department heads had "run wild" in submitting estimates that in some cases more than doubled present appropriations.

Hart Criticizes Act.

He pointed out that in the last four years the District's appropriations had risen by $10,500,000.

Ringgold Hart, speaking for the Merchants and Manufacturers Association, said that his group would be opposed to even $1 increase in municipal taxes.

Labeling the new revenue act as "a hodge-podge," Hart warned the District heads that any further increase in taxes would drive merchants out of the city. A similar warning was voiced by Colladay.

Francis G. Addison, first vice president of the Board of Trade, presented a more detailed account of the board's attitude.

Pointing out that the recent $9,000,000 tax bill, together with the water rent increase, raised local taxes 30 per cent, Addison criticized estimates of the Board of Education, the Welfare Board, the Playground Department and the Health Department.

"About $19,000,000 has been requested by the school board, which is 50 per cent over the 1938 ap-

Van Duzer Makes New Plea to Halt Auto Tag 'Racket'

Citing 25 recent arrests for falsely obtaining drivers' permits, Traffic Director William A. Van Duzer yesterday renewed his plea for a regulation requiring "thumb-nail" photographs on every license.

Within the past few months, he said, a new "racket" has appeared at the Department of Vehicles and Traffic. Persons unable to obtain permits through routine channels are hiring "professionals" to take examinations—written and driving.

The only description of a driving permit applicant now required, said Van Duzer, is the color of the applicant's hair, eyes and age. This, he said, is not enough to prevent "racketeers" from obtaining licenses by misrepresentation.

Seven arrests have been made thus far this month. Unsuccessful applicants pay as much as $8 to obtain a $3 permit, investigators reported.

"We feel this racket will be broken up if a system of photographs for each permit issued is adopted," said Van Duzer.

The District Commissioners have authority to draft such a regulation, he said.

U. S. Quells Mutineers With Threat of Irons At Uruguayan Docks

C.I.O.-A.F.L. Clash on Election Brings Maritime Strike Threat

Lewis Union Victory Indicated in Demand for Immediate Election by Sailors to Determine Collective Bargaining Agency.

A direct clash between the Committee for Industrial Organization and the American Federation of Labor, in a hearing before the National Labor Relations Board yesterday, brough a threat of a maritime strike and what were interpreted as indications the C. I. O. had won its demand for an immediate election among thousands of seamen employed by more than 70 steamship lines. A ruling is expected today.

The International Seamen's Union, affiliated with the A. F. of L., had sought a delay in the elections, which it originally had requested in June, to determine the collective bargaining agency desired by a majority of the workers voting. The National Maritime Union, C. I. O. affiliate, vigorously opposed any delay, contending that chaos in the labor relations in the shipping industry called for quick settlement of the representation dispute.

Following the hearing, Edwin S. Smith, board member, declared he was "seriously impressed by the need for speed in the elections," and said a decision on the request for postponement would be expedited. However, early hopes that a ruling might be forthcoming last night were not realized.

Charlton Ogburn, counsel for the I. S. U., told the board that union desired a postponement while it was reorganizing under a different name. He predicted the organization would be ready for the ballot-

Maritime Board Sends Stern Order

Seamen Warned Walkout 'Against Government' Is Intolerable.

By William V. Nessly.

The United States Maritime Commission, acting swiftly and drastically, last night quelled a mutiny aboard the Government-owned steamship Algic at Montevideo, Uruguay.

Notified by the ship's captain that the seamen had refused to unload or load the vessel or even get up steam in the boilers, in sympathy with a strike of longshoremen at Montevideo, the commission cabled the captain to warn the men that if they persisted in their refusal to obey orders they would be put in irons and returned to this country for prosecution "to the full extent of the law."

A few hours later the United Press reported from Montevideo that the strike had been called off.

U. S. Labor Protests.

Labor circles in this country, meanwhile, emphatically protested against the commission's action, calling it "high-handed" and unjustified by the nature of the crew's action, which they maintained was merely a strike.

A determined fight by labor unions on the policy of the commission was indicated.

Terming the action of the crew "unlawful" and "a strike against the Government," the commission declared it will not be tolerated.

The Algic, a cargo vessel with a crew of 37 officers and men, sailed from Baltimore July 9 for Montevideo, Rosario, Argentina, and Buenos Aires, Argentina. It had a general cargo. Its home port is Philadelphia.

Refuse to Obey.

The commission issued the following statement last night:

"The United States Maritime Commission was advised today by Joseph Gainard, captain of the S. S. Algic, and by the United States Vice Consul at Montevideo, Uruguay, that the crew of the Algic had refused to obey orders or perform customary duties in sympathy with a strike of Uruguayan longshoremen which was preventing the sailing of the vessel.

"The S. S. Algic is owned by the United States Government and its officers and crew are paid from Government funds. The Maritime Commission takes the position that the action of the crew is unlawful. It also takes the position in this particular case that such act constitutes a strike against the Government. Neither situation can be tolerated.

May Replace Seamen.

"'Instruct crew to proceed with your lawful orders. If they still refuse warn crew that all still refusing to perform duty will be placed in irons and prosecuted to full extent of law on return to United States. If they still refuse, place ringleaders in irons. If other crew members still refuse duty, have them removed from ship and replace them with American, if available, and if not, foreign seamen. In case you experience any difficulty, request assistance local authorities.

Appellate Court Post Shunned By O'Donoghue

Justice Daniel W. O'Donoghue yesterday declined to be a candidate for the vacancy created on the United States Court of Appeals by the resignation last week of Chief Justice George E. Martin.

Justice O'Donoghue in his chambers in the District Court asserted he could not approve the practice of promoting Federal judges from lower to higher benches, "because an ambitious judge can hardly render impartial justice."

He said in view of the fact the Government is a litigant in many cases now before the Federal courts, that an ambitious judge might not "escape being influenced consciously or unconsciously" in "a hope for promotion."

Prefers Trial Work.

Removal of the name of Justice O'Donoghue leaves the District with small chance to obtain a representative on the appellate bench.

Justice O'Donoghue said he preferred trial court work to the drier work entailed in the appellate court work. He said that he preferred to deal with litigants, their lawyers and witnesses rather than with the printed records and briefs of the appellate court. It was his opinion that trial court work afforded him more opportunity to do real justice "with all deference, however, to the high duty performed by the appellate court in the administration of justice."

Moreover, he said, he accepted the position he now holds as an associate justice of the District Court of the United States for the District for life with the understanding the Government would pay him a fixed salary in that period. "The Government," he said, "has lived up to its side of the understanding," and Justice O'Donoghue said he intended to do likewise.

Another Vacancy Likely.

Meanwhile, lawyers were speculating on the possibility of still another vacancy in the Court of Appeals bench next month when Justice Charles H. Robb becomes eligible for retirement.

Market Break Brings Leaders Down $1 to $6

Break Is Widest Since 1933; Mediterranean Scare Discounted.

By the Associated Press.

New York, Sept. 10.—In the second widest break since 1933, the stock market sold off in volume today, carrying leaders down $1 to $6 a share.

Brokers, studying the situation after the close, attributed the widespread slump to a combination of factors.

The Mediterranean war scare appeared to have only slight effect upon sentiment, Wall Street having decided that apprehension in this regard had been exaggerated. Foreign selling did not appear in volume, brokers asserted.

"Thinness" Marked.

"Thinness" in the market was a potent element in the decline, the spread between bid and asked prices at times running to several dollars a share. Necessitous selling, caused by exhaustion of margins, forced many blocks of stock to trading posts.

A total of 950 issues, notable in recent history, was traded during the day. Of these, 823 finished lower, 85 were unchanged and only 42 registered gains. The Associated Press composite average of 60 stocks dropped $3.40 to $57.80, the lowest since April 29, 1936. A total of 452 issues reached new lows for 1937 or longer.

Industrials Suffer Most.

Industrial stocks suffered most. The average for 30 industrials sang $4.70 to $83.30, also a new low since 1936. Rail and utility shares were less affected, 15 carriers dropping $2.60 to $29.30, and 15 utilities falling $1.40 to $38.10. Transactions totaled 2,322,220 shares, the heaviest since last April 28.

Bonds followed the stock market pattern, although losses of $1 to $5 per $100 face value among corporate loans were of lesser extent in proportion. United States Government obligations were the exception, remaining around yesterday's closing levels or gaining minor fractions.

Cotton went below 9 cents a pound for the first time since 1933 in continuation of a long decline caused by high crop estimates. Grains also were lower.

Nazi Nordics Want Lindbergh, Not LaGuardia, in White House

Berlin, Sept. 10 (U.P.).—Americans will have to choose between Mayor Fiorello LaGuardia of New York and Col. Charles A. Lindbergh as their next President, the labor service organ, Der Arbeitsmann, said tonight.

Neither the Republicans nor the Democrats have an outstanding candidate for 1940, according to Der Arbeitsmann, the front page of which was adorned with five portraits of LaGuardia with a superimposed Star of Judah, and one picture of Col. Lindbergh in flier's garb.

"One need not be a prophet," Der Arbeitsmann says, "to see that this problem must arise at the next Presidential elections."

LaGuardia, the organ claimed, is the candidate of labor, Jews, Wall Street and liberal citizens, adding "and yet there is a man whose name alone is sufficient to defeat ten LaGuardias—Col. Charles Lindbergh."

The choice will not be difficult, however, Der Arbeitsmann continued, as the people will be guided "by the voice of the blood of essentially Germanic Americans so neither Wall Street's money nor Jewish tricks" will help LaGuardia.

Merrill Violates Airport Rule, Takes Off From Short Runway

The new airline regulations restricting transport planes to the use of the long runway at Washington Airport were violated yesterday for the first time by Henry T. (Dick) Merrill, who took off on the short cross-runway in a 14-passenger Douglas DC-2 plane.

Airport officials said yesterday Merrill had asked if the short runway was safe for the take-off. Samuel J. Solomon, airport manager, said he told the traffic direction tower to tell Merrill that it was safe to use the runway.

"The regulations which went into effect Monday," Solomon said, "don't apply to the airport. They are directed at the airlines, over which the Department of Commerce has control. When Merrill asked the airport control tower if traffic and wind conditions were such as to permit use of the short runway, we told him that it would be safe to do so."

Officials in the office of Fred D. Fagg, director of the Bureau of Air, said yesterday "it is highly possible" that Merrill did not know the new regulations for the use of the airport had become effective. They pointed out that the announcements of the new rules had been sent out Saturday, and declared that Merrill might not yet have been informed of them. "He's not the type to act in direct violation of Commerce Department regulations," they said.

Drought Cut 100,000,000 Bushels Off Corn Crop Outlook, U. S. Report Says

Loss Is 4 Pct.; Other Yields Appear Normal

Official Estimates Provide No Clew to Likelihood of Extra Session.

By the Associated Press.

The Federal Crop Reporting Board yesterday cut its estimate of this year's corn crop by more than 100,000,000 bushels, about 4 per cent. The slash was attributed to drought in parts of the Corn Belt and the Great Plains.

Production forecasts on wheat, barley, flax and late hay crops also were lowered, but these declines from the board's August figures were called relatively unimportant.

Barring widespread early frosts or other adverse weather, the board said prospects are favorable "for normal to ample domestic supplies of practically all crops."

Session Still Possible.

These estimates, based on crop conditions September 1, failed to clarify the prospects for a special session of Congress to enact new crop controls. If the estimates had been boosted, the chances for a special session in the fall would have increased, observers believed.

Congressional leaders told the President recently they would make a farm program the first order of business when they return for the regular session in January. He said recently, however, he was considering recalling them sooner.

The board estimated corn production at 2,549,281,000 bushels, compared with 2,653,748,000 bushels a month ago and about equal to the average for the five years of 1928-32.

Tobacco Above Average.

Wheat production was estimated at 885,950,000 bushels, compared with 890,418,000 a month earlier, slightly larger than the five-year average.

Most of the decline in indicated corn yield was in Nebraska and parts of adjoining States where temperatures have been high and adequate moisture lacking since early August.

Although production of feed grain probably will be "only about average," the board said supplies should be "fully adequate for the greatly reduced number of livestock and poultry now on the farms."

Canadian Wheat Scanty.

Ottawa, Ontario, Sept. 10 (Canadian Press).—The Dominion Bureau of Statistics reported tonight the lowest Canadian wheat crop since 1914.

The bureau said the grade and quality of the 1937 crop "is indicated to be very high although slightly below the record of 1936."

This year's production was estimated at 168,999,000 bushels of spring wheat and 19,192,000 bushels of fall wheat, a total of 188,191,000. Last year the total was 229,218,000 bushels.

Senate FCC Sift Asked by Wheeler

Helena, Mont., Sept. 10 (AP).—Senator Burton K. Wheeler (Democrat), Montana, said today: "While I'm glad the President has at last seen fit to do something about it, I'm of the opinion a committee of the Senate should also conduct an investigation of the Federal Communications Commission.'

"The Federal Communications Commission has been a political football ever since its inception," he said. "Radio licenses have been granted through political pull and favoritism. Large broadcasting companies and politicians have completely dominated the commission."

Fall's First Hurricane 1,500 Miles Off Miami

Miami, Fla., Sept. 10 (U.P.).—A tropical storm—first of the season to attain hurricane intensity—was reported tonight by the Federal hurricane warning system to be moving north-northwestward about 12 miles an hour, 500 miles northeast of St. Martins in the Leeward Islands, or about 1,500 miles east-southeast of Miami.

Steam Shovel Scoop Severs Worker's Ear

Willie Parker, 46, of 401 N. Royal street, Alexandria, lost his right ear yesterday when he fell from a pile of rock into the path of a steam shovel at the Herbert Bryant's Sons fertilizer plant.

Parker, an employe of the plant, was standing near the shovel when he lost his balance and toppled into an excavation. The shovel's scoop struck his head and severed his ear.

Politics and People

Roosevelt Aversion to Special Session Fits Political Superstition Against Them.

By Franklyn Waltman

AMONG the reasons for the President's reluctance to call a special session of Congress and for the opposition on the part of Democratic leaders on Capitol Hill to such an undertaking is the political superstition that special sessions are unlucky. It is a superstition almost as old as the Republic.

WALTMAN.

Politicians are as superstitious as natives in the African jungle or the Haitian hills. A number of the members of House and Senate carry around with them, at least during campaigns, a rabbit foot. Others have a superstitious awe that certain things must be done in every campaign.

President Roosevelt, for instance, never changes hats during a campaign. Early in the fall he buys a gray felt hat and flatly refuses to wear any other until after election day in the year in which he is running, even though this hat becomes grimy with the soot and dirt of thousands of miles of traveling and becomes crumbled out of shape.

Mr. Roosevelt also observes another superstition. It is to visit a firehouse in Tarrytown, N. Y., the afternoon before Election Day. He first did this when as a youth he first ran for State senator in New York. He won in an overwhelmingly Republican district. In 1920 when he was running for Vice President, so it is said, he failed to visit this firehouse. He lost. At all events he religiously visited the firehouse in his two successful races for Governor of New York and again for the Presidency.

* * *

But to get back to the superstition about special sessions of Congress. George Washington's only special session was that which met to inaugurate the Federal Government. He suffered no ill-luck from it. John Adams, however, convened a special session of Congress on May 15, 1797. It was marked down as the beginning of his troubles.

James G. Blaine in his "Twenty Years in Congress" has a reference to this incident in a discussion of why Andrew Johnson, on succeeding to the Presidency after Lincoln's assassination, failed to call a special session of Congress, although it was generally regarded as desirable.

"Mr. Johnson, however, is scarcely to be blamed for not calling an extra session of Congress," Blaine wrote. "Aside from his confidence in his own power to deal with the problems before him, he shared, no doubt, in the general dislike which Presidents in recent years have shown for extra sessions.

"Indeed, to the executive department of the Government, Congress, even in its regular sessions, is a guest whose coming is not welcomed with half the heartiness with which its departure is speeded. But an extra session, especially at the beginning of an administration, is looked upon with almost superstitious aversion, and is always to be avoided if possible.

"It was remembered that all the woes of the elder Adams' Administration, all the intrigues which the choleric President fancied that Hamilton was carrying on against him in connection with our French difficulties, had their origin in the extra session on May, 1787.

"It was remembered also that the unpopularity which attached to the Presidency of Madison was connected with the two extra sessions which his timid Administration was perhaps too ready to assemble. So deeply was hostility to extra sessions implanted in the minds of political leaders by the misfortunes of Adams and Madison that another was not called for a quarter of a century.

"In September, 1837, Mr. Van Buren inaugurated the ill-fortune of his Administration by assembling Congress three months in advance of its regular session. John Tyler in turn never recovered from the dissensions and disasters of the extra session of May, 1841—though it was precipitated upon him by a call issued by President Harrison.

"All these extra sessions except the one in Mr. Van Buren's Administration had been held in May and even in his case the proclamation summoning Congress was issued in May. No wonder, therefore, that ill-luck came to be associated with that month. When the necessity of assembling Congress was forced upon Mr. Lincoln by the firing on Sumter, Mr. Seward warned him that in any event he must not have the session begin in May. It must be confessed therefore that the precedents were sufficiently alarming to influence Mr. Johnson against an extra session."

So bitter became the controversy between Johnson and Congress, however, that two years later that body forced an extra session on the President by enacting legislation which provided that the Fortieth Congress should meet and be organized immediately on adjournment of the lame duck or second session of the Thirty-ninth Congress. Actually Congress was in session with some rather long recesses, from December 3, 1866, until November 10, 1868, a period of 710 days. It was in this period—in the session of Congress following the one forced on Johnson—that he was impeached, tried and acquitted.

* * *

Since Blaine wrote his "Twenty Years of Congress" in 1880, other incidents occurred which the superstitious among the politicians cite to demonstrate the ill-luck attendant on extra or special sessions of Congress. It is recalled that it was in a special session of the Fifty-third Congress called by Grover Cleveland that the silver-purchase law was repealed and the Democratic Party split to a state of impotency for 20 years.

William Howard Taft, it is recalled, convened special sessions of Congress twice, during which issues were raised which split his party asunder. It was in the second of these special sessions that the Payne-Aldrich tariff act with its infamous wool schedule was passed, a direct contribution to the defeat of Taft and the Republican Party.

It also is recalled that Woodrow Wilson experienced his first serious difficulties when he called Congress in special session to declare war on Germany in 1917. The Democrats lost control of the House and Senate the next year. Warren G. Harding convened two special sessions of Congress—and the politicians urge one to take a look at what happened to him.

The special session of Congress, however, freshest in mind on Capitol Hill is that convened by Herbert Hoover on April 15, 1929, pursuant to a campaign promise to enact a farm relief act and a tariff act. Both measures were regarded as bringing disaster to the Hoover Administration. There also is the fact that the recent depression commenced while this special session was in progress. Certainly Mr. Hoover's troubles dated back to that special session. After that he lost control even of his own party followers on Capitol Hill.

* * *

Yet in view of all this Mr. Roosevelt may flout the superstition against special sessions. He loves to break precedents, to look the instruments of ill-luck in the eye and laugh at them. Moreover, he convened Congress in special session on March 9, 1933—and came out of it a hero.

Farm-Laborites Talk Third Party

Milwaukee, Wis., Sept. 10 (AP).—The five-man joint organizing committee of the Farmer-Labor Progressive Federation of Wisconsin and the Farmer-Labor Association of Minnesota will discuss the feasibility of a third party at a closed meeting in Madison, September 15.

Henry Rutz, committee chairman, indicated recent statements of Gov. La Follette of Wisconsin and John L. Lewis influenced his decision to call the meeting.

La Follette told Lincoln, Nebr., newspapermen last Sunday that he regarded formation of a national third party as inevitable. Lewis suggested in a radio address last Friday that it would be to the advantage of farmers and workers to wage their battles together.

Senator Asks Jury Trial On Morals Accusation

Baltimore, Sept. 10 (AP).—Pleading innocent to a charge of conspiracy to transport two women to Annapolis during the last session of the Legislature for immoral purposes, State Senator Melvin L. Fine today asked a jury trial.

Fine, only Republican senator from Baltimore, made his plea before Circuit Court Judge Eugene O'Dunne. A date for trial has not been set.

Sheppard's Condition Good After Operation

Senator Morris Sheppard, of Texas, chairman of the Senate Military Affairs Committee, who yesterday entered Walter Reed Hospital, was resting comfortably last night following an abdominal operation.

Physicians said that no complications had set in and that Senator Sheppard was "doing nicely."

'Massacre' Veteran, G-Man Is Promoted

New York, Sept. 10 (AP).—Reed Vetterli, a star "G-man," who has commanded 19 field offices of the Justice Department's Bureau of Investigation, took charge today of its New York office, the biggest field assignment in the service.

He carries the scars of his pursuit, having been wounded in the Kansas City Union Station massacre of 1933, in which five men died as Federal agents and desperadoes shot it out. Vetterli, born in Salt Lake City in 1903, succeeds Rhea Whitley, who resigned recently to practice law in Washington.

New Mexico Celebrates Spanish Battle of 1702

Santa Fe, N. Mex., Sept. 10 (AP).—New Mexico's mile-high capital—ancient "Villa" at the end of the Santa Fe trail—turned the clock back two centuries tonight and celebrated the 225th anniversary of Old Spain's bloodless victory over rebellious Indians.

It was the annual Fiesta de Santa Fe, proclaimed in 1712 in commemoration of the recapture of the Spanish capital from the Indians, who 12 years earlier massacred and drove out the Spanish soldiers and sacked the city.

C. I. O. Victory Hinted in Plea For Sailor Vote

Lee Pressman, general counsel for the C. I. O.; Hyman Glickstein, attorney, and Joseph Curran, general organizer for the N. M. U., attacked the plea for delay.

Pressman charged the A. F. of L. was "deliberately sabotaging" efforts to hold elections to select collective bargaining agencies for workers in numerous industries. He cited reported refusal of the A. F. of L. to accept an election of transport workers in New York, an election among warehousemen on the Pacific Coast and other requested ballotings. He said the A. F. of L. thus was playing into the hands of employers, who refuse to do any bargaining with either union until an election is held.

Pressman maintained it would require from two to six months to hold an election even after the date set, as sailors at sea will not be able to vote until the return to this country. He protested any delay in beginning the actual balloting.

"Continual Chaos" Forecast.

Glickstein told the board the plan to reorganize the I. S. U., was "just adding a little new blood to the old carcass," and forecast "continual chaos," in the industry if the elections were postponed. Curran characterized as "intolerable" conditions on Atlantic and Gulf ships. He said elections already held on some ship lines indicated the seamen "don't want any part of the A. F. of L."

In this connection, the labor board yesterday announced certification that the N. M. U. has been selected over the I. S. U., as the exclusive bargaining agency for unlicensed personnel employed in the deck, engine and stewards' departments of the Luckenbush Steamship Co., Inc., and the Black Diamond Steamship Corporation.

Elections were held in June and July. Among the Black Diamond workers, of 199 voting, 197 were in favor of the N. M. U., one for the I. S. U., and one ballot was void. Of 446 Luckenback employes' ballots, 436 were for the N. M. U., 8 for the I. S. U., and two void.

Sailors Becoming Impatient.

The strike threat was voiced by John Lawrenson, of the N. M. U., who declared 40,000 seamen claimed by the union had waited long enough for authority, through an election, to take up their grievances with the ship companies.

Saying the union "won't tolerate any further delay," he warned that "if necessary, strike action will be taken."

Ogburn, on the other hand, asked that the elections not be held "prematurely." He predicted that if chaotic conditions exist in the shipping industry the Maritime Commission will ask Congress for a separate labor act, similar to the railway labor act, to control ship labor relations.

The N. M. U., formed by the C. I. O., to embrace all seafaring men aside from licensed officers, has been confined largely in its membership to date to the Atlantic and Gulf Coasts and the Great Lakes. However, a national convention has been called for January 17, at San Francisco, when it is planned to unite all the C. I. O. unions into a maritime federation.

Ship Pass Restriction.

Also before the NLRB yesterday was a question of restricting the number of passes to be issued to organizers for rival labor organizations to board arriving ships for the purpose of enrolling members. Previously, it was contended by Pressman, the same number of passes had been issued to the C. I. O. and the A. F. of L. to board each ship. Recently, however, Joseph Ryan, president of the International Longshoremen's Association, an A. F. of L. affiliate, announced he also was seeking to enroll seamen and had been obtaining passes, thereby doubling the number issued to A. F. of L. forces. C. I. O. circles reported they had been assured a rule would be issued by which the two big rival organizations would be granted the same number of passes.

Outside of the maritime industry, the A. F. of L. yesterday won certification for one of its unions as the bargaining agency for employes of the production, maintenance and delivery employes of the Hoffman Beverage Co. at Newark. The company was described by the board as one of the largest units in the nonalcoholic beverage industry. The bargaining agent selected by the employes is the joint local executive board of three locals of the A. F. of L.'s brewery workers' union.

Death of Two in Crash Mars British Air Derby

London, Sept. 10 (U.P.).—Britain's annual air derby, the King's Cup race, was marred today by the death of two men when their plane crashed in bumpy weather near Scarborough in full view of 1,000 spectators.

Percy Sherren and his pilot, E. G. Hilton, were killed when a gust of wind caught their ship in a turn in the course near Castle Hill.

By the Associated Press.

The Duke Power Co. appealed to the Supreme Court yesterday for a second time in an effort to prevent the Public Works Administration from making loans and grants for publicly owned hydroelectric plants.

It asked the tribunal to review a decision by the Fourth Circuit Court of Appeals sustaining a $2,852,000 PWA loan and grant to Greenwood County (S. C.), for an electric plant at Buzzard Roost.

The court already has agreed to review similar litigation brought by the Alabama Power Co. and the Iowa City Light & Power Co.

Arguments in the latter cases probably will be heard next month.

Last term the court agreed to pass on the Duke case, but then ruled that procedure in lower courts had been improper.

In its new petition, the company contended the loan and grant:

Was "not within any power delegated to Congress by the general welfare clause (of the Constitution)."

Violated the tenth amendment to the Constitution "in that it invades powers and governs and controls matters reserved to the States."

"Deprives petitioners of their property without due process of law."

The petition said approximately 50 other suits involving the same questions were pending in lower Federal courts.

"Due to the Federal subsidy," the power company contended, "the rates of the proposed plant have been fixed substantially below the rates of petitioners . . ."

"In the three counties of Greenwood, Newberry and Laurens alone, petitioners would sustain a net loss of approximately $250,000 a year."

Destroyer Reports 2 in Crew Drowned

Two members of the crew of the destroyer Dahlgren, now engaged in trials off Rockland, Maine, have disappeared "under circumstances strongly indicating drowning," the Navy Department announced yesterday.

The Navy Department was advised yesterday by the commanding officer of the Dahlgren that a search for the bodies of the two men was being carried on in the vicinity of Rockland, but no trace of them had been reported last night.

Police Crane Drivers Will Be Replaced

The six policemen who have been driving Police Department crane trucks used to impound automobiles, will be replaced by regular chauffeurs in the immediate future, Maj. Ernest W. Brown, superintendent of police, said yesterday.

The change is being made, he indicated, to put the trained officers back on the regular force. Of the six candidates certified for the jobs, only two have been found satisfactory so far. The position pays $1,200 a year.

Ex-Representative Rodenburg Dies After Long Public Career

William A. Rodenburg, 71, former Republican Representative from Illinois, died yesterday in a hospital at Alpena, Mich., according to word received here yesterday.

Mr. Rohenburg was injured a week ago in a fall and had been confined to the hospital since. Friends said he had been visiting at the summer homes of Senators Gore, of Oklahoma, and Reed, of Missouri, near Alpena.

At his bedside were Mrs. Rodenburg and two sons, Robert, formerly a Washington newspaperman, and William, a Chicago attorney.

Elected First in 1899.

Rodenburg lived here at 3501 Macomb street northwest. He served in Congress intermittently from 1899 to 1923, when he retired to open a private law practice. He failed to win re-election after his first term in the House and was appointed a member of the Civil Service Commission by President McKinley in 1901.

Rodenburg served with the commission until 1903 and then went to East St. Louis to practice law. He was elected to the Fifty-eighth and four succeeding Congresses, but was an unsuccessful candidate in 1912.

Later, however, he served as a Representative from March 4, 1915, to March 3, 1923.

His body will be brought here for burial.

U. S. Unit to Study Decline in Stocks

By the Associated Press.

The Federal Reserve Board's open-market committee will meet today for a study of fall credit needs and recent financial developments, including the stock-market slump.

The committee guides Reserve Board policies in the purchase and sale of Government securities, and thus may exercise a powerful influence over credit conditions.

Officials said the group would review effects of hostilities abroad on domestic economy. Authorities at the Reserve Board, Securities Commission and other Government agencies kept a close watch on the descending securities market today, for the most part in silence.

J. F. T. O'Connor, Comptroller of the Currency, asserted the market break would not affect national banks, "for the very good reason that the banks are not permitted to buy common stocks." He asserted the bond market "has been very little affected."

WPA Fears Costs May Wreck Plans

By the Associated Press.

WPA economists expressed concern yesterday lest higher cost of living disturb their program.

They said possible difficulties were demands for wage increases because of higher prices and the extra cost of supplies to local project sponsors.

If expenses increase sharply, economists pointed out, there must be curtailment or revision of the Nation-wide work.

Ex-Campaign Manager To Assist Dixie Graves

By the Associated Press.

Merwin Koonce, 40, Florence, Ala., attorney, became secretary to Senator Dixie Bibb Graves, of Alabama, yesterday.

Koonce formerly was assistant attorney general of Alabama. He was Lauderdale County campaign manager for the Senator's husband, Gov. Bibb Graves. Miss Octavia Martin, of Birmingham, a clerk, is the only other Washington staff member the Senator has appointed.

Judge Scores Bill To Weaken Bench

Del Monte, Calif., Sept. 10 (AP).—Federal Judge Merrill E. Otis, of Missouri, sharply criticized tonight a bill pending in Congress which he said would reduce a Federal district judge to the status of a "mere presiding officer."

The measure would forbid a judge to state the issues and sum up testimony to juries, Judge Otis asserted, and in 28 States the jurist would have to make his charge in writing and deliver it before the argument of counsel.

Judge Otis said inquiries disclosed that many jurists and lawyers were unaware that such a bill has been passed by the House on the consent calendar and is pending in the Senate.

He said Representative U. S. Guyer, of Kansas, had informed him the bill had not been given a hearing and was considered by a subcommittee only.

Coal Price Quota Asked.

Floods of Protesting Letters Caused Investigation of Nazi Bund, F.B.I. Reveals Paper Assails 'Health, Hitler, Heils, Hatred'

Children Sing Hymns to Fuehrer They Never Saw, Article Charges.

The Department of Justice yesterday disclosed that its 4-week-old investigation of reported Nazi activities in the United States was impelled by a flood of letters protesting operations of the Amerikadeutscher Bund, and demanding immediate action by the Federal Bureau of Investigation.

"The letters came, not from organizations alone, but from individuals," a spokesman for the department said. "We had a strong letter on the matter from Congressman William M. Citron (Democrat), of Connecticut."

The department said most of the letters referred to Nazi activities in New Jersey, where a youth camp for would-be Fuehrers flourishes at Nordland, near Andover.

The announcement Attorney General Cummings had ordered a sweeping investigation came when attention was called to demands from Congressional leaders for such action following publication by the Chicago Times of a copyrighted story asserting American Nazis are organizing secretly to seize the Government. It was made public in Portland, Oreg., by J. Edgar Hoover, chief of the Bureau of Investigation.

1,000 Crime Possible.

The Justice Department yesterday said it did not know when Hoover's report would be given the Attorney General, but it promised the investigation would be "thorough."

"There are over 1,000 criminal statutes that may have been violated, including the neutrality act," the department spokesman said.

According to the Associated Press, the Chicago Times followed up its disclosures with the second of a series of copyrighted articles.

Yesterday's article said "Health, Hitler, Heils and Hatred are the four H's used by the United States Nazis to prevent Americanization of children whose parents are members of the German-American Bund, Nation-wide organization of American Nazis."

"'In the coming years, all the unity and all the efforts will be required in order to put a stop to the former crippling by the Americanization of their young,' declares the Bund Yearbook, reprinted from the German magazine Deutsche Arbeit, in referring to children of Germans who have emigrated to America," the paper added.

Sing to Der Fuehrer.

"American boys and girls sing hymns to Der Fuehrer and the Vaterland they never have seen," the Times said. "Their youthful feet goosestep in a march of racial and religious hatred."

The newspaper said organization leaders insisted the youth were "the lifeline of the movement" and "must carry on our fight against Judaism, world Bolshevism and Communism."

An investigation of charges a Nazi movement flourishes in San Francisco was promised yesterday by that city's chief of police, William J. Quinn, according to the Associated Press.

Dr. S. J. Hurwitt, president of the United Council Organization, which made the charge, said in a statement the San Francisco Amerikadeutscher Bund was fostering pro-Nazi activities and that it was holding "closely-guarded" meetings at which motion pictures laudatory of the Hitler regime were exhibited.

Shiva Temple Will Be Scaled For First Time

Grand Canyon, Ariz., Sept. 10 (AP).—A party of scientists tomorrow will begin an ascent to Shiva Temple—towering plateau never visited by man—in search of wildlife species believed isolated in the "lost forest" for untold centuries.

Dr. Harold E. Anthony, curator of mammalogy of the American Museum of Natural History, New York, and leader of the expedition, believes Shiva Temple was separated from the mainland "anywhere from 20,000 to 200,000 years ago." Animals living on the plateau at the time, he predicts, have propagated and still exist, but have adapted themselves to changing conditions.

"We are not expecting the spectacular," Dr. Anthony said. "If we find animal life, we expect it to be similar to that found on adjacent rims of the canyon."

Angell Plans Purge Of Radio Crooners

His mission is to win—and hold—education-seeking radio listeners from the Rudy Vallees, the Jessica Dragonettes and the Paul Whitemans.

Installed as educational counselor of the National Broadcasting Co., Dr. Angell avowed it was his intention to make education, particularly adult education, a desirable function of radio.

Dry League Spurns Sheppard Aid Plan

By the Associated Press.

An offer by Senator Sheppard, (Democrat), Texas, and author of the eighteenth amendment, to renew activity in Congress for national prohibition aroused little enthusiasm yesterday among Anti-Saloon League chieftains.

"We are not even talking about national prohibition these days," said Edward B. Dunford, the organization's national attorney.

"From a practical standpoint, it would be about as ridiculous as talking about going to Mars.

"Our present policy," he said, "is to go to the Nation's grassroots."

Mural in Postoffice Building and the Message That Irks

The "offensive" mural of two just finished by Rockwell Kent for the new Postoffice Building is seen above. It is the artist's conception of "Mail Service in Puerto Rico" and shows Puerto Ricans waving a message supposedly sent them from Alaskan Eskimos, who were subjects in the other painting. Below is a close-up of the message, which exhorts the Puerto Ricans to change chiefs and be free. The exhortation is in Kuskokwin, one of the lesser known Eskimo dialects.

Kent's Murals Preach Liberty To Puerto Rico

Eskimo Dialect Message May Cause Rejection by Treasury.

The arise-and-be-free note Rockwell Kent penned to Puerto Rico by way of the two air-mail murals he has just completed for the new Postoffice Building may prevent him from collecting the rest of his money on the project, and assign his latest handiwork to the place where all good but unaccepted murals go.

The section of painting and sculpture, of the Treasury's procurement division, has yet to pass on the murals. Only its approval means formal acceptance.

A committee will visit the murals within the next ten days to pass on them finally.

"Kicks" Awaited.

If there is enough kicking in the meantime—from the Department of the Interior, which looks out for the welfare of Puerto Rico and other United States possessions, or from the Postoffice Department, which has to "live with them"—the murals may be rejected.

Interior officials, however, yesterday denied they could be affronted in the Eskimo dialect which Mr. Kent used for his message.

Kent's murals represent his conception of "Mail Service in Alaska" and "Mail Service in Puerto Rico." The former shows Eskimos and dog sled and reindeer imposed on a background dominated by a huge blue mail plane.

Message in Eskimo.

The latter mural shows Puerto Ricans holding aloft a letter they have received from a carrier on horseback, who in turn must have received it from the plane in the background. The letter reads:

"Puerto Ricomiuniera ilaptimumul Ke Ha chimmeulakut angayorasacut. Amna kitchimmi atumim Chuli wapticumitti cleoraatig ut."

All of which would have been classed as "something in an obscure language" and let go at that, except that Vilhjamur Stefansson, the Arctic explorer, knows Eskimo, too. He said the letter said:

"To the people of Puerto Rico, our friends! Go ahead. Let us change chiefs. That alone can make us equal and free."

Kent declared the translation to be a good one. "I wanted the message to be something more important than gossip," he said.

"I wanted the people in Alaska, having heard that the movement for independence in Puerto Rico is in full swing, to wish them Godspeed in their aspirations."

William P. Towers Dies; Son of Early Capital Mayor

Born here in 1856 while his father, John T. Towers, headed the city government, Mr. Towers had been an ardent fisherman for many years. This summer he had been disappointed because illness prevented him from going out on the Potomac where he had fished every summer since boyhood.

To make up for this, he asked that his body be cremated, the ashes thrown to his beloved river.

With him at his death was his wife, Mrs. Octavia Adams Towers. Companions since childhood, they had been separated only two nights since their marriage 48 years ago. She accompanied him on all his fishing excursions. There is no other close relative surviving him.

Mr. Towers was in the grocery business here for many years. Later he was employed at the State, War and Navy Building for 15 years until retirement in 1932. He lived at 488 F street southwest, during the last 15 years.

Housing Group To Ask Changes In Wagner Act

Proposed Amendments to Be Discussed at Parley Here Sept. 24.

The American Federation of Housing Authorities announced yesterday its second housing conference will be held at the Hay-Adams House here September 24, following a meeting the day before of the federation's directors.

"The conference," said the federation's statement, "will prepare a series of amendments to the Wagner law to be introduced at the extra or regular session of the Congress.

"Arrangements will be made with the administrator for the federation to act as the Washington clearing house on all local housing authority matters. This should expedite the program and eliminate the friction and misunderstandings which have existed between Federal housing agencies and the cities."

The conference will include State housing boards, municipal housing authorities and mayors, as well as federation leaders.

"Reports received by the federation indicate that while the principles of the (Wagner) law are accepted as basically sound, the mandatory provisions of the act regarding compensatory slum clearance will prevent many States in which there is actual housing shortage from erecting any housing," the statement continued.

"Other States find that a long process of constitutional amendment and local charter revision will be necessary before they can function under the requirements for local financial participation."

"Many authorities which have projects designed by the old housing division are abandoning those projects as entirely unsuitable and too extravagant for the needs of their communities and are busy designing low-rent housing units in harmony with the local need.

"Frills and expensive services will be eliminated in the new municipally planned and built housing. Costly central heating plants will give way to individual heating, and tenants will be expected to take care of their own lawns and gardens."

Phillips, Envoy to Italy, Is Home for 'Vacation'

By the Associated Press.

William Phillips, American Ambassador to Italy, arrived in Washington yesterday on what he described as purely a personal holiday from his post in Rome.

He gave Secretary Hull a lengthy first-hand report of the Mediterranean situation and said he would make a similar report later to President Roosevelt at Hyde Park.

Witness Links Rubber Firm in Office Raiding

By the Associated Press.

Birmingham, Ala., Sept. 10.—Testimony intended to connect the Goodyear Tire & Rubber Co. with the storming of the offices of union organizers in Gadsden, Ala., June 26, 1936, was introduced today at a Labor Board hearing.

Grady Cleere, who said he had been employed by the Goodyear firm to spy on United States Rubber Workers, reported he was present at the Goodyear plant when "the Goodyear gang" was told to drive organizers out of town.

Cleere said orders were given by T. L. Bottoms, of the Goodyear employment office, at a meeting in the company cafeteria.

The witness testified at a session called by Examiner Walter Wilbur to hear Cleere's story after allegation of threats against him in Gadsden.

Court Intervention Asked.

Pittsburgh, Sept. 10 (AP).—While 1,600 employes of the National Electric Products Corporation tried to settle today with ballots one of the most complicated cases to arise under the Wagner labor act, an A. F. of L. affiliate appealed to the Federal court to intervene.

Attorney M. D. Wedner, representing the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers, petitioned for an order restraining the National Labor Relations Board, a rival CIO union and the company from interfering with his client's contract with the concern.

The Pittsburgh District Court upheld this agreement several weeks ago, but the Labor Board, August 30 declared it void and ordered today's election held to decide which union actually had a majority membership among the company's employes.

Report developments. United States Maritime Commission.'"

It was learned Capt. Gainard had reported to the commission the men, encountering the strike upon arrival at Montevideo, had refused to unload the vessel. The craft was moved out into the harbor with the intent of unloading and loading by means of lighters. When the lighters appeared alongside, however, it was said, the Algic's seamen refused to permit them to unload the ship.

The American vice consul was called in for a conference lasting an hour and a half, but the crew still refused to yield.

The Maritime Commission was then notified of the situation and called on for instructions.

Gainard's report was said to have charged that he had had trouble with three apparent leaders of the crew on the way south, and to have said that other foreign ships were loading and unloading at Montevideo without trouble. The commission reply to the captain was said to have been adopted unanimously.

While persons connected with the Committee for Industrial Organization here declined to talk for quotation in the absence of Joseph Curran, head of the C. I. O.'s National Maritime Union, they said privately the action of the seamen was merely a legal use of the strike, that similar action had been taken in previous cases and that there was no justification for classifying the situation as mutiny. It was understood most of the Algic's crew are members of the N. M. U. Curran was aboard a train from Washington to New York after appearing before a Labor Relations Board meeting here yesterday.

Union "Furious."

At New York a spokesman for the union was quoted as saying:

"The action of the commission was a pretty high-handed way of handling a labor dispute.

"Naturally, our men are furious. If the Government is going to operate steamships, it must provide the same conditions as private owners do."

Meanwhile, there was recalled President Roosevelt's statement to the national convention of the Federation of Federal Employes that a strike against the Government was "unthinkable."

It was pointed out in this connection that the Government owns and operates, under the Maritime Commission, 37 ships on which, as in the case of the Algic, strikes would be held "unlawful." In addition, the Government now is subsidizing some 150 vessels under terms of the 1936 merchant marine act, but there has been no indication that a strike aboard any of them would be ruled "a strike against the Government."

Law Is Quoted.

Joseph P. Kennedy, chairman of the commission, departed early last night for New York, and other members of the commission who could be reached declined to comment on the Algic situation aside from the statement issued by the commission.

In other official maritime circles, however, it was said that the law which might apply in such cases as that of the Algic is found in Section 483 of Title 18 of the criminal code which reads:

"Inciting revolt or mutiny on shipboard. Whoever being of the crew of a vessel of the United States, on the high seas, or on any other waters within the admiralty and maritime jurisdiction of the United States, endeavors to make a revolt or mutiny on board such vessel, or combines, conspires or confederates with any other person on board to make such revolt or mutiny, or solicits, incites or stirs up any other of the crew to disobey or resist the lawful orders of the master or other officer of such vessel, or to refuse or neglect their proper duty on board thereof, or to betray their proper trust, or assembles with others in a tumultous or mutinous manner or make a riot on board thereof, or unlawfully confines the master or other commanding officer thereof, shall be fined not more than $1,000, or imprisoned not more than five years, or both."

Under this section, it was recalled last night, members of the crew of the steamship Hamilton were arrested and prosecuted in 1920. The crew had struck on the ground that their articles had been terminated by the protracted length of the voyage. The ship was towed into Bermuda, members of the crew were arrested and placed in irons and were brought back to this country, tried and convicted, and penalties were imposed. The court ruled that they had signed to bring the ship back to this country and had refused.

Seeks Divorce From the Baron

Baroness Van Eizner Berlangieri, the former Merry Fahreney, patent medicine heiress, has filed suit in Chicago for a divorce from the Italian baron she married at Harrison, N. Y., last July 31. The charge was cruelty. The baron is her third husband.

Du Pont Gave Liberty League $32,375 Within Three Months

Reports to House Show Group Still Operating; Republicans Collected $181,664 in Cash and $94,085 Pledges.

By Sidney Olson.

The Liberty League is not dead, but sleeping.

This fact, calculated to arouse the beast in all onward-thrusting New Dealers, was confirmed yesterday when it was learned that the good red gold of one man, Irenee duPont, of Wilmington, Del., is still flowing into the veins of the dormant organization.

The munitions millionaire has given the much-battered league a transfusion totaling $32,375 in the three months from June 1 to August 31, inclusive, it was revealed when the league's financial statement was filed with the Clerk of the House of Representatives.

Spending Totals, $55,656.

While New Dealers have been cavorting happily about, caroling "Whatever became of the Liberty League, thank God!" the grim-jawed Delaware magnate, never one to give up easily, has quietly gone on shoving packages of money into the league treasury.

No one seems to know what the league spends money for, but it has spent $55,658 since last January 1, while receipts have totaled only $43,300, with most of this coming from the 61-year-old gunpowder magnate.

The Republican Party, in statements also filed yesterday, reported a fatter purse, increasing steadily toward a moderate prosperity. Total contributions from June 1 to August 31 amounted to $181,664.07.

Of that amount, $153,259.34 was received in gifts of more than $100. Contributions of less than $100 totaled $12,354.51.

Pledges to give more than $100 totaled $94,085; pledges to give less than $100 totaled $9,397.30, and the total received in cash and promises for the three months amounted to $285,148.37.

Total receipts from January to August 31, according to C. B. Goodspeed, treasurer of the committee, were $394,823.08 in cash, pledges amounting to $167,968.83 and a grand total of $562,791.91.

Total expenditures by and on behalf of the committee for the eight months were $383,109.71, or $11,712.83 less than the cash received for that period.

The larger contributors were featured by the Pew family, of Pittsburgh, associated with the Sun Oil Co. in various capacities. These included, as contributors of $5,000 each: J. Howard Pew, J. N. Pew, jr., Mrs. Mary Ethel Pew and Mrs. Mabel Pew Myrin. Others were Silas H. Strawn, $1,000; William R. McAlpin, $3,800, and Mr. and Mrs. Chester C. Bolton, $2,500 each.

William J. Brainard, Grain Merchant, Dies

New York, Sept. 10 (AP).—William J. Brainard, 57, grain merchant and one of the World War's "dollar-a-year" men, died yesterday at his Manhatian home. Brainard was a member of the New York Produce Exchange, the Chicago Board of Trade and the Boston Chamber of Commerce.

Modern Homes Replace Slums In Lettie Court

18 Houses, to Be Ready Soon, Will Rent for $20 a Month.

The Alley Dwelling Authority is completing a new $20-a-month housing project for white tenants in a Southwest slum settlement long known as Lettie court, or K street alley.

Within a few months, it was reported, 16 modern concrete two-story houses will be finished at an estimated cost of $130,000. The development is within a few blocks of the Neighborhood House settlement on a site formerly occupied by $10 to $15 a month alley slum dwellings, authorities said.

The project will be developed in the form of a "U," with rows of houses facing an open park 92 feet wide and 108 feet in depth. Grass and trees will be planted in the open space.

Eight of the new dwellings will contain four rooms; four will have five rooms, and four, six. Modern baths and utility rooms will be provided.

Soft Music Soothes The Savage Cows, Boosts Milk Output

By the Associated Press.

Agriculture Department experts said today the radio is conducive to barnyard harmony.

Turn on the radio and you more than likely will get more milk—that is if the radio program at the moment doesn't happen to be of the "hi de hi hot cha cha" variety.

"It's important that a cow not be excited by loud or boisterous noise at milking time," explained T. E. Woodward, of the department's dairy division. Woodward said there have been many reports of instances where soft music has been put to good use in the barnyard.

Typical of the reports coming to the attention of the bureau lately is that from Portland, Ind., where farmer Joe Bryan reported he is getting more milk by turning on a radio in his barn. He says the animals like the music so well that they crowd around to listen.

Devotional Services to Be Held Tomorrow in Washington's Many Churches

New Minister Due October 1 At St. Erik's

Lutheran Church to Begin Program of Enlarged Fall Activities.

With the coming of a new pastor, Dr. Arthur O. Hjelm, recently of Chicago, and the complete reorganization of the congregation, St. Erik's Lutheran Church will enter upon a program of enlarged activities this fall. A final worship service in the old chapel at 409 Fourth street northwest will be held tomorrow at 3:30 p. m. The sermon will be preached by Dr. Gerhard E. Lenski, pastor of Grace Lutheran Church.

Beginning Sunday, October 3, 11 a. m., the reorganized congregation will worship at 2400 Sixteenth street northwest.

Dr. Hjelm will arrive in the city October 1. With his wife and three children he will live at 3620 Veazey street northwest.

The enlarged program of St. Erik's is being sponsored by the local membership and by the Augustana Synod of the American Lutheran Conference. An effort will be made to draw into active membership many, particularly of Scandinavian background, without a church in the city.

Dr. Hjelm is 45 years old and has a distinguished record for church-building in several fields. Most recent and successful have been his efforts in Calvary Lutheran Church, Worcester, Mass., and St. Paul's, Chicago.

Officers of the local congregation are Albert Lindstrom, president; Carl W. Johnson, Arthur Weiberg, Carl Gustafson and Magnus Larson.

Tomorrow's service will conclude the use of the chapel for congregational worship. It will remain in the possession of the congregation and will be used for social and business purposes.

Church of the Reformation. Tomorrow morning at 11 o'clock Dr. Oscar F. Blackwelder, the pastor, who has returned from his vacation, will speak on the theme, "The Tragedy of a Self-Centered Life."

The Luther League will begin its fall program with a tea in the parish hall at 5:30. Dr. Blackwelder will speak on "Finding the Right Perspectives in Life."

The church council will meet Tuesday evening at 8 o'clock in the pastor's study.

Luther Place Memorial. The Rev. Dr. Carl C. Rasmussen will preach his first post-vacation sermon tomorrow at the 11 o'clock service. His subject will be "The New Religious Climate."

At 6 o'clock Wesley Emerick will discuss the subject, "Co-operating With Other Races," at the Intermediate Luther League meeting.

Grace. Tomorrow's services will mark a resumption of various activities suspended during the summer holidays. Dr. Gerhard E. Lenski will preach at 11 a. m. on "Making Life Safe for Youth."

The program committee planning for the church's anniversary year has set Sunday, October 3, as the beginning of the year's observance. The quarterly congregational meeting in October will be a fellowship dinner and will be held October 7 at 6 p. m.

Christ. The Sunday school will observe rally day tomorrow morning at 9:45 o'clock. At 10:20 there will be celebration of holy communion with an address by the pastor, the Rev. J. Frederic Wenchel. At the 11 o'clock service the Rev. Clarence Stube will preach on "The Mysteries of Christianity."

St. Stephen's. The Rev. Sam H. Kornmann will have as his sermon subject at both the 8:30 a. m. and 11 a. m. services "Young Man, I Say Unto Thee, Arise."

The monthly meeting of the church council will be held Tuesday at 8 p. m.

Takoma. "The Eternal God Made Plain" will be the subject of the sermon by the Rev. J. Adrian Pfeiffer tomorrow at the morning worship. The fall and winter schedule will be resumed, with morning worship at 11 o'clock and Sunday school at 9:45.

Mr. Pfeiffer will leave tomorrow for the sixth annual convention of the Eastern district of the American Lutheran Church at Niagara Falls, N. Y.

A visitation meeting, at which Dr. Walter E. Schuette will speak, will be held September 20 at 8 o'clock. Plans for the church will be discussed by the members of the congregation and Dr. Schuette, who is president of the Eastern district.

St. Paul's Lutheran Church. Having returned from his vacation, Dr. Henry W. Snyder, pastor, will preach tomorrow morning on "So This Is College!" This sermon appears in the September issue of the Christian Century Pulpit. There will be no evening service.

Christ Lutheran, Bethesda-Chevy Chase. Religious Education Sunday will be celebrated tomorrow. The church school will attend worship in a body and the pastor will preach on "The Significance of Religious Education." The teachers for the coming year will be installed.

The Rev. Henry J. Whiting and George H. Whiting will leave tomorrow for Niagara Falls, N. Y., where they will represent the congregation at the convention of the Eastern district, American Lutheran Church.

The fall meeting of the congregation will be held at the County Building, Bethesda, Tuesday, September 21. The Rev. Dr. Walter E. Schuette, president of the Eastern district, American Lutheran Church, will make his regular official visitation to the congregation at this time.

Georgetown. "The Resurrection of the Dead" will be the Rev. Harold K. Beatty's sermon subject tomorrow at 11 a. m. The subject of the prayer meditation Thursday at 8 p. m. will be "Choices and Their Consequences in a Nation's Life."

Dr. Frederic Perkins To Preach Tomorrow

Dr. Frederic W. Perkins has returned from his summer home in Maine and will preach on "Why We Go to Church," tomorrow at 11 o'clock at the Universalist National Memorial Church. This will be the resumption of regular services after the union summer services which ended last Sunday.

A board of management meeting will be held Tuesday at 8 o'clock.

Father and Son Preach Sunday In Same Pulpit

Dr. Andrew R. Bird and Junior Bird at Church of the Pilgrims.

Father and son will preach tomorrow at the Church of the Pilgrims on the Parkway, at Twenty-second and P streets. Dr. Andrew Reid Bird, pastor, who has been away on vacation, will deliver the 11 a. m. sermon on "Our Marvelous God." Andrew R. Bird, jr., will preach at the 8 p. m. service. Dr. Bird's son is the president of the graduating class of the Union Theological Seminary, at Richmond, Va. and has been associate pastor during the summer at a Presbyterian church in Greensboro, N. C.

Dr. and Mrs. Bird have just returned from an eight weeks' vacation in Asbury Park, N. J.

Bible school will be at 9:45 a. m. The Young People's Society will have its regular vesper service at 6 p. m. Dr. Bird will conduct the 8 p. m. Thursday prayer service.

Westminster Memorial. The pastor, the Rev. Harry V. Porter, will conduct the 11 a. m. worship service, preaching on the subject, "The Constraining Love of Christ." At 8 p. m. the summer church school will hold its closing exercises. The students will present a play.

The first prayer meeting of the season will be held Thursday at 8 p. m. The pastor will begin a study of the Gospel according to St. Luke.

Gunston-Temple. The Rev. Bernard Braskamp, D. D., will preach tomorrow at 11 a. m. on "Not Victims, But Victors."

Central. The pastor, Dr. James H. Taylor, who has returned from England, will preach tomorrow morning and evening. During his absence Dr. Taylor was guest preacher at Marylebone Presbyterian Church in London.

Dr. Taylor and James Trimble attended this week the meeting of the Synod of Virginia at Richmond.

William Mansell, who has been assistant at the Central Presbyterian Church during the summer, will resume his studies at Union Theological Seminary, Richmond.

Chevy Chase. The Rev. J. Hillman Hollister will return to his pulpit Sunday morning after an absence of seven weeks. He will preach on "Divided by Five Thousand."

Representatives of the five young people's groups of the church will attend a conference next Saturday from 2:30 to 9:30 at the Holiday House, below Alexandria, Va.

The church Bible school meets at 9:30 with classes and departments for all ages.

Thursday evening at 8 o'clock the midweek prayer service will be observed. The Rev. Dr. Albert Evans will deliver the meditation.

First Congregational to Mark 72d Anniversary Tomorrow

'A Free Nation and a Free Church' to Be Sermon Celebrating Constitution's 150th Birthday as Well.

Celebrating the seventy-second anniversary of the First Congregational Church and coincidentally the 150th anniversary of the Federal Constitution, the Rev. Howard Stone Anderson will preach on "A Free Nation and a Free Church" tomorrow morning at the First Congregational Church.

The first fall meeting of the standing committee will be held Monday evening at 8 o'clock in the east parlor, and the regular evening prayer meeting will be held Thursday.

September 17, 1865, was the date on which the first sermon was preached to an organized body of Congregationalists in Washington. The service was held in the Unitarian Church at Sixth and D streets northwest, later the Police Court. The sermon was given by the first minister of the First Congregational Church, the Rev. Dr. Charles B. Boynton, at that time assigned the work of keeping the history of the Navy during the Civil War.

Before the present building at Tenth and G streets was completed, Congregational services were held in a building on Eighth street which was destroyed, and where the Jewish Synagogue now stands; in the old Columbia Law Building on Fifth street; in Metzerott Hall, above Droop's music store on Pennsylvania avenue, and during the winter of 1865 in the hall of the House of Representatives at the Capitol.

The Congregational Church of Washington was one of the earliest churches with an antislavery idea in its creed.

In 1865 a committee of the church called upon President Andrew Johnson and asked him to appoint a day of national Thanksgiving and prayer, to be an annual occasion. Mr. Johnson granted the request, and thus the national holiday of Thanksgiving was started by the Congregationalists of Washington.

Dr. Henry Ranck Back From Parley

Dr. Henry H. Ranck, pastor of Grace Reformed Church, has returned to his pulpit after two months' vacation spent in England and Scotland where he attended the two universal Christian conferences in July and August.

Dr. Ranck will preach tomorrow morning on "The Significance of the Oxford Conference on Life and Work and the Edinburg Conference on Faith and Order." He and his son, Prof. James B. Ranck, of Hood College, Frederick, Md., remained to the end of both meetings.

Rev. A. P. Shirkey Returns to Pulpit

The pastor of Francis Asbury M. E. Church South, the Rev. Albert P. Shirkey, will return to his pulpit tomorrow after an absence of several weeks due to illness. At the morning service he will speak on the subject, "What We Believe About the Resurrection and the Life Everlasting." After the sermon the Lord's Supper will be observed.

The subject of the evening service will be "The Commandments of Christ."

Thursday the prayer service will be in charge of the pastor, who will speak on "A Friendship With Jesus."

Calvary. The pastor, the Rev. W. D. Keene, will preach at the 11 o'clock morning service on "Can Persons Be Neutral in These Days?" At 7:15 the young people will meet. At 8 o'clock the pastor will preach on "The Undebatable." Tuesday evening at 8 o'clock the board of stewards will meet, and Thursday evening the pastor will talk on "The Secret of Endurance."

St. John Choir, Led by Howes, Resumes Place

Rev. W. C. White Will Preach at Services Sunday.

At St. John's Episcopal Church, Sixteenth and H streets, the choir of men and boys under the direction of Arthur W. Howes, jr., will return to service after the summer vacation and will sing at 11 a. m. tomorrow. The Rev. William Curtis White will preach on "The Man that Came Back."

Corporate Communion for the Business and Professional Woman's Group will be celebrated at 8 a. m.

St. Stephen and the Incarnation. The Rev. Paul D. Wilbur, rector, has resumed charge of the parish after a month's vacation. He will preach at the 10 o'clock service tomorrow morning. The choir will participate.

Chapel of the Redeemer. There will be service of morning prayer and address by Thomas G. Spence tomorrow morning at 9:30 o'clock.

Transfiguration. Services tomorrow will be at 7:30 and 11 a. m. The Rev. J. J. Queally, rector, will officiate and preach.

St. Andrew's. There will be services of Holy Communion at 8 a. m. and sermon at 11 a. m. tomorrow. The rector, the Rev. A. J. Wilder, will officiate.

St. Luke's. The Rev. J. E. Elliott, rector, will conduct morning prayer and deliver the sermon tomorrow at 11 a. m. The Girls' Junior Choir, with J. Gustave Carrington at the organ, will sing.

Holy Communion will be celebrated at 7 a. m. Plans are nearing completion for the first annual homecoming September 26.

Trinity. The Rev. Reno S. Harp, jr., rector, has returned from his vacation in New England and will preach tomorrow at the 11 o'clock service. There will be a service of Holy Communion at 8 a. m. and the young people will meet at 6:30 p. m.

'Substance' Topic Of Lesson-Sermon

"Substance" is the subject of the lesson-sermon in all the Churches of Christ, Scientist, tomorrow. The golden text is from 1 Chronicles 29:11: "Thine, O Lord, is the greatness, and the power, and the glory, and the victory, and the majesty."

Among the citations which comprise the lesson-sermon is the following from the Bible: "Now faith is the substance of things hoped for, the evidence of things not seen." (Hebrews 11:1).

The lesson-sermon also includes the following passage from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health With Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy: "If our hopes and affections are spiritual, they come from above, not from beneath, and they bear as of old the fruits of the Spirit."

Dr. Clinchy, Back From Europe, To Preach at Mount Pleasant

Dr. Russell J. Clinchy, who recently returned from the World Christian conferences at Oxford and Edinburgh, will preach at the opening service of the church year at the Mount Pleasant Congregational Church tomorrow morning at 11 o'clock. His subject will be "The Sign on the Christian Banner."

While abroad Dr. Clinchy traveled extensively in Great Britain besides attending these two conferences as a Congregational delegate. Later in the fall he will report to the church the proceedings and action of these two conferences which discussed the faith and work of the churches, and will also lecture upon his impressions of the European scene.

The fall setting-up conference of the teaching staff of the church school is being held at Vanderwerken Church, Arlington, Va., this week-end. The committee in charge, under the chairmanship of Miss Florence Maitland, has arranged a program on the theme, "Worship in Our Church Life."

Under the direction of the Rev. George A. Ackerly and Miss Florence Maitland, a group of eight young people will go to New York City next week on a tour of various religious and social settlement institutions in the interest of a wider understanding of the place of the church in the modern city.

The church school will begin its fall session next Sunday at 9:30 a. m. The primary department will meet at 11 o'clock in the church school auditorium.

Cleveland Park Community. Services will be resumed tomorrow morning at 11 o'clock. The Rev. Joseph S. Loughran will preach on "The Paradoxical Gospel of Jesus."

Mount Vernon Place. Dr. John W. Rustin will speak on "Being Christian in Our Generation," at the 11 o'clock service tomorrow. The choir, under the direction of Deane Shure, will sing "Vision of Christ," by Christiansen, and the quartet will sing the offertory, "Still, Still With Thee," by Speaks. At the evening hour of worship Dr. Rustin will preach on "Talking to One's Self." There will be special musical selections by choir and quartet.

The Sunday evening series of teas for young people will begin tomorrow at 6:15.

The prayer meeting will be held in the church school auditorium Thursday at 8 p. m. Several speakers will discuss "Jesus and Traditions," a continuation of the study of the Gospel of Mark.

Dr.E.H. Pruden Preaches Again At First Baptist

Back From Vacation, to Speak at Church Twice Tomorrow.

Dr. Edward Hughes Pruden, pastor of the First Baptist Church, who has returned from his vacation, will take as his subject at tomorrow morning's communion service, "Father, Forgive Them." In the evening he will speak on "An Out-of-Doors Religion." Beginning tomorrow the B. Y. P. U. meetings will return to the regular hour, 6:45 p. m. The first fall meeting of the board of deacons will be held Monday evening.

Elgin Smith, moderator, will preside at the church banquet to be held Wednesday evening when plans will be discussed for the new church extension program.

Metropolitan. Dr. John Compton Hall, pastor, has returned from his summer vacation at Lake Mohonk, N. Y., and will occupy his pulpit at both services tomorrow. The sermon theme for the morning hour will be "This Same Jesus." The Lord's Supper will be celebrated and new members welcomed. Dr. Ball's evening text will be "A Vacation With God."

West Washington. The Rev. C. B. Austin, pastor of the West Washington Baptist Church, will preach tomorrow at 11 a. m. on "Christianity Demands." At 8 p. m., "Benjamin's Cup" will be presented by the Sunday Players. The public is invited.

The church will hold its first fall get-together meeting Thursday evening a 8 o'clock in the Sunday school auditorium.

Chevy Chase. The Rev. Edward O. Clark will return to his pulpit tomorrow morning after a vacation in the Adirondack Mountains. His meditation theme will be "Into the Woods My Master Went," with observance of the Lord's Supper.

The young people's groups will resume their meetings at 7 p. m. tomorrow with a conference on their fall work.

A mid-week preaching service will be held Thursday evening at 7:45 o'clock with a message by the pastor on "The Parable of Unprofitable Servants."

First, Hyattsville. The Rev. B. P. Robertson will speak at 11 a. m. tomorrow on the subject, "The Hidden Life," and at 8 p. m. "The Revelation of Life and Immortality."

Sunday school will meet at 9:30 a. m.

Dr. Harris, Back From London, Will Relate Experiences Here

Pastor of Foundry M. E. Church Filled British Pulpits; Met Archbishop of Canterbury and King George VI.

Dr. Frederick Brown Harris, pastor of Foundry M. E. Church, has returned from a two-month stay abroad and will occupy his pulpit at both services tomorrow. His sermons on "See the Christ Stand" and "Are You Listening" at 11 a. m. and 8 p. m., respectively, will have as their background his unusual experiences during the summer.

He will discuss the World Church Conference on Life and Work, at Oxford; his visits to Paris and Berlin to study the church situation and his preaching engagements in Congregational and Presbyterian churches in London. He was a guest in the home of Sir Josiah Stamp and was received by the Archbishop of Canterbury at Lambeth Palace. At a garden party at Buckingham Palace he had a personal conversation with King George VI.

Music for the day will be by the Foundry choir under the direction of Justin Lawrie.

Sunday school will begin at 9:30 a. m., with classes for all ages. The classes for adults which joined with the Bolgiano men's class during the summer will resume their separate sessions tomorrow.

Metropolitan Memorial. The minister, the Rev. William Andrew Keese, will conduct the morning worship at 11 o'clock and preach on "Feed My Lambs." The chorus choir, directed by Robert Frederick Freund, will sing, and Miss Ann Evans, soprano, will be the soloist.

Trinity. Dr. Dan L. Ennis will speak at 11 a. m. tomorrow on "God-like Men." The choir will sing "The Lord Is My Light," by Buck. Alterations have progressed far enough to permit all departments to meet in their respective rooms. There will be no evening service.

Wesley. The pastor, the Rev. J. Luther Neff, will preach at the 11 o'clock service on "The Peril of Stagnation."

Lincoln Road. The new Methodist hymnal will be put in use tomorrow at 11 a. m. The vested choir will sing and the pastor will speak on the text, "And They Sang a New Song." At 8 p. m. the glee club will give three selections out of the new hymnal and the pastor's topic will be "Songs in the Night."

Eldbrooke. The regular schedule of Sunday services will go into effect tomorrow. The Rev. Walter M. Michael has returned from his vacation and will preach at the morning and evening services. At 11 a. m. his subject is "A Worth-While Profession." At 8 p. m. "Boasting in the Lord" will be discussed.

The quartet, directed by Mrs. Clara Young Brown, will sing.

Church school will be held at 9:30 a. m. and the Epworth League will meet at 7 p. m.

McKendree. The Rev. Samuel E. Rose will preach at the 11 o'clock morning service on "Does God Guide Us?" Following the young people's discussion at 7 p. m. an informal song service will be held at 8 o'clock. Mr. Rose's sermon subject will be "In Praise of Folly."

The midweek service will be held Thursday at 8 p. m.

Hamline. The Lord's Supper will be observed tomorrow morning at 11 o'clock. The service will be conducted by the minister, the Rev. H. W. Burgan, who has returned from the Adult Bible Class Conference at Westminster, Md. The Hamline quartet, composed of Miss Ethel Stickles, Miss Mabel Flehr, John Murphy and John H. Marville, will sing for the first time this fall, with J. Russell McKeever as guest organist. There will be no evening service.

Petworth. The service of morning worship will be held tomorrow at 11 o'clock, with the minister, the Rev. R. L. Wood, in charge. He will open the fall preaching program, using as his subject "The Cornerstone of Faith." The Sunday school, under the direction of Thomas Mears, general superintendent, will meet at 9:30.

The one-hour service will be continued at 7:30 to 8:30 p. m., with the young people leading the first half-hour of the service.

Plans are under way for a building fund campaign in October, culminating in the Josh Chest service November 7. The following committee has been named: W. R. King, Thomas Mears, Harry A. Beck, L. T. Jones, A. J. Marsh, C. D. Harbaugh, Eugene Otto, Mrs. F. R. Young and Mrs. A. S. Lank.

Union. The pastor, Dr. John R. Edwards, will use as his subject "The Forgiveness of Sins." The Lord's Supper will be administered at both morning and evening services. Members will be received at the morning service. W. R. Schmucker will lead the congregational singing in the evening.

Congregationalists Will Hear Brooks

At the services of Lincoln Congregational Temple tomorrow morning Dr. R. W. Brooks will speak on the theme, "Life: A Temptation and a Challenge." Holy Communion will be observed and special music is planned.

At the meeting of the Men's Brotherhood at 10 a. m. the guest speaker will be Lawrence L. Whaley, of the business office at Howard University, who will discuss "My Duty to the Community."

The midweek prayer and praise service will be held Thursday evening from 8 to 9 o'clock. The pastor will continue his series of discussions on "The Parables of Jesus." The public is invited to all services.

Volunteers of America Topic Is 'Better Idea'

"A Better Idea" will be the subject of the sermon by Lieut. Maj. H. Mills Eroh at the relief station, Volunteers of America, 471 Pennsylvania avenue northwest, tomorrow afternoon at 3 o'clock.

The services will be conducted by Capt. G. W. Raines and Capt. L. V. Eroh. E. L. White will speak at the services at Post No. 2, adjoining the mission, at 3:30 o'clock.

Civil Service Reforms Urged On Roosevelt

Ordway, Breckinridge Long Meet President Before He Addresses Nurses.

By the Associated Press.

Hyde Park, N. Y., Sept. 10.—Improved technique in examining civil service applicants with a view to obtaining the "best available personnel," and other merit system reforms, were advocated by Samuel H. Ordway, jr., of New York, in a conference today with President Roosevelt.

Ordway, 37-year-old attorney whose "hobby" is merit-system reform, will take office September 15 as the new Republican member of the Federal Civil Service Commission.

He conferred at the summer White House shortly before Breckinridge Long, former Ambassador to Italy, arrived for luncheon with the President.

"Agreeable Meeting."

Talking later with newspapermen, Ordway said he and the President had "an agreeable meeting of minds."

"There was no conflict between us in the general discussion," he added.

"The merit system in this country has been developed on a defensive basis as a substitute for the spoils system instead of on a dynamic basis tended to create effective personnel," Ordway said he believed.

Ordway, who has served on several private civil service reform committees and for two years was Mayor LaGuardia's civil service commissioner, said the "technique of examining is today in its infancy."

Ordway said the functions of a central Civil Service agency, properly established, should be such as to cover all civil employes, including diplomatic.

Addresses Nurses.

The President later told a graduating class of nurses at the Hudson River State Hospital for the Insane today one of the most valuable things being done by modern medical science was its work in mental hygiene. He told of "remarkable progress" made in this line and the "increasing percentages" of mental patients being sent home cured.

Before motoring to the grounds, the President and his wife gave a picnic at Mrs. Roosevelt's Vall-Kill cottage, at which Secretary Morgenthau and Breckinridge Long were present.

At the hospital, the President was introduced by Charles A. Hopkins, president of the board of managers, who related the President's father, a member of the board for 17 years, donated 125 acres of his property to the institution.

Concerts to Honor Dr. Henry Hadley

Memorial performances of music by Dr. Henry Kimball Hadley, who died in New York on September 6, will be heard in programs of more than 100 major symphonies and concert units of the Works Progress Administration's Federal Music Project, according to instructions sent out yesterday by Dr. Nikolai Sokoloff, national director.

"It is appropriate and becoming," said Dr. Sokoloff, "that all Federal music concert units prepare special programs of Dr. Hadley's music, or include one or more of his compositions in some program already scheduled, as a recognition of the significant place he held in American music, and of his influence upon native composers during the last 40 years."

The Military Order of the Purple Heart will hold a reunion in the Park Central Hotel in New York September 22 in conjunction with the American Legion convention, it was announced here yesterday by Herbert C. Trade Board Head Tells of Civic Needs propriation," he said. "We are inclined to believe that school needs have not been adequately cared for during the past several years, but we question the necessity for the extensive building program laid down in these estimates."

Regarding the Welfare Board's estimates, Addison said: "We can see no justification whatsoever for many of the requests made by the Board of Public Welfare . . . We cannot see any reasonable explanation for the large increase for relief in view of the fact that such a need has not been recognized in the past and that economic conditions in the community continue to be quite good."

Under cross examination Colladay stated that the board believed the Federal government should pay more than $5,000,000 toward the expenses of the District but that, in the absence of this, the board would be willing to go along on the present tax increases but no further.

Improvements Asked.

Most of the improvements asked by the score of civic organization spokesmen were minor in character, and a few, like the Chevy Chase group, came out definitely for a curb in municipal expenditures.

Several stated a willingness to pay more taxes if necessary in order to get the improvements they asked, but their statements carried little emphasis.

H. M. Dixon, of the Chillum Heights Citizens Association, asked that Eastern avenue be completed from Takoma Park to Brookland and that South Dakota avenue be extended to Riggs road.

Ernest J. Reed, of Congress Heights and the Southeast Council, proposed that the city incinterator be moved from the southeast to the southwest. He also asked for a site for a branch library and that the Anacostia Senior Junior High School be completed as planned originally.

G. A. Corbin, of Manor Park, requested more police on the ground that there have been robberies and that young persons have been molested in the area. He also asked that the people's counsel office be retained and that the Public Utilities Commission be allowed the additional employes it has requested.

New Type 'Lung' Costs Ony $200; Is More Effective

New York, Sept. 10 (AP).—Dennis Scanlan, president of a New York surgical supply concern, said today a new type "artificial lung" devised in Sweden and costing $200 or less to manufacture will be put in use in the United States for the first time next week.

He said the first one manufactured would go to Frederick B. Snite, jr., now in the University of Chicago Hospital after a 10,000-mile trip from China to Chicago in an "iron lung." Snite was stricken with infantile paralysis.

"The new lung will not, however, have its greatest application in infantile paralysis," Scanlan said, "but as a more effective apparatus for all types of artificial breathing."

The new lung, made of aluminum and rubber, fits only over the chest, leaving arms, abdomen and legs free.

Legion to Give Dance.

Fort Stevens Post of the American Legion will give a dance at the Indian Spring Country Club tonight in honor of its retiring commander, George W. Phillips. The newly elected commander, John T. Land, will be host and Thomas Mason, jr., department commander of the legion, will be a guest.

45% of Applicants Are Paid Too Much to Live in Greenbelt

The Farm Security Administration yesterday checked the list of applicants to determine just what sort of tenants it could expect for Greenbelt, its model community development at Berwyn, Md.

As things stand now, most of the Greenbelt families probably will have one child, will be Government workers from Washington, will own some of the furniture made especially for Greenbelt homes, and will have an income of between $1,400 and $1,499 a year.

No selections have been made, but 2,090 families are now on the "eligible list." Registrations will continue for approximately ten days yet, and then actual acceptances will begin. Only 875 families can be selected.

Approximately 45 per cent of the persons wishing Greenbelt homes have to be refused eligibility because their incomes exceed $2,200 a year, the administration said. Of the total number of eligibles, 1,680 are from the District of Columbia; 326 from Maryland, and 84 from Virginia. A total of 1,578 Government workers and 512 private employment workers have been judged eligible.

Next to the one-child families, those with two are most numerous. Coming third are the families without children. Approximately seven out of eight express an interest in buying "Greenbelt" furniture.

Police Investigating Bad-Money Suspect

Secret Service men last night were attempting to learn whether a 29-year-old colored man, arrested last night while allegedly attempting to pass a counterfeit $5-dollar bill, is connected with a counterfeit ring which has been operating here recently.

The man said he won the bill and another alleged counterfeit found in his pocket in a crap game.

D.C. Law to Delay Marriages 3 Days Is Effective Today

The District's marriage mill will be slowed down today by act of Congress requiring the elapse of three days between application to wed and performance of the ceremony.

The law goes into effect at 9 a. m. somewhat unexpectedly, inasmuch as those responsible in District Court for its enforcement had forgotten, until yesterday, that President Roosevelt signed the bill August 12 to be effective 30 day hence.

Word of the new law's impending operation apparently got around among couples intending to marry, however. Thirty-seven of them showed up for licenses under the old law yesterday.

Officials of the court have yet to decide whether to charge $2 old fee or $2.50 for the new licenses.

How To Stop Piracy.

The nine-power conference meeting at Nyon, near Geneva, to deal with the problem of piracy in the Mediterranean unquestionably marks an important turning point in the policies of Great Britain and France.

Hitherto these two great democracies have scurried to cover whenever the totalitarian states have shouted "boo!" The whole nonintervention program regarding Spain was merely a device for persuading Germany and Italy to refrain from doing what, under international law, they had no business doing anyway, namely, aiding a rebellion against a duly constituted government. And the fiction of nonintervention has been preserved despite repeated evidence of its nonobservance.

This time the refusal of the Fascist powers to participate in the conference suggested by Great Britain and France has had no effect whatever on the plans to hold that meeting. Indeed the achievement of an agreement for concerted action against the piratical activities of unknown submarines may be made easier by virtue of German and Italian abstention.

Because of this circumstance Downing Street and the Quai d'Orsay are probably not displeased with the Soviet government for having upset the apple cart by openly accusing Italy of full responsibility for the raids on peaceful commerce in the Mediterranean.

In the first place this action caused Italy, and because of Italy, Germany, to reject the British and French bid that they participate in the Nyon parley. And, in the second place, by forcing Italy indignantly to deny the Russian charges the way has been paved for the destruction of the offending undersea craft without the danger of any embroilment. Since, according to Rome, no Italian submarines are involved in piratical acts, any that may be destroyed by the flotillas of the nine-power group cannot be admittedly Italian.

Altogether the determination of purpose and the speed of action now displayed by Great Britain and France constitute an encouraging symptom. The weakness and timorousness of the democracies, including our own, have in large measure been responsible for the mounting war threat by encouraging the aggressor nations to act. Now that the worm is turning a better outlook for world peace can be anticipated. Now that pirate submarines are to be sunk at sight there will very likely be an immediate halt to submarine piracy.

The Regatta.

This year the President's Cup Regatta plans call for more than boat races. The committee will also offer a contribution to the national observance of the sesquicentennial celebration of the signing of the Constitution.

The oft-told battle between the Bonhomme Richard and the Serapis will be reenacted. Representations of the famous craft are being built by the Navy Department and, accompanied by a great fireworks exhibition, will maneuver in the Potomac off the Watergate on September 23. The day marks the 158th anniversary of the meeting of the two ships.

There is larger reason than this coincidence for the re-enactment, however. Had it not been for John Paul Jones' brilliant victory off the Yorkshire coast, a British fleet probably would have sailed to reinforce Cornwallis in the Chesapeake. Its arrival might well have changed the entire outcome of the Revolution. The Constitution, accordingly, might never have been written or, still less, celebrated.

In similar patriotic vein, the pageant on September 23 will also include a reproduction of the assault on Fort McHenry and of the birth of "The Star-Spangled Banner." On following days, swimming and water polo competitions will be staged while the week-end will be devoted to races between the country's best speedboats, run to the buzzing accompaniment of their diminutive cousins, the outboards.

Of even greater interest to a growing number of Washingtonians will be the schedule for the week-end of September 18-19. For the first time separated from the distractions of the power boats, the regatta sailing races will then be held. Over 200 entries are expected to report to the committee boat for races from Memorial Bridge around Hains Point to the Anacostia River and back. It is expected to be the second largest sailing spectacle of the year for the Chesapeake region.

Albatross, comet, moth and the snipe class Baltimore prefers—all will be on hand. The healthy sport of sailing should experience a permanent impetus around Washington as a result of the display.

The Strategy Of Mr. Lewis.

There is something decidedly anomalous in the decision of the West Virginia Federation of Labor to merge with the C. I. O. The latter movement, dedicated to the promotion of industrial unionism, should logically have nothing to do with a territorial form of organization. A purely local federation of labor, speaking for all kinds of trade unionists in a specific locality, cuts right across the C. I. O. theory of organization by industry, regardless of its geographical distribution.

The issue comes to a head in West Virginia because the United Mine Workers are far and away the strongest body of organized labor in that State and the U. M. W., developed under the presidency of John Lewis, is, of course, the spearhead of the C. I. O. This made it easy for the entire State federation to bolt when the A. F. of L. sought to discipline local unions which were sympathetic with the C. I. O. But to explain the action does not clarify the general picture.

The C. I. O., it is now stated, will everywhere fight disciplinary efforts of the A. F. of L. with just such tactics as those used in West Virginia. If Mr. Green's organization seeks to oust C. I. O. units these last will, if strong enough, take the entire local organization with them. Already there are said to be C. I. O. locals functioning in over 60 cities and counties and, in addition to West Virginia, several States have either formed or plan to form industrial union councils.

These tactics are apparently more punitive than constructive. They seem designed to weaken the A. F. of L. rather than directly to promote the development of industrial unionism. This last would logically call for creating effective unions in the relatively unorganized steel, automobile and other mass-production industries rather than corralling already unionized butchers, bakers and candlestick makers in limited localities. Such conscripted adherents add numerical strength to the C. I. O. They will doubtless encourage Mr. Lewis to threaten President Roosevelt with the number of votes he commands. But to merge a hodge-podge trade union membership in the C. I. O. does not of itself advance industrial unionism in any way.

In other words, the tactics further illustrate the nature of the internal warfare which is rending the camp of organized labor. It is not so much due to any difference of principle—President Green of the A. F. of L. has already made it clear that he has no desire to oppose industrial unionism as such. The split is, rather, caused by the effort of a very ambitious leader, John L. Lewis, to capture by degrees the whole A. F. of L. machinery. Of course, the general staff of the latter organization may be expected to resist this to the utmost.

From the C. I. O. viewpoint the seizure of local A. F. of L. units undoubtedly has one very practical advantage. It brings into the ranks of the newer organization a large number of those experienced labor leaders which the C. I. O. at present conspicuously lacks. Because of his need of able lieutenants Mr. Lewis may have decided that he must undermine the A. F. of L. before he can really build the C. I. O. But the stronger evidence is that he is fighting the older body because it stands in his way rather than in the way of industrial unionism.

Anna Hempstead Branch.

Anna Hempstead Branch, who has died in Connecticut at the age of 62, was essentially a poet's poet. This is not because there is anything esoteric, artificial or in any sense forbidding about any of the slim volumes in which the contribution of Miss Branch to American literature is enshrined. Her relative lack of popularity was due entirely to her retiring nature, her aversion to public performance, her consistent refusal to regard writing as a business.

Although frequently conservative and old-fashioned in her technique, Miss Branch was also a completely American poet. Her death in the old Hempstead house, which has belonged to her family for ten generations, was thoroughly in keeping with a life which was deeply rooted in her neighborhood. Some of her most charming verse, such as "The Connecticut Road Song," illustrates that deep and poignant feeling of locality most frequently found in the poetry of older lands. To the New England scene Miss Branch brought a singular sense of beauty and a rare imaginative quality which will undoubtedly be increasingly cherished by her countrymen as the years roll by.

But Miss Branch was much more than the poet of any vicinity. In such narrative accomplishments as "When I Danced With the King of Spain" she proved her ability to rank with Vachel Lindsay and other experimental artists in the limitless sphere of imagery. In the field of the sonnet she was as expert, if not as prolific, as Edna St. Vincent Millay. Almost up to the time of her death it was her custom to write a sonnet a day, primarily as exercise in composition. That most of these were never intended for publication is a further indication that Miss Branch was moved only by that indefinable force, lost as soon as it is commercialized, in which the essence of great poetry is found.

Nazi Cells In America.

The threat to American institutions embodied in the activities of Nazi organizations in the United States can easily be, and no doubt has been, exaggerated.

There is not the slightest doubt that the overwhelming majority of Americans of German birth or ancestry, regardless of any sentimental attachment they may properly cherish for the fatherland, are completely and whole-heartedly loyal to the United States. They have demonstrated that fact on innumerable occasions in the past. They can be expected to do so again if circumstances should make it necessary.

These German-Americans would be the first to reject the sinister philosophy of dual allegiance expounded by responsible German officials at the recent Stuttgart congress of Germans living abroad. There it was emphasized that all persons of German blood must accept and practice the Nazi creed and regard themselves as the outposts of the Third Reich in the lands of their residence.

A small minority, but perhaps a growing minority, of the German-American element apparently accepts that subversive philosophy. Organized in groups that take their cue directly from Berlin, encouraging the formation of military bodies whose resemblance to the S. A. and the S. S. of Nazi Germany is more than a matter of cut of uniform—they constitute the advance guard of Hitlerism in the United States. As such their activities are intolerable.

In vain does the German Embassy deny any knowledge of contacts between these Nazi organizations in this country and the Nazi regime in Germany. The Stuttgart congress and the establishment in the Berlin foreign office of a special division to Nazify Germans abroad constitute proof positive of the interlocking relationship. It is obvious that no self-respecting nation can long tolerate a situation in which a government abroad seeks control over the minds and activities of individuals whose allegiance to the country of their origin has been renounced.

Under the circumstances the demand made by Senators Borah and Burke for a thoroughgoing investigation into Nazi activities in the United States is thoroughly in order. The misfortune is that the warning given to these groups is too well publicized. If they operate under instructions from a single foreign center, it will be relatively easy temporarily to stop open activities and conceal evidence, to resume operations later if an inquiry seems to give a clean bill of health.

Fortunately, the Department of Justice has anticipated events. Following a storm of protests concerning Nazi summer camps, Attorney General Cummings some weeks ago ordered the Federal Bureau of Investigation to make an investigation. The findings will be awaited with interest.

And should it be shown that the oath of citizenship taken at the time of naturalization has suffered any violation the revocation of the naturalization papers of the Nazi agents should be immediate. Then they should promptly be deported to Germany, to Heil Hitler and goosestep to their hearts' content.

Viva La Romanza!

Spain's losses must also be reckoned spiritually. Trampled in the bloody mire which warring armies have spread across Aragon, Navarre and Castile, is a great tradition. Spain's romance is gone. Some will say this is a cheap price to pay for liberty. Be that as it may, the world is a sorrier place when the name of Spain conjures up a picture of embattled dogmas to replace the legends of the Alhambra.

Some chivalry, however, remains in the land of Dulcinea and Don Quixote. Harold Dahl, the American aviator, will not be executed, largely because of a letter his young wife addressed to the insurgent commander, Gen. Franco. "I trust your understanding," she wrote, after explaining somewhat lamely that her husband of a few months was flying for the loyalists only because he was unable to earn a living as a pilot elsewhere. To this the general gallantly replied that he had neither need nor desire to take the prisoner's life. Instead, he has offered to exchange the American for one of his own pilots held by the Valencia government.

Such an action is worth more than a regiment of wretched Italian conscripts to the rebel leader. And it is refreshing to hear that Spaniards, even after enduring months of Fascist or Communist salutes, can still kiss a fingertip in their own unpropagandized way.

Revamping an old one: "What was that war I seen you in last night?" "That wasn't no war—that was only Japan and China fighting."

Advance Notice.

From the Milwaukee Journal.

Asking for approval of a third term would not be asking approval of policies but only of a person. And President Roosevelt doesn't need a personal tribute. He is still popular. He is still liked and supported by many who could not agree with him on changing the fundamentals of our Government and heading everything up to the White House.

At least there is advance notice. The third-term idea is not being sprung on the country, as the plan to change our court system was, like a bolt from the blue. There is time before 1940 to discuss at every crossroads in the country whether at last, in the tide of time, with no "emergency," it is necessary to remove the old landmarks and go in for personal government more nearly on the current European model.

Comparing Generals.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Great generals and captains cannot be judged and compared collectively for their accomplishments and battle results. Each must be accorded and judged by the standards of the equipment and conditions in his particular day.

Thus it would not be proper to say the German general, Von Molkte, was superior to Marshal Berthier, Napoleon's chief of staff. As chief of staff, under Napoleonic conditions, Berthier was the coordinating brain back of major Napoleonic victories. Gen. Sherman was a great strategist who understood the fundamental principles of war as of his time, but to say he was superior as a military genius to Hannibal in the matter of supply is overrated. Hannibal subsisted for years in Roman territory after his communications had been completely severed subsequent to the Battle of the Metarus in the Second Punic War.

I would rather for the purposes of illustration but not for an evaluation of respective military abilities draw parallels between the knowledge of fortifications possessed by Gen. Robert E. Lee as demonstrated at Petersburg and Julius Caesar at Alesia.

For a cavalry leader par excellence the best soldier in Europe of his day was Marshal Joachim Murat. Whether Jeb Stuart could have accomplished the same at Aboukir in Egypt, or Borodino in Russia would be idle speculation.

We can easily accord Baron von Richtofen his place in the sun, because up to now we had no one but Richtofen to use as a corresponding parallel for aviation combat genius.

I believe we can find parallels between Gen. George B. McClellan and Fabius, the Roman general. Each understood the value of orderly retreating movements.

Therefore, with this basis for the consideration of parallels but not for comparisons, we can have two combinations of military leaders—using the year 1815 as a dividing line:

Before 1815.	After 1815.
1, Alexander.	1. Von Moltke.
2. Hannibal.	2. Lee.
3. Fabius.	3. Sherman.
4. Julius Caesar.	4. McClellan.
5. Ghengis Kahn	5. Stuart.
6. Napoleon.	6. Jackson.
7. Berthier.	7. Hindenburg.
8. Murat.	8. Foch.
	9. Von Richtofen.

Virginia Schools.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: With local taxpayers scheduled to pay into the Virginia State treasury approximately 149 per cent more in income taxes for 1937 than 1936 in Fairfax County, School Superintendent Woodson's financial worries should be considerably lessened.

Instead of financial worries let the health and welfare of the child be the chief concern of our superintendent in the future.

A much better school bus transportation system is required in our county, eliminating all dangers of overcrowded buses and the unnecessary exposure of children to inclement weather and dangerous traffic on our highways whilst waiting for the bus.

The practice of appointing teachers without a medical examination is another constant danger to thousands of our youngsters, exposing them to potential disease carriers.

The average taxpayer of Virginia is anxious to obtain the right to vote for members of his school board. Each voter in Virginia should get in touch with his respective senator and delegate to see that he be given this right when the next General Assembly convenes in Richmond. It will mean the end of many reconditioned and superannuated school boards in our State.

Taking Stock Of Labor.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: In the comparative calm in the labor world at the present time it might be well for our country for the citizens to take stock, to "cast up" and see whether or not our present method of adjusting differences between labor and capital has justified itself.

It is a far cry from Terrence V. Powderly, of the Knights of Labor, away back in the eighties of the last century, to William Green, of the A. F. of L., and John L. Lewis, of the C. I. O., of the present decade. The history of labor and capital, of the employe and the employer, during this last half-century is a record of strikes and of lockouts, of idle labor and of idle capital; and a thoughtful man is driven to ask whether or not the gains have been worth the struggle, the game worth the powder.

Many hundreds of millions of dollars have been lost to labor by the long contest marked by strikes, by lockouts and by shutdowns. The loss to capital is but little less, and the great third party, the general public, has in the end paid the bill.

Enforced idleness, or even voluntary idleness, for any man who wishes to work or should work is not for his best interest physically, mentally or morally. I think that most persons will agree that it is better, all things considered, that a man should have steady employment 300 days in the year at a given wage than that he should be employed but 240 days in the year at a wage 25 per cent higher. Besides the feeling of security due to steady employment, the laborer will share in the increased product as well as will all others.

But probably worse than any other result, or all other results, of this half-century of struggle and strife has been the bitter feeling that is evident on both sides; and we are driven to inquire whether there is not something fundamentally wrong with the method or methods that have been followed through these five past decades.

Any plan of organization that, after 50 years of trial, shows not friendly co-operation, but bitter opposition in the productive forces, is put on the defensive, and the burden of proof rests with its advocates and with its leaders to show that it is the best practicable method of bringing the two important factors of production into the proper harmonious relations.

The adherents of the present system of organization owe this to society. If they cannot do this, then they must admit failure and should stand aside and let other plans with other leaders take their places.

NOW AND THEN.

Traffic Suggestions.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: As one who drives in the city of Washington I want to give voice to the thought the stranger has on coming here and trying to find the way around.

"Around" is used advisedly, for it is regarding the circles I wish to speak.

Traffic could be made safer if every circle was squared, letting the traffic flow straight along in its natural direction, relieving the congestion which naturally occurs when the streams of cars have to move in a circular movement.

Then the street signs in black and gold are impossible to see, especially at night. White and black signs with letters and figures large enough to be seen at a glance might save life.

Another need is that all shrubbery at corners, where two or more streets intersect, should be trimmed down to allow unrestricted vision in all directions. Virginia also should take notice of this.

These things might save lives that are being imperiled or snuffed out every day. DRIVER.

From A Bankrupt Farmer.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: In view of the fact that a bill similar to H. R. 7562 introduced in the House and S. 106 in the Senate will probably be passed when Congress convenes, it is wise to know just who will be affected.

We read: "The Secretary of Agriculture is authorized to make loans to persons eligible to receive the benefits of this title to enable such persons to acquire farms.

"(b) Only farm tenants, farm laborers, share croppers and other individuals who recently obtained the major part of their income from farming operations, shall be eligible to receive the benefits of this title.

"(c) No loan shall be made for the acquisition of any farm unless it is of such size as the Secretary determines to be sufficient to constitute an efficient farm management unit and to enable a diligent farm family to carry on successful farming of a type which the Secretary deems can be successfully carried on in the locality in which the farm is situated."

I am hoping that all owners who were forced to lose their property in the past five years will write me immediately, so that plans can be made for the repurchase of our property. Owners who lost out are mentioned as "other individuals," I suppose, and are placed at the end of the list of those to whom this enormous amount of money will be available.

For reasons which dispossessed farmers can appreciate, I am not signing my name, but will guarantee that I'm a Maryland bankrupt farmer.

Worton, Md., Sept. 9.

Appreciation.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Now that our Bald Eagle Hill Camp for turberculous children has reached the close of a highly successful season with the return of its 125 boys and girls to their city homes all vastly improved in health and morale, I want to tell you and your associates on the staff of The Post how deeply grateful the officers and directors of the tuberculosis association are for your perfectly grand publicity throughout the camp season.

Without your paper's interest and co-operation we could not have brought the camp up to its capacity service for lack of adequate funds, for it was due in large measures to your good work that the public was made aware of the situation so that a rush of donations came to our aid. But in addition to this immediate and tangible result, the attention of the public was focused on the whole problem of tuberculosis control and prevention in Washington in a way that cannot fail to strengthen our campaign in the future.

I want you to know that we do appreciate your help beyond words to express and that we shall try in all ways to deserve your continued support of our efforts to prevent the further spread of tuberculosis in our city.

Managing director, District of Columbia Tuberculosis Association.

"Lewis Meant Flaunt."

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: All school teachers have pedantic leanings. So when a former schoolmarm, as she so facetiously identifies herself, objects to John L. Lewis' use of the word flaunt as to "flaunt the law," no one should be surprised and even less surprised when her correction proves her own inability to understand the spoken word.

Mr. Lewis did not mean that Girdler flouted the law, but that he was using every loophole in the law to squirm through. In a sense he was exploiting the law, but it is doubtful if any school teacher would understand any word not used in its "purest" meaning.

Mr. Lewis meant just what he said when he used the word flaunt: "at Girdler obtrusively and ostentatiously waved the law, or an antique section of it, in the face of justice Which, even if "Former Schoolmarm" doesn't believe it, can be done. JAMES BRYCE.

The Post Impressionist

Reply To Sylvia.

LITTLE AUDREY'S sister Sylvia (vid Post Impressionist, September 9) leaned against the doorjamb and laughed while all the time I was discovering why I couldn't go back!

* * *

A year passed. And another year passed and—still another year passed. There were no forces after all that time to draw me away from the city. You see, it was just a desire to get back for a day and review—in just the little time that it takes—what I had to partake of before the "forces economic" drew me to the Nation's Capital.

My state of mind was, truthfully, an open one. I simply wanted to be sure that I wasn't passing anything by in my young years.

And so, it was with little flourish that I went to Union Station. I knew I was coming right back. Without any unusual feeling of attachment to the scene, you just couldn't help but look about. Lights from the fountain threw rays of "white, and yellow, and red, and green," and there was a "blue sky overhead." I went in sans sentiment.

I stopped off at Newark, where I visited with Irynee, a journalist of small repute—one of the ambitious but hard-luck guys that always get the obits to do. Irynee was one who made the two-a-day—to New York and back—for years. There is no doubt about it. He never was strong. It was telling on him. I recalled he always stopped at the subway stand to get a day's supply of ironized yeast candy, filled with body-building vitamins and super-delicious chocolate guaranteed to hide the taste.

* * *

It was agreed that I would get up with Irynee in the morning and go to the city with him. It seemed to me that I had just gone to bed when I got jabbed in the ribs and was told to make it snappy or "we" would miss the 7:30 train. I said, "Where am I?" and rubbed my eyes again to see Irynee dash about the place like a madman.

I guess it's like strumming a ukelele, once you learn you never forget, entirely. So I jumped out of bed and dashed about as fast as I could, which wasn't nearly fast enough for Irynee. "Make it snappy, boy! Good gravy, you move about like a snail! What's happened to you?" The dizzy feeling of having somebody dashing about you and brushing you out of the way didn't help much, but I made it in time to keep him from dragging me out without a necktie.

We left the apartment and made a wild dash for the street car familiarly marked "Broad," and just made it. Some big lug in front of me raised his elbow as I stepped up and caught me on the chin. I shook my head as the bell rang, but recovered sufficiently to grab hold of Irynee, who was fast moving away from me.

We arrived at the Hudson Terminal and we got off, very unceremoniously, to say the least.

* * *

It was almost a natural feeling as Irynee and I stepped quickly up to the newspaper and candy stand. He reached over the candy bars and got some "Baby's Breath (It Kills All Odors)" and I automatically reached for some double-strength chewing gum. Ours were not the only hands that were flying over the stand and grabbing for things. Octopuses were in our midst.

As we hurried up to the railing and were ready to board the train, it all really started. Yes, they were humans, but you had to look more than twice to be sure. They deluged the entrance to the door and by the time that Irynee and I got that far the doorway was jammed. I was repeatedly admonished by my friend to "make it snappy; c'mon, let's go!" He really didn't have to say anything, for just then I felt a terrific pressure against my backbone and suddenly went forward. Then from behind me came the warning, "Watch the doors! Watch the doors!" It was the subway guard.

In a few moments after getting under way we managed to edge our way up the aisle a bit. We were riding along, but I do not believe I was standing. What then happened made me sure of it.

I looked up at Irynee and his face looked as though it had been dipped into a sack of flour, his eyes were closed and his head was leaning on a massive shoulder of a woman. I frantically looked about, as well as I could, and everyone was "minding his own business." I managed to release my arm from its trap and took off my hat and fanned him with the very little motion that was possible. He gradually came to and, shaking his head, mumbled something about "I'm okay. Gimme some gum. I lost my 'Baby's Breath.'"

We got shoved out of the train at our destination and Irynee suggested that we have dinner after he finished work that evening. I declined.

* * *

That evening on the way back to Washington I picked up The Post and read something about "puppets, automatons and intolerable existence" that little Audrey's sister Sylvia discovered was her fate.

My train pulled into Union Station. I was brought, eyes and face, to the answer to what I was wondering when I had departed from the city—temporarily, thank heaven!

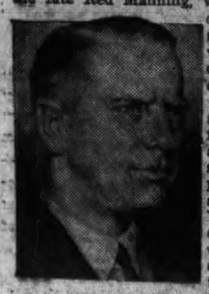
More on Office Boys.

JOHN SCINALDI, the chief office boy of the United Press Bureau in New York, takes exception to your correspondent's recent reminiscent story of the late Red Manning, who was the one and only office boy of the same bureau up to the day that he was dismissed for an accumulation of small reasons, early in 1912.



Red was followed by a succession of exasperating failures, including loafers and malingerers, as well as some earnest little incompetents, and things were in a bad fix on the night that Woodrow Wilson was elected the first time. Red walked in uninvited, tossed out two kids who were attempting to handle his old job and hired himself back, to remain until he died, a couple of years later.

Mr. Scinaldi says that Red Manning (may he rest in peace!) may have been a good office boy, but that he is one who can do and has done the work of three office boys. Mr. Scinaldi, whose parents were born in Sicily, rather pointedly states that he once did the work of two Irish kids, who reported sick, as well as his own. Red Manning was Irish, and Mr. Scinaldi has been privately informed that the boys he replaced were Italians. He says that on the day he relieved the two Irish boys and carried on his own work, too, he made more than 600 carbon-and-flimsy books for the telegraph operators and writers, besides running errands and handling copy.

"Some day," he says, "I would like to show you how I can make books."

• • • •

ALL RIGHT! Your correspondent will drop around some day, but John Scinaldi has challenged an expert. Your correspondent doesn't want to boast, but he was making books in the HX, or Chicago, Bureau of the U. P. about the same time that Red Manning was working in New York. He also had other duties.

He was writing a condensed version of the day's news on the old-fashioned, invisible Remington sausage grinder and spending a dozen or more periods of from 5 to 20 minutes a day in a telephone booth, phoning this intelligence to shorthand receivers at small dailies in Elgin, Galesburg, La Porte and so forth. But he was always being called on to pinch-hit for the office boy because the office boy was always enjoying poor health or his grandmother was at death's door or his father had got drunk and spent all the money in the house, not leaving him carfare.

The Old Man, Mr. Conkle, frequently changed office boys, but they were all alike, if not worse. Even if they did come to work, they would take an hour to chase a can of coffee for one of the operators, and you could find them riding up and down in the freight elevator, just for the travel.

So one day your correspondent asked the Old Man for both jobs and the pay thereof, and the Old Man said all right. Your correspondent then began storing away carbon and flimsy books for emergencies. He soon used up all the carbon and flimsy in stock, and the Old Man got another supply from New York, which quickly vanished, too. There were books hidden everywhere, and finally the Old Man complained because the carbon was drying out from exposure to the air.

John Scinaldi may be pretty good, but he is challenging the only newspaper office boy in all history who made too many books. Your correspondent is not totally Irish, but he is entirely non-Sicilian, and he doesn't believe that any race has a special gift for office boys. It is all a matter of individual knack and know-how.

• • • •

A LONG TIME AGO the Chicago American had a very good boy named Louie Cohen, a sallow, homeless Jewish kid from New York, who sometimes went out with the photographers to run plates back to the office. Louie once helped to scoop the town on some important pictures by a quick job of thinking. The photographer was an Ulster Irishman named Jack Palmer, who loved to fight and had his whole side blown out by a bullet while serving with the Canadian Black Watch in France, but came back to take news pictures for several years. He was one photographer who could not be assaulted easily.

This day Jack took some pictures and a crowd went after him, whereat Louie Cohen grabbed the plates, let himself into a police booth with his own key and phoned a riot call to the station house, while Palmer stood outside belting out guys with his camera box. Presently the cops arrived in their blue tallyho and rescued Jack, Louie and the plates, and your correspondent would like to add that Louie got a bonus and a dollar raise, but he will just stand on the facts.

The Once Over

By H. I. Phillips

Fish Brains.

A British zoologist, Prof. James Gray, says that the mind of a fish is similar to the mind of a human being. Well, in the light of what's going on all over the world today, it certainly would seem so.

• • • •

Fish, all the evidence indicates, are smarter than man. They rarely look for trouble, always keep out of the hot sun in the middle of the day and keep their mouths shut except when eating.

• • • •

Dr. Gray has conducted wide experiments which satisfy him that a fish forms associations between events, has a memory and reasons things out. All man has that a fish has not are a hard hat, sinus trouble, unpaid grocery bills and a desire to mop up the street with his neighbors.

• • • •

The whole subject has moved Elmer Twitchell to poetry:

I somehow wish I were a trout
Where it is impolite to shout;
What joy to swim about or float—
No fellow trout to slit your throat!

To be, perchance, a snapper-blue
And never have to wear a shoe;
To know that, cruel as some fish be,
They will not drop a bomb on me!

A herring. That might not be bad.
A salmon or, mayhap, a shad;
They're free from all the comic strips—
They don't have Sunday auto trips!

No bridge fanatic is his wife;
He never acts the least demented—
His movements are not regimented.

A bullhead swimming in a creek
May mentally seem somewhat weak.
But, still, you never see one wear
A placard marked "This Creek Unfair!"

Consider, if you will, the eel—
No codes jack up his evening meal;
He never, so they say, perspires—
He's never bombed by careless fliers.

I even think an oyster leads
A life fulfilling all its needs;
It sticks close to the ocean's bottom
AND NEVER HEARS AN ULTIMATUM!

The Old Routine.

Whene'er I say "the steak was tough—
The price was far too high,"
"Yours is the first complaint we've had"

International Aspects Of Reaction Cited By Writer.

Special Correspondence of The Post.

Rio de Janeiro.

AS LONG AS the international situation does not change, as long as the Brazilian coast continues to be a poorly defended frontier hundreds of miles in length and as long as Brazil is a sparsely populated gigantic nation with immensely desirable resources which the have-not nations need and covet, the celebrated "destroyer case" will be a subject of tremendous importance even though it be submerged by other news of apparently greater actuality and interest. It would be difficult to find a seemingly unimportant incident in which more dynamite and greater complications are packed.

The diplomatic bungling which attended the announcement of the allocation to the Brazilian navy, on a rental basis of six decrepit destroyers, first "to defend Brazil against enemies unknown," and then "solely for the training of Brazilian officers" caused an upheaval in two continents making an all-American affair an international matter. Washington and Rio were forced to back water, ignominiously, until both had thought out reasons to move forward again, reasons which they should have had ready in the first place.

Five Threads Tied In Difficult Tangle.

THERE ARE five threads tied into one indissoluble knot. First, Brazil is a raw-material, tropical, agricultural nation with a potential market for the purchase of manufactured goods which Germany, Italy and Japan have been cultivating assiduously for many years, and where all of these nations, curiously enough, long before the critical days which 1929 heralded in, have developed parallel interests. All have large numbers of "sons" in the republic, all have "colonies," and all three are interested in obtaining Brazilian products and in placing their own in the Brazilian market.

All three also are looked upon as "Fascistic" states. With respect to Germany there are several points which appear to justify the charge that she was the unknown power against which Brazil should defend herself. In the southern states of Rio Grande do Sul and Santa Catharina are large colonies of Germans which the Brazilian press now claims are not only German but Nazi and which the Reich is governing even though in an indirect manner. Last year a hubbub was raised because concessions to Germans had been made, or were about to be made, in the state of Matto Grosso and that these were extremely dangerous because of the "evident desire of Germany to gain more than commercial advantages from the exploitation of these lands."

The most recent cause for a hue and cry was the "deportation" from Brazil to Germany, not by the Brazilian government as Brazilian sovereignty demanded, but by "Nazi spies or officials" of a German girl who was in Brazil as "an enemy of the Third Reich." Furthermore, a recent editorial claims that German money has gone into the Integralista Party and that German officers are in its "army." On the other hand, another Brazilian paper has recently asked, Why all the furor when the federal government has been on the friendliest terms with Germany and when the relations between the two, diplomatic, commercial and political, have been of the closest? But many of these same things can be said of Italian and Japanese interests and activity. There is no doubt, however, of one fact. If Brazil is in danger she is poorly prepared to defend herself.

Case Pointed Failure Of Peace Conference.

IN THE SECOND PLACE, the "destroyer case" dramatized the failures and accomplishments of the Recent Pan-American Peace Conference in Buenos Aires. When the full story of Brazil-United States-Argentine relationships prior to, during, and after that parley can be told the wholer inner significance will come to light and reveal a situation at once humorous and tragic. The destroyer incident has shown that, almost without exception, all the nations of America stand with the United States and Brazil and that all the 1933-36 efforts to cultivate the Argentine were futile and wasted and that, when it comes to a showdown, it makes no difference where Buenos Aires stands.

It is only the inordinate pride of the Argentines which keeps them from admitting frankly that they have made a mistake and from begging the pardon of Brazil. They have done as much, indirectly, because, when the Brazilian Foreign Office, for the second time this year, has come out and let its heavy ax fall sharply on the Argentine Foreign Minister's diplomatic neck, it was deemed advisable, in Buenos Aires, to recede, to offer many explanations and to send high officials to Rio on badly disguised peace missions.

Recently one of the afternoon newspapers of the Argentine capital admitted that the nation was isolated in America. There is a real belief in Brazil that Argentina is actually a military menace to the peace of America and that if certain elements in that nation had their way, an effort would be made to recreate the old Vice Royalty of La Plata which, from 1776 to 1810, included Uruguay, Paraguay and much of Bolivia. This may be just as fantastic a menace as the European or Asiastic threat to Brazilian sovereignty. But the answer always given to the skeptical is that this is a fantastic world and see what happened to Ethiopia.

Domestic Politics Of Brazil Involved.

THE THIRD THREAD in this knot is the relation of certain factors in the internal politics of Brazil to the international situation. As the presidential campaign progresses the rumor factories are working overtime and temperatures run high when political parades and meetings take place. On three occasions in the past few weeks the Integralistas, the Brazilian Green Shirts and the most disciplined political group of the country with totalitarian ideas, have been involved in shooting affrays when its followers were parading.

The Communists are blamed for the attacks. But one of the two main candidates, Sr. Jose Americo, has scathed the Integralista Party by name as being as bad as the Communists on the other extreme. Dr. Armando de Salles Oliveira has attacked the extremes of right and left and feeling runs high in many circles "because the Integralista Party is too foreign," and that "it must be financed" by Germany and Italy.

If the destroyer incident was intended to warn foreign powers not to attempt anything, through the Integralistas or directly, it may have accomplished its result, indirectly. Albeit, in other ways, the Integralista Party seems to have come to stand high in the esteem of certain elements of the nation and to be enjoying a privileged position it had not had. Again the truth remains under a dark cloud and it is impossible to know what is what or who is who.

Foreign Concessions Also Important Factors.

ALLUSION has already been made to territorial concessions, but this is the fourth skein in the knot. Japan has a large concession in the Amazon region, and a clever Brazilian newspaperman, who is inclined to be more objective than alarmist and who recently went to Japan as a guest of the Japanese government, sees in the methodic manner in which the Japanese colonists have spread westward across Brazil and, eastward, across Peru, an effort to form a solid band of Japanese controlled territory which will bisect the South American continent from the Atlantic to the Pacific.

The Germans have been located in the south in large numbers since 1848, and it seems that they have been playing for big concessions in regions near those of the Japanese.

Thousands of Italian immigrants have come to Brazil in the last 50 years and, though many of them have remained in the cities, they are a strong industrial and capitalist element.

In popular belief these three nations are working together in international affairs. The gossip is that Brazil is the one nation in the world which has all that the have-nots most want—plenty of land for surplus populations, natural resources unparalleled and many other conditions which make it the ideal location for imperialistic activities, expansion or conquest. With strong nuclei within the nation, with a strong local party spiritually attuned to nazism and fascism and with a military and naval defenselessness which invites the greedy to think in terms of attack, there are many who believe that all the talk of danger to Brazil is not utter foolishness and that the nation must defend itself against internal and external enemies.

This may explain her wholehearted support of the United States at the peace parley and her recent willingness to lessen her trade with Germany and to come closer to Washington.

United States-Brazil Trade Seen Influential.

LASTLY is the matter of coffee, compensated marks and Brazil-United States trade and finance. New York's losses in the Brazilian market were Germany's gain, and this displeased very much all the holders of Brazilian bonds and the best buyer of Brazilian coffee — the United States. The visible and invisible balances of trade between Brazil and the United States have been favorable to Brazil and yet Brazil permitted Germany to rise meteorically from a low position to a top one in her markets.

The recent visits of Roosevelt-Hull-Welles to Brazil and of Macedo, Soares and Souza Costa to the United States, culminating, as they did, in a series of financial and military agreements, have, partly, as their purpose the correction of this situation. The loan or sale of $60,000,000 gold, the rental of six destroyers to Brazil, the joint reply to Argentina's objections to the latter transaction and the poorly veiled reference to foreign threats to Brazil have contributed to a new modus vivendi in America and to a new relationship between America and certain European powers.

The German-Brazilian trade trend must inevitably change direction. That between Brazil and the United States must improve. But the correction of this trade situation was done in such a manner as to strain the ever-bettering relations beween Brazil and Argentina and so as to cause Germany to feel hurt and aggrieved by Brazil and Washington. By osmosis, one supposes, too, Italy and Japan must feel that a poke at them has been taken.

It was not expected, perhaps, that the announcement that Washington would rent six destroyers to Brazil would cause the tempest which it did. There is no doubt that the reaction of Argentina was expected, and it may be that one of the purposes of the move was to state in this indirect fashion that Rio and Washington were fed up with certain Argentine attitudes and policies.

The die was cast and what the peace conference failed to accomplish the destroyers did. The other nations of America rallied around Rio and Washington and left Buenos Aires hemming and hawing. Rio's diplomacy took a great leap forward and has Argentina's on the defensive. If this clarified the American atmosphere it complicated considerably the world situation, i. e., to the extent that Brazil counts in world affairs. Germany did have a sort of outlet in Brazil. With the tendency to dam this up it may cause an explosion there, or here.

Cargo of Teachers Arrives to Winter In Eskimo Towns

By the Associated Press.

The Indian Service received word yesterday that its vessel North Star, with a cargo of teachers ready to "hole in" for a winter's stay in remote Eskimo villages, had arrived safely at Point Barrow.

Officials, anxious lest the boat be blocked off from the land by ice packs, hailed the news as assurance the young Eskimos would be able to continue their education through the long winter night.

There'll be no school for the 20 children at Galena, however, because their teacher "missed the boat." The man hired for the job got sick just before the boat left Seattle, and it was too late to hire another, officials explained.

Maybe the children won't mind, but the grownups may miss the white man who—for $1,800 a year—acts as teacher to the young, adviser to the grownups, town financial expert, medical aide, dispute-settler, and arbiter of family troubles.

NLRB Ruling Sought In Cumberland Case

Cumberland, Md., Sept. 10 (AP).—Representatives of the National Labor Relations Board sought a ruling today from Washington on whether an examiner sent here has authority to dismiss a case.

The ruling was asked in the action by the N. and G. Taylor Tinplate Co. employes for collective bargaining rights. Officials of the local union and of the company agreed to a compromise proposal under which the union, affiliate of the Steel Workers' Organizing Committee, would have bargaining rights for its own members without "closed shop" agreements.

Bell The Cat

By Barnet Nover

Unwilling Saviors.

WHEN CORNWALLIS surrendered to George Washington at Yorktown the British band mournfully played "The World Turned Upside Down."

It was an appropriate tune for 1781. But it would make an even more appropriate theme song for 1937. For the world seems almost literally to be standing on its head.

Developments are taking place today which would have been deemed incredible a generation and even a decade ago. Standards which seemed as immutable as the laws of the Medes and the Persians are being swept aside by the new barbarians as though they were so much rubbish. The weak are strong and the strong are weak, or at least act as though they were.

There is piracy in the Mediterranean, undeclared wars in the Far East and Spain and at at Nuremberg the representatives of democratic powers arrive in state to listen to diatribes against freedom.

Everywhere the spirit of chaos appears to be triumphant.

• • • •

BUT THE FIGHT against the dark forces is by no means over. It is something that there is a growing realization, in those parts of the world where old standards and old values still have a meaning, of what must be done if the world is to be saved. It is a step forward that the issues are being defined and clarified even though this process of education has involved very considerable destruction of life and laws.

There are three nations in the world which today individually and collectively threaten peace and civilization. These are the two Fascist powers and Japan which, under the impact of war, is also moving fast along the totalitarian road. This is the fact of which the world is fully aware. But who is to bell the cat?

Not I, says Great Britain, my rearmament program is not yet completed. Not I, says France, for I am in the midst of a grave financial crisis. Not I, says the United States, for the American people believe in neutrality. Not us, say the smaller powers, for how can the small and weak contend with the strong and powerful!

There is something to be said for each of these arguments. But whether right or wrong the inaction, which they seek to justify increases the dangers that threaten.

• • • •

WILL NOBODY then bell the cat. Possibly not. Certainly no nation is voluntarily going to try the dangerous task. But as it happens there are two nations which today have been thrust into the position where they must do it or be destroyed. The cat's claws are upon them.

These nations are Spain and China. They are both weak nations. The period of their imperial greatness is far in the past. Their military ability has long since been discounted. But at the present juncture of affairs the fate of the world, in a very real measure, depends on what they do.

The Spanish people had no intention in the spring and early summer of 1936 of playing the role of world saviors. Neither had the Chinese a year later. But it is not the least topsy-turvy aspect of a topsy-turvy world that this is today their potential role.

• • • •

THERE CAN BE no question whatever that if the Valencia government is victorious in its fight against the insurgents a very serious blow will be dealt the prestige of Mussolini and Hitler.

It was the Fascist dictators who largely made possible Franco's successive victories from Badaoz to Santander. And should the insurgent generalissimo be triumphant it will be to the Duce and Fuehrer that he will owe his triumph.

By the same token his failure would be their failure. And since totalitarian regimes cannot survive defeats of prestige, any more than Napoleon III could survive Sedan or Napoleon I Waterloo, so victory by the loyalists might well deal a death blow to fascism. At least it would seriously impair the diplomatic strength and the military prestige of the Fascist powers.

On the other hand the Chinese today can say with no small measure of truth that if they emerge successfully from the present struggle with Japan they will not only be saving their own independence but the peace of the Far East as well. A triumphant Japan, one that could mobilize the resources of a helpless China, is certain to mean a nation even less restrained in its insatiable appetite for empire than the Japan of today.

SO BY A VERY strange set of circumstances the future peace of the world has come to depend on the capacity of the Spanish loyalists to hold their ground and on the fighting power of the Chinese people whose fighting power, only a little while ago, the world would have estimated at nil.

It is a monumental paradox. But let it be hoped that it will not be a permanent one. Sooner or later the great and powerful nations of the world, those who believe in international law and international decency and peace may get out of the storm cellars in which they are now hiding. Sooner or later they may come to realize that if they do not all hang together for collective security they may all hang separately. And together these nations constitute so impressive an aggregation of power—economic, financial, military—that a common stand would have enormous value in preventing that collapse of civilization which seems so dangerously near.

According to the story, one little Dutch boy, by placing his finger in the crack in the dike, kept out the raging waters. That heroic role seems to have been thrust upon Spain and China. But Holland's dikes were well kept while the structure of world peace has over a period of at least six years been steadily allowed to disintegrate.

Manhattan Life

By William Lyon Phelps

'Emma.'

"Emma" is the title of the new novel by Louis Paul; and even as Booth Tarkington's Anne Elliott illustrates the time-division between her and Jane Austen's Anne Elliott, so Mr. Paul's Emma is a whole century away from Jane Austen's heroine of the same name.

Mr. Paul's previous novel, "The Pumpkin Coach," I admired immensely both for its characterization and for its narrative; and I think "Emma" shows an advance in the masterly handling of the story, and in the realistic pictures of metropolitan life.

• • • •

There have been many novels whose success depended largely on the depiction of friendships between men—"The Three Musketeers," "Beau Geste," "Trilby," "The Cloister and the Hearth," merely to name a few. It has often been said that friendships like that never have existed and cannot exist between women.

But I think that under contemporary conditions, where girls as well as men are bearing the burden and heat of the day, when suburban morning trains running into great cities are crowded with women going to work, the attitude of woman toward woman is undergoing a profound change. Most persons who consider the customs of today, discuss them from the point of view of the relations between the sexes, but I myself find in "Emma" a very remarkable picture of the honest and faithful and loyal and courageous friendships now becoming more and more frequent between women.

• • • •

For the most interesting parts of this strictly realistic American novel are the pages dealing with the friendship and partnership of Emma and Sally and later with Jean.

Although this novel shows the difficult problems of the poor in large cities, it is neither an economic study nor is it propaganda; it is a work of art, an admirable American novel.

15 Years' Pay Under Revived Law Refused

D. C. Wage Minimum Dead From 1922 to 1937, U. S. Court Rules.

In a single-word statement the United States Court of Appeals yesterday ruled the District's minimum wage law which went into eclipse 15 years ago only to be revived in a surprise decision of the United States Supreme Court, was not retroactive to the time when it was pronounced unconstitutional in 1922.

The decision consisted simply of the word "denied" which was penned on the court records in the suit brought by Ruth Cornett, a waitress, to collect the difference between what she was actually paid by Dick's Grill and what she would have gotten under the minimum wage act.

The waitress had lost in the Municipal Court in an attempt to collect $338.50 with interest, claiming that amount as the difference between her salary and the $16.50 weekly minimum wage fixed by the board. She then applied to the Court of Appeals for a "writ of error."

This was met with the counter-assertion that the law was wiped off the books in 1922 when the United States Supreme Court held it unconstitutional and had therefore annulled it. Attorney General Cummings subsequently held that since the highest court had ruled the law was now Constitutional, it had always been the law of the city, despite the temporary halt in its enforcement.

Under the ruling it was understood local employers of female and minor help would not be subjected to the danger of having to pay their employes huge sums in back wages. Attorney Samuel Boyd, acting for Dick's Grill, asserted he believed the ruling would be accepted as final. Hundreds of local establishments, including laundries, stores, restaurants and other places where female labor is used, had feared their employes would require back wages if the Cornett suit was upheld.

President's Son Ends Honeymoon; Ready for College

New York, Sept. 10 (AP).—Franklin D. Roosevelt, jr., returning with his bride, the former Ethel duPont, from a two-month honeymoon in Europe, put aside carefree vacation days today and said he was concerned chiefly with his approaching matriculation in the University of Virginia law school.

Franklin, third son of the President, said he and his attractive blonde wife had taken a "modest six or seven-room cottage" near the Virginia campus in Charlottesville.

"Do you plan to go into politics eventually?" young Roosevelt was asked.

"That's too far away," he replied.

British Sell Gems To Indian Rajahs

Mother India follows Occidental styles even though her marital status remains unchanged, according to a London jeweler who reports that several of the Indian potentates who came to the Coronation made heavy purchases of platinum jewelry for their favorite wives. Previously gold was considered the choicest selection, and platinum was classed with silver as the jewelry metal for the secondary wives, he says; but now the rajahs and maharajahs are having their finest gems set in platinum both for their favorites and for their own use on state occasions.

The orders from the Indian princes were the most important business which the Regent street jewelers received from the Coronation activities, according to this authority, who added that certain firms had sent their best craftsmen out to India to execute the designs there, but that this was found to be impractical because the men could not do good work in the tropical heat.

Hospital Is Assured For Charles County

La Plata, Md., Sept. 10 (AP).—There'll be a new hospital in Charles County—residents themselves made certain of that by oversubscribing funds necessary to provide construction.

The hospital—only such institution between Leonardtown and Washington—was approved by the last session of the Legislature contingent upon a public subscription to provide $10,000.

The campaign netted $10,948.85 promised by 1,400 residents, a committee created by the county commission reported today.

400 Pheasants Freed In Washington County

Baltimore, Sept. 10 (AP).—Information gleaned during more than two years of research guided Maryland and Pennsylvania game department officials today in releasing 400 Chinese ring neck pheasants on both sides of the State line in Washington County.

Neither State has had much luck with propagation of pheasants after the birds were released. Pennsylvania studied the problem and found the birds increased only in sections which have limestone deposits. The sections in which birds were released today have limestone.

Hagerstown to Install Auto Parking Meters

Special Correspondent to The Post.

Hagerstown, Sept. 10.—Hagerstown will install parking meters similar to those being used at Cumberland, after the national Antietam celebration.

Mayor W. Lee Elgin said he had checked sentiment here and found that it was almost unanimously in favor of the meters. They will be installed on three business blocks and then extended to other blocks if they prove satisfactory. Mayor Elgin also intends to limit the parking space to 21 feet for each car.

Conservatives Can Save U. S., Buell Asserts

People of 'Position' Solve British Problems, Says Foreign Policy Head.

By the Associated Press.

Stockbridge, Mass., Sept. 10.—An "intelligent conservative class" was listed today by Raymond Leslie Buell, chairman of the Foreign Policy Association, as perhaps the country's greatest need "if America is to solve the unprecedented social and political problems of our time."

Speaking before the eighty-fourth anniversary meeting of the Laurel Hill Association, he said the future of America "remains critical because of our failure as yet to find an answer to three great questions:"

1. Can the system of capitalism be reconstructed so as to prevent the recurrence of severe booms and depressions, and so as to meet the demands of social security and a rising standard of living?

Can Liberty Be Saved?

2. Can these economic and social needs be met within the framework of democratic government and without overthrowing the principles of liberty?

3. Can America succeed in keeping out of a new world war or in assisting to avert its outbreak?

"In Britain and the Scandanavian countries both capitalism and democracy are being reconstructed without violence and within the framework of tradition, partly because people of education, wealth and position realize the necessity of peaceful change," Buell said. "This attitude on the part of similar groups in America today seems lacking."

Buell said that while the New Deal had engaged in many economic experiments, "it has given little attention to the question whether the fluctuations of the business cycle can be reduced and little progress has been made toward a fundamental solution of our agricultural problem.

"America's political problem, elections and Congressional debates in this country are considerably below the level of similar elections and debates in democratic countries overseas. • • •

"It is difficult to believe that democracy can long function when government maintains a large section of the population on subsidies."

Display of Flag Is Urged Sept. 17

Businessmen, apartment house and home owners yesterday were urged by Dr. George C. Havenner, chairman of the City of Washington Constitution Sesquicentennial Commission, to display a flag on or in front of every building September 17, the date on which the Constitution was signed 150 years ago.

By proclamation, President Roosevelt has designated the period from September 17, 1937, to April 30, 1939, as one of commemoration of the signing and ratification of the Constitution and of the inauguration of the first President of the United States.

The Chief Executive will speak at 9:30 p. m. on the opening date at the Washington Monument grounds. A concert by the United States Army Band will precede the address.

Chiang Confirms Red Alliance Against Japan

Vital Railway Sector Assigned To Communists

Anti-Nationalist Warfare Is Renounced From Fear of Common Foe.

By the United Press.

Shanghai, Sept. 10.—The ten-year war between Chinese Communists and the Nanking central government, costing 100,000 lives and laying waste interior Chinese provinces, ended officially tonight.

The government of Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek, fighting against Japanese invasion, declared in a communique Communists and non-Communists, faced by a common enemy, now were united to drive the foe from their homeland.

Chu Teh, who led the Communist army since its formation, was officially appointed commander in chief of the Chinese Communist forces in North China.

His forces, now given the Suiyuan front northwest of Peiping, number between 75,000 and 100,000 men and will be known as the Eighth Chinese Route Army.

Chu Teh Pledges Aid.

"We asked the government to send us to the front to fight the Japanese. We are determined to resist the aggressors. Now we have received Chiang Kai-chek's orders and have completed reorganization of the Red Army into government troops."

The kidnaping of Chiang-shek by Communists last December at Sianfu resulted in an armistice. The invasion by Japanese troops officially ended the Communist-Nanking strife.

Negotiate Compromise.

The union technically abolished the Chinese Communist army, the Red Army and the Chinese Soviet regime. The Soviet government is now being reorganized into the "special administrative government of the Chinese Republic." The Communists renounced their policy of campaigning against the Kuomintang, the national party, stirring up industrial strife and confiscating the poperty of rich landlords.

In return the national government was asked to introduce a completely democratic system throughout the country, to pledge never to sign away any Chinese territorial or administrative rights and to fight Japan "to the end."

Paris Protests Nazi Charge of Aid to Loyalists

By the United Press.

Paris, Sept. 10.—France today sent a formal protest to Germany bitterly criticizing a speech by Paul Joseph Goebbels yesterday at the Nurnberg Nazi Party congress, in which Reichsfuehrer Hitler's propaganda minister allegedly charged France has violated her neutrality pledge by sending war materials to the Spanish loyalists.

Nurnberg, Germany, Sept. 10 (AP).—Reichsfuehrer Hitler flung a warning at Moscow tonight that "Germany never will be conquered now—either from without or within."

"Let this be a warning to those who would seek from Moscow to set the world afire," he declared at a gigantic ceremony of devotion at the National Socialist Congress.

The center of a spectacle of lights that penetrated through miles of a star-studded sky, of 140,000 brown-uniformed party functionaries, of the gleaming gold tips of 34,000 massed black-white-red Nazi banners, Hitler made his declaration in a voice husky from days of speeches.

Earlier Hitler, himself a bachelor had urged the women of Germany "to be yourselves and have more children."

Hitler's speech was the high light of a day devoted largely to laudatory reviews of the regime's accomplishments. There were no scathing addresses such as marked yesterday's meeting. Observers attributed this to the presence of ten foreign diplomats, including Prentiss B. Gilbert, Charge d'Affaires of the American Embassy in Berlin, who were present as guests of Hitler.

The object of the National Socialist movement, the leader told a cheering gathering of Nazi women, was the generation of the future. "Children are the highest ambition of man and wife," he declared.

Thousands of ardent Nazi women stormed Luitpold Hall to see and hear Hitler. As Der Fuehrer arrived they broke through double lines of his black-shirted "S. S." guard to reach the hall's entrances.

They cheered him frantically and laughed when he spoke ironically of "foreign assertions that German women are slaves."

British Resistance Is Urged by Labor

Norwich, England, Sept. 10 (AP).—British labor today called on the government "to resist intimidation by Fascist powers," but also to take firm action to promote the cause of European disarmament.

This was done when the trades union congress adopted the report of the national council of labor on international policy and defense, 2,544,000 to 224,000.

Quarrel Brings Arrest In 10-Year-Old Slaying

Elizabeth, N. J., Sept. 10 (AP).—A quarrel between two brothers led to the arrest of one of them here today, police said, in connection with the ten-year-old unsolved slaying of a Massachusetts girl.

County Prosecutor Abe J. David said Chester Pearce, 32, of nearby Union, was held in the county jail without bail after his brother, Leslie, 37, accused him of the fatal beating of May Belle Matheson, 19, in a Boston suburb in 1927.

Powers' Submarine Strength

By the Associated Press.

Italy, whom Russia accuses of submarine attacks on neutral shipping in the Mediterranean, ranks as the big submarine power of Europe. Built and building, according to latest figures, she has 99 undersea warcraft.

Cholera Strikes Near Americans At Shanghai

Plague Attacks Japanese Army as Chinese Push Gains, Shell Warships.

in southern Hopei Province for a month. If such an attack develops in force the Japanese strategy might be to press it clear to the Wuhan cities, southern terminus of the Peiping-Hankow Railway, and strike from Hankow down the Yangtze toward Nanking, attempting to hem in the vast Chinese military concentrations in the Shanghai-Nanking area. It is traditional in Chinese wars that possession of the Wuhan (Hankow, Hanyang, Wuchang) area is essential for military control of China.

3. Great Britain prepared to continue tests of the Japanese blockade of the China coast against Chinese shipping, and British officials here informed British shipping companies that, despite the war, British ships may call at Shanghai and discharge and load cargo at Woosung, Shanghai's down-river port. Woosung is controlled by the Japanese military and British activities there will contain a distinct threat of trouble.

Heavy Battle at Machang.

Peiping, Sept. 10 (AP).—Japanese military headquarters announced tonight the fiercest battle of the North China conflict was raging at tsin.

Both armies were reported fighting at times in water waist-deep following torrential rains which inundated most of the battle area.

Japanese said their armies had advanced within two miles of the heavily fortified Chinese garrison after a day-long attack.

At dawn this morning the Japanese infantry moved forward, sloshing through water and covered by an intensive artillery and air bombardment.

Japanese said that in the face of Chinese machine-gun fire they captured Liuhochen, on the opposite side of the Machang River, crossing the river on pontoon bridges.

Tanks and armored cars were useless, but airplanes reduced Machang to ruins, Japanese said.

Son Drinks Beer And Then Drives; Father Sentenced

Grand Rapids, Mich., Sept. 10 (AP).—A 44-year-old father occupied a jail cell under a 30-day sentence tonight because he admitted he gave his 17-year-old son some beer and then permitted him to drive an automobile.

Albert Slagter and his son, John, were arrested after their automobile careened over a curb.

In police court Slagter told Judge Edward G. Burleson he is estranged from his wife, with whom the boy has been living. He said he took his son out, promising to "show him a good time" and thus "win the boy's favor."

"Any father who takes a boy out for a good time, gives him beer for the first time and then lets him drive while intoxicated should pay the penalty usually meted out to drunken drivers," the judge said. He revoked the boy's driving license, but suspended a $50 fine against him.

U. S. Residents In China Start General Exodus

Majority of the 7,000 Americans in Area Ready to Leave.

By the Associated Press.

Shanghai, Sept. 10.—From widely separated parts of China hundreds of Americans today were being evacuated to escape the perils of the ever-spreading war.

Officials estimated there were 7,000 nonmilitary Americans still in China, and the majority of these, it was believed, will leave the country in the next few weeks.

The constant urging of American consular officials in China and the advice of Secretary of State Hull were believed to have convinced most of the American citizens still here they would have to depart.

Missionaries Remain.

Many American missionaries in the central district prepared to remain, insisting their first duty was to their Christian converts and their missions.

Summer resorts in the central area were gradually emptying of their American visitors. The same was true of the coastal resorts.

American misisonaries in northern Kiangsu and Anhwei provinces, north of the Yangtze River, were urged by consuls to proceed to the port of Haichow, north of Shanghai, where they could be picked up by naval vessels. One hundred and twenty-five Americans at Mokanshan, hill resort in Chekiang, will be brought out to Shanghai as soon as transportation is available.

Consulates Closed.

American withdrawals from the southern ports of Amoy, Foochow and Swatow have been under way for several days and the American consulates in those cities are being closed.

Swatow today suffered another Japanese air raid, second in as many days, and American residents took refuge in the naval patrol ship Asheville, in the harbor. British destroyers were speeding to Swatow from Hongkong and Shanghai to protect or evacuate, if necessary, British residents.

Two thousand non-military Americans remain in Shanghai, mostly businessmen and their families. Nearly all of these plan to remain if possible, refusing to abandon their businesses. Some of the Shanghai Americans have been thrown out of jobs by the war and are destitute.

Soviet Threat Of War Spurs Piracy Accord

zones will be allocated to other Mediterranean powers.

The agreement, as reached so far, has been submitted to all participating governments for approval, and informed sources said it was expected a complete protocol would be agreed to tomorrow night.

The Soviet delegate's outburst came shortly after Yvon Delbos, French foreign minister elected to the presidency, opened the conference.

Italy was not represented, nor was her ally, Germany, nor Albania, whose foreign policy is dominated by Rome. The Italian and German governments declined to sit at the conference table with Soviet Russia, which in two stiff notes already had accused Italian submarines of sinking Russian ships. Italy contended she would be placed in the position of an accused defendant if she attended.

Nations Represented.

Besides Russia and the sponsors, Britain and France, these nations sent delegates: Greece, Turkey, Yugoslavia, Egypt, Rumania and Bulgaria.

Both at Nyon and Geneva, where the League of Nations council met, European diplomats worked at high pressure hardly exceeded since the weeks preceding the World War, attempting again to prevent a world conflagration.

The League Council put on its agenda for next week a hearing of the Valencia government's accusations that Italian warships had deliberately sunk Spanish merchantmen.

Later a committee of 28 nations tackled the problem of reform of the League covenant. Some countries, especially France and Russia, want the punitive features of the covenant strengthened instead of weakened to prevent war.

Await Chinese Demand.

Others, including some South American states, favor an attenuated League which countries now outside, like the United States, Germany, Japan and Brazil, would be more disposed to join.

The League waited tonight to hear from another world trouble spot, the Far East. China was expected shortly to make demands for League action against what she calls Japan's "aggressions."

Litvinoff in his speech at Nyon said that in the term piracy should be included not only acts in the Mediterranean, but also the acts of surface vessels and airplanes which he said had sunk several dozens of vessels in the Atlantic Ocean.

"The issue is one of safeguarding freedom of navigation in every sea," the fiery Russian declared.

"Disgraceful Phenomenon."

"Such a disgraceful phenomenon as piracy on the high seas—organized not as in ages past by individual criminals, gangs or mutineers, but by the government of a European state—was bound to come to the world's attention."

This piracy, he said, had been committed by "submarines whose names had been painted over, whose national flag was concealed, whose crew wore disguised uniforms."

Litvinoff said Russia was ready to take part in collective measures against the pirates and that she was confident the measures would be "effective and immediate." But he went on:

"The Soviet Union cannot remain inactive in the hope that its legitimate rights may perhaps be defended by other states or by an international organization."

"The Soviet government," Litvinoff said, "cannot allow anyone to destroy its state property."

Obviously referring to the refusals of Italy and Germany to come to Nyon, the Russian shouted:

"Only those states can avoid participation in this conference which consider themselves guaranteed against piracy either because they organize it themselves as an instrument of national policy or because of their extreme intimacy with the pirates."

Following Litvinoff, Eden rose to express regret Italy and Germany were not represented, but added that should not prevent the conference from doing its duty.

Delbos, opening the meeting, also regretted the two fascist powers, "because of reasons affecting them," had boycotted the meeting, but urged the delegates to take speedy action against the submarine pirates.

Delbos spoke with the united authority of the British and French governments, who laid before the conference, in the shape of a protocol, the dramatic plan for elimination of "pirate" submarines from the Mediterranean sea lanes.

Anglo-French agreement on all points had been announced just before the conference began.

The plan included the use of warships, airplanes and dirigibles to safeguard merchant shipping against submarines, with convoys such as were used during the World War.

Give Up Gijon, Surging Hosts Urge Loyalists

By the Associated Press.

Hendaye, Franco-Spanish Frontier, Sept. 10 (AP).—Internal troubles like those which forced the surrender of Santander last month were reported in insuregent dispatches tonight to be hastening the fall of Gijon, last government-held seaport on the Bay of Biscay coast.

Crowds of demonstrators were said to have marched in Gijon streets, demanding early capitulation to the offensive of insurgent Gen. Franco, whose army is closing in on all sides.

Propaganda Dropped.

Insurgent planes carrying propaganda as well as bombs flew over Gijon. First they bombed the port of Gijon and other coastal objectives and then flew over again to distribute thousands of proclamations urging the people of Gijon to abandon resistance.

Insurgent communiques said that Franco's offensive to wipe the last government patch off the map of northwestern Spain was progressing favorably.

Defenses Broken.

Insurgents declared they had broken government resistance in the high Europa mountain sector, keypoint in the defenses of Gijon, after 15 hours' bitter fighting. The defense lines broke and fled after furious hand-to-hand combat on mountain trails more than 1,000 feet above the sea.

The latest advances brought insurgent artillery within easy range of the historic peak of Covadonga, grimly held by Asturian miners who form the backbone of Gijon's defense.

against the entrance or egress of Chinese shipping.

"The Chinese authorities have announced their intention, in view of the blockade, to take appropriate action against all Japanese naval vessels along the Chinese coast and have requested that naval and merchant vessels of third powers avoid proximity to Japanese naval vessels and military transports and have their respective national colors painted on their top decks in a conspicuous manner."

River in Fukien Closed.

"The Chinese authorities have also announced the following:

"(a) The mouth of Min Kiang River in Fukien province has been closed to navigation and all shipping through that place has been suspended as of September 4.

"(b) Beginning September 9, no foreign merchant vessels will be permitted to navigate at night in waters between Bocca Tigris forts and Canton.

"The department has been informed that the Hydrographic Office of the Navy Department is including the above announcement in the Hydrographic Radio Bulletin to be issued today and in the Daily Memorandum for the information of mariners issued by the Hydrographic Office, under the heading "Caution Regarding Dangers to Merchant Ships in Far Eastern Waters."

Colored Airport Opens Tomorrow

A 5,000-foot parachute jump by Clarence McDonald, 25, colored, 1837 Twelfth street northwest, will mark the opening of a commercial airport and instruction field for colored persons at Forestville, Md., tomorrow at 4 p. m.

Jesse McCoy Hanson, colored, 1018 Fourth street northwest, instructor of aeronautics at the Community Center, Dunbar High School, is owner of the new field. It will be the first airport for colored people in this section, and, according to Hanson, the only one in the East.

Over the Coffee

By Harlan Miller

I wonder whether Alice Longworth is "making magic" against Franklin Roosevelt these days, as she confesses so charmingly she did against President McKinley when her father was vice president?

* * * *

Ten Senators live at the Mayflower (the gay devils), ten at the Shoreham, and eight at the Wardman Park, all super inns . . . That ought to keep 'em close to the public pulse . . . And the Willard and Roosevelt furnish shelter for three Senators apiece.

* * * *

I can testify only to the complete decorum of the three Senators who dwell at the Westchester; so far I haven't heard any rumpus late at nights, nor any complaints.

"—statesman into drydock"

Probably the wiliest blonde in town is the handsome girl who wears her Phi Beta Kappa key on a chain around her neck, where it is visible publicly only when she goes in swimming . . . Doesn't want to be suspected a brain truster.

* * * *

Warm weather fantasy: I'd like to see a frowning duel between Jack Garner and John L. Lewis, with their matchless eyebrows . . . Washington probably has more golf clubs per capita than any city in the world; and even one of the last surviving miniature golf course, an elaborate one calculated to test the stamina of a retired general or a frail Supreme Court justice.

* * * *

What Herr Joe Goebbels of Berlin apparently is trying to intimate is that Cordell Hull, our good gray Secretary of State, is a pinko . . . To which the only possible answer is tee-hee . . . Anyhow, during the present Administration it would be smarter for Herr Joe to attack republics and not democracies.

* * * *

There's a physician with an office in the Capitol, who keeps an eagle eye on the Senators and Representatives, nipping ailments free of charge which might turn out to be expensive and deprive the Republic of a good many valuable ayes and noes . . . Sometimes they go to him with a mere tummyache, but he detects sounds of maladjustment in the chassis and rushes them off to a Government hospital for a complete overhauling . . . A few go into drydock at the Naval Hospital. Even a point of personal privilege doesn't save 'em.

* * * *

Would you bet that the President's name is or isn't in the Washington phone book . . . Well, it isn't, nor is the name of any member of his immediate family. But the White House number is, of course—it's National 1414, in case you ever want to put in a station-to-station call some evening to tell Mr. Roosevelt how to make everybody happy.

"—Is Princess Alice making magic?"

Westerners are pretty well agreed that most whites in Washington are politer to colored people than some colored people are to the pale faces . . . The inlanders detect a queer mixture of aggressiveness and defiant arrogance in the manners of some of the colored brethren, as if there were some danger of the emancipation proclamation being repealed . . . So far no Representative has drafted a bill about this. Most colored people, of course, have excellent manners.

* * * *

The Hon. Dan Roper, Secretary of Commerce (greatest Secretary of Commerce since Hoover) is not only a Sig Alph, but also a Phi Beta Kappa, and I mention this only because the blonde with the Phi Beta Kappa key around her neck (up in paragraph 4) reminded me of him—they are so different. I'll bet he doesn't wear his around his neck, though.

* * * *

Espionage has its queer vagaries . . . Some of the boys on the Hill are convinced that some of the foreign observers maintain careful tab on them, and have lists to show which American statesmen grow sentimental under the influence of beer, which are for peace at any price, which were combat men in the late war for peace and democracy at any price, and which of them wear long underwear all the year 'round . . . I'd like to have a peep at that last one . . . A young idealist in one of the Government departments spent $27.50 out of his own pocket for stenographic hire to save his office force from working overtime during the Labor Day week-end . . . Must be a bachelor.

She Gets a License to Pilot — — — a Motorcycle

D. C.'s Lone Girl Motorcyclist Stormed Loudly to Get Permit

By dint of stamping her foot Sally Robinson, of 2120 H street northwest, has become the only girl in Washington licensed to ride a motorcycle.

Miss Robinson—all 88 pounds of her—has been operating motorcycles on and off since 1928, but last spring she decided she wanted a permit. The policeman assigned to officiate at her examination had different ideas, however. Although the District has no law against women motorcyclists, this examiner apparently thought it should have.

"First he said I was too little, then he said I was too young," Miss Robinson declaimed yesterday, malice toward all policemen shining in her eyes. She is 27 years old and 4 feet 11 inches tall, and didn't see what either factor had to do with her sitting behind the handlebars of a motorcycle.

Passes Examination Twice.

"I passed the written examination all right—passed it twice, in fact. The first time I got 80 on it, but that wasn't good enough for him so I went down again and got 92. When that didn't satisfy him, I got my lawyer.

"Well, that cop looked from me to the lawyer, and from the lawyer to me, and then he said I could take my road test," she continued. Her difficulties had not ended, however. Thinking all was well, she said goodby to the lawyer and started out for the road test.

Then the policeman announced he would not ride with her in the sidecar of the machine he provided for the test—he said he was afraid to.

But when the test was over, the examiner announced, "Lady, you handle it as well as a man could. Your balance is swell, and you know the machine. But I didn't see you kick it over so I can't give you the permit."

"Cussing Is Effective."

That was when Miss Robinson started "cussing him out." "I called him such names—well, I was ashamed of myself. But it worked, and I have the permit."

Miss Robinson uses the smallest type of machine built, but at that it weighs 325 pounds, nearly four times as much as she does. Despite the fact it occasionally falls on her, she insists she would rather ride that machine than eat when she's hungry. As for automobiles, she has no use for them whatsoever.

At present her chief goal is membership in the Capitolians, a newly formed motorcycle club of which Lynn Cook, 1515 U street northwest, is president. She will be the only girl in the club, which does not share the Police Department's prejudice against the sex.

Welfare Board Post Is Given ToO'Donoghue

Judge Doyle Resigns, Denies Huff Appointment Is Cause.

Appointment of Daniel W. O'Donoghue, jr., to the Board of Public Welfare was announced yesterday by the District Commissioners, simultaneously with their disclosure that former Judge Michael M. Doyle has resigned his place on the board.

O'Donoghue, son of the District Court justice, will fill out Judge Doyle's term, which expires June 30, 1938. The latter's resignation was effective August 1, but was not announced pending selection of a successor.

O'Donoghue is probably the youngest man ever appointed to the board. The post carries no salary. He will attend his first meeting September 28, when he probably will be assigned to the child welfare committee.

The appointee, whose offices are in the Union Trust Building, has been practicing law here for eight years. He has been teaching in night classes at Georgetown University Law School for five years, at present conducting a course in suretyship.

He is a graduate of Georgetown and took post-graduate work at the University of Southern California. O'Donoghue, who is a director of the Union Trust Co., is married and lives at 2229 Bancroft place northwest.

Judge Doyle had been a member of the Board of Public Welfare since its establishment in 1926, previously serving three years on the old Board of Children's Guardians.

He was chairman of the board's penal committee and was a leader in the campaign to have Col. William L. Peak, superintendent of Lorton Reformatory, named superintendent of District penal institutions. The movement failed, however, when Ray L. Huff received the appointment.

Judge Doyle yesterday asserted that the Commissioners' decision to install Huff, rather than Peak, in the position had nothing to do with his resignation.

G.W.U. Given Unit Of Phi Beta Kappa

Phi Beta Kappa, college honor society, chartered a chapter at George Washington University at a meeting of the organization's council in Atlanta, Ga., yesterday. This will be the first Phi Beta Kappa unit in Washington. One hundred and thirty universities have chapters.

The right to wear the Phi Beta Kappa key is the highest honor that can be achieved by scholarship.

Dr. Cloyd Heck Marvin, president of George Washington, was in Atlanta to attend the Phi Beta Kappa council meeting. He was accompanied by Dr. Charles Mann, trustee; Dean George N. Henning, Dean Henry Grattan Doyle and Dean Robert W. Bolwell.

'Missing' Girl Only On Shopping Tour

A 17-year-old girl's trip to the beauty shop Thursday caused a mild flurry at police headquarters that did not abate until evening, when she returned home.

The girl, Kathleen Shanahan, stopped in Washington for a day on her way to college in Indiana from her home in Puerto Rico. Her uncle, Dr. S. R. Karples, 3549 Sixteenth street northwest, notified police she was missing when she failed to return around noon.

In the evening Miss Shanahan returned to a friend's home on Connecticut avenue, where she was staying. Dr. Karples said she apparently had spent her time shopping, at the beauty parlor, and at a theater.

Navy Destroyers To Be Streamlined

In the future the Navy's fighting ships will be streamlined.

Twelve new destroyers, to be completed in 1939, will be the first ships to be built on the principle of streamlining.

Superstructure on the new vessels will be symetrically curved to reduce wind resistance. It is hoped that the modifications will increase speed without reducing the fighting efficiency of the new ships.

The new ships may carry more than 12 torpedo tubes, as well as five 5-inch guns for use against ships or aircraft.

Coleman Will Head University Citizens

Henry I. Coleman was elected president of the American University Park Citizens Association last night in a meeting at Hurst Hall, American University.

Coleman succeeds Linnaeus T. Savage as president of the group. Other officers elected were Mrs. Blaine McCollum, vice president; Miss Elaine Eppley, secretary; Mrs. Molly C. Wyland, assistant secretary, and Mrs. Ora G. Visel, treasurer.

Delegates to the Federation of Citizens Associations named last night were Thomas E. Lodge, now president of the federation, and F. S. Sanford.

D. C. Treating 5 Cases Of Infantile Paralysis

Infantile paralysis, which claimed 612 new victims in the Nation in the week ended September 4, still is going extremely light on the District. The Health Department announced yesterday no new cases have been reported this week. There have been 15 since January 1, 8 of which were in August and 3 this month. There have been 2 deaths. Five cases are unde rtreatment now.

H. B. Stabler Feted On His Retirement

Harold B. Stabler, plant extensions engineer of the Chesapeake & Potomac Telephone Co., who retired from active service Thursday after completing 40 years of telephone service, was tendered a farewell dinner at the Kenwood Golf and Country Club by 100 of his friends and associates. A feature of the evening was the presentation of a camera and a baro-hygro-thermoscope. Accompanying the gifts was an elaborate testimonial signed by the assembled guests.

Stabler was born in Sandy Spring, Md. on March 26, 1875, just a few short weeks before Alexander Graham Bell, first successfully transmitted the human voice over an electric wire, thus creating the happy coincidence of the birth year of the telephone being also the birth year of a man who has spent 40 years in the telephone service.

Having graduated from George Washington University with a B. S. degree in electrical engineering, Stabler was made division plant engineer of the telephone company in 1908. In 1912 he became equipment engineer of the Chesapeake & Potomac Telephone companies, serving the District, Maryland, Virginia, and West Virginia, and in 1920 he was appointed engineer of studies and estimates for the same group. He was made plant extensions engineer of the Washington company in 1929, which position he occupied up to the time of his retirement.

Naval Cadets Assigned.

Future assignments for 15 Naval Reserve aviation cadets, designated as naval aviators August 25, were announced yesterday by the Navy Department. Fourteen have orders to active duty with aircraft squadrons of the United States Fleet. One, commissioned a second lieutenant in the Marine Corps, will report about October 15 for active duty with the aviation unit, Fleet Marine Force, Quantico, Va.

200 Approve Fidelity Plan OfReopening

Shareholders Storm the Receiver's Office to Voice Assent.

Many More Expected to Give Approval Next Week.

Two hundred shareholders of the closed Fidelity Building and Loan Association stormed the office of the receiver early yesterday, responding to the latest proposal to reopen the bank as the First Federal Savings & Loan Association.

James H. Nolan, receiver, stated many agreements to purchase shares in the First Federal, which offers 85 per cent on Fidelity holdings, were expected in next week's mail.

Consent agreements which will authorize Nolan to reopen the closed bank as the First Federal have been mailed to the more than 17,000 shareholders.

Small Response.

The last batch of these agreements were mailed last Wednesday. Due to the fact that many of the depositors were out of town the past week-end, Nolan explained, the response has not been as heavy as anticipated.

Under the plan as stated in the letter, it is possible for the shareholder to receive 85 cents on the dollar from his old account, either in shares in the new association or in cash.

"Seventy-five per cent of the shareholders must send in their agreements," Nolan said, "before we can reopen as the First Federal Savings & Loan Association."

It was understood that the 25 per cent, who might not send in their agreements, would be paid in cash, on the same 85 per cent basis.

Consent Expected.

"I feel sure, however," Nolan announced, "that the shareholders are very anxious to release the tied-up funds, and will come in with our new plan."

The 25 per cent group would represent about $1,000,000, Nolan said.

About 2,800 shareholders, Nolan estimated, are not in receipt of their letters, either because they are out of town, or the letters have not been delivered to the correct address.

September 30 is the deadline for the shareholders' response. All agreements must be in the receiver's office on that day.

30-Year Secret Of White House Bomb Plot Bared

A front-page news story that a White House guard had kept secret for more than 30 years was revealed yesterday.

The guard, 64-year-old Ernest M. "Larry" Seaman, now about to retire, said that during the Administration of President Theodore Roosevelt he found a time-clock bomb under a bush on the south grounds of the White House. The bomb had been set to explode at the time the President usually passed the spot on his morning walks.

The guard made the discovery when he was told by a passing buggy driver that a man had climbed the White House fence with a package in his arms shortly after nightfall. Seaman made a search and found the package, afterward examined by explosives experts, he said.

He had never mentioned the incident before, Seaman said, because he didn't think his superiors wanted it made public. Seaman will retire on pension October 1.

Woman Takes Poison In Error; to Recover

Police said she swallowed tablets which, because of a druggist's error, contained strychnine. Miss Franklin, who lives at 1200 Sixteenth street northwest, became violently ill Thursday evening. Detective Sergt. Charles Mansfield, of the narcotic squad, is conducting an investigation.

Robbery Suspect Held In $40,000 Bail Here

Reginald J. Wheeler, 17, colored, 600 block of Forty-ninth street northeast, was held in bail of $40,000 yesterday in Police Court on two charges of robbing employes of the High Ice Cream store at 1010 H street northeast.

Two other colored youths, Herbert J. Skinker, 21, 1000 block of Adams street, and Earl W. Black, 17, 1100 block of Fifth street, were held under $300 bond each. Wheeler was identified by one of his victims in police lineup Thursday night.

Three-year-old Charles Butts, of 1617 T street southeast, holds an X-ray photograph which shows where a watch lodged in stomach. He swallowed it a week ago and it remained in his stomach until yesterday. No operation was necessary to remove it. With Charles is his mother, Mrs. W. E. Butts, to whom the wristwatch belonged.

Employes Joining C.I.O. May Prevent Cut in Gas Rates

Employes of the Washington Gas Light Co. are being brought into the C. I. O., the Public Utilities Commission was informed yesterday, and the Potomac Electric Power Co. will be organized next.

John P. Anderson, C. I. O. organizer, asked the commission not to make reductions in the gas rates because the C. I. O. planned to ask for increases in wages as soon as the company's employes are organized.

He said that only the mechanical workers, who number about 1,000, are to be brought into C. I. O. at this time. About 40 per cent of these workers already are organized, Anderson said.

Public Utilities Commission officials explained that their only interest in Anderson's disclosure is the effect it may have on operating expenses next year. They stated that it could not have anything to do with the disposal of the $3,000 available for rate reductions this year.

2 U. S. Employes Get 5-Day Week In Elliott Ruling

The five-day week became a reality for two field employes of the Federal Government in a ruling by the Acting Comptroller General yesterday which may some day see wider application.

Asked by the Secretary of Agriculture whether two field workers in Michigan who are co-operatively employed in the State highway department should follow the five-day-week system of the highway department, the Comptroller ruled there was nothing in any act of Congress to prevent them.

"There is no statute fixing either a minimum or maximum number of hours' work required of field employes per day or per week," the Comptroller, R. N. Elliott, said.

The Michigan situation was the first to come up for an official ruling in the Department of Agriculture.

Because no other workers were in the building, they felt there was no reason for their being there, inasmuch as the assistance of State employes was necessary for them to carry on their duties.

George Again Honored By U. S. Postal Clerks

Leo E. George, of Washington, was re-elected yesterday to his fifteenth term as president of the National Federation of Postal Clerks, the Associated Press reported from Toledo, Ohio, where the federation is holding its twentieth biennial convention.

Another Washington man, Gilbert E. Hyatt, was re-elected legislative representative and editor of the federation's magazine. Convention delegates voted to increase national dues to 40 cents a month.

Held on Dope Charge.

Florence M. Green, 42, 439 K street northwest, was arrested on charges of violating the Harrison narcotic act yesterday by Sergt. C. E. Mansfield and Treasury Agent M. B. Wilson. She was booked at police headquarters and bond set at $3,000. Police said several spotters had purchased narcotics from the woman.

Funeral Head Threatens Suit To Curb Police

Chambers Protests Arrest of His Drivers Under Taxicab Law.

W. W. Chambers, undertaker, last night threatened to bring personal suits against officers "who keep arresting" him on the charge that he is operating public vehicles without proper licensing—unless they can go ahead and prove it.

Chambers must appear in court this morning to show cause why a suit should not be brought against him on that charge, although similar charges were ignored by Assistant Corporation Counsel Glenn Simmon a week ago.

"The utter ridiculousness of the situation is going to force me to bring personal suits. Two of my drivers were arrested in front of a church this morning, after I had already gone through the whole thing, and the case dismissed," he said last night.

Chambers told Simmon that his vehicles could not be classified as hired cars, because they were provided under contract as part of the funeral service. He said he did not object to the $25 cost for a license for a hired car, but that he objected strenuously to the hired-car classification—which would force his drivers to wear visible identification tags and his cars to wear a license with "S" on it, just like sightseeing cars have.

Chester H. Gray, acting corporation counsel, said it had been thought best to review the evidence in the case, and that James W. Lauderdale, who was familiar with all the angles, would be in charge this time.

The question involved, members of the corporation counsel said, is whether the Chambers cars are being hired as public carriers.

Park Police Arrest 427 During August

United States Park Police made 427 arrests in August, over one-third of which were for drunkenness, Chief Patrick J. Carroll reported yesterday to C. Marshall Finnan, superintendent of National Capital Parks.

Park police seized 16 on the Mount Vernon Memorial highway on charges ranging from vagrancy to speeding, and the remaining 411 cases were made in the District. Fines and forfeitures totaled $2,190.

Drunkenness led the list with 154 arrests, followed by traffic law violations, 125, and park rule violations, 71.

2 Boys, 2 Girls Hurt In Clarendon Accident

Four persons were slightly injured last night in an automobile crash at Clarendon, Va.

They were Jack Kaufman, 15, of Cherrydale, Va.; Clara Schmackel, 15, of 4340 Lee highway; Edna Patton, of Cherrydale, Va., and Jack Stevens, 16, of Clarendon. Kaufman was admitted to Georgetown Hospital with possible fractured ribs and cuts of the body. His condition was not serious. The others were treated and sent home.

N.F.F.E. Asks Public to Aid War on Spoils

Convention Orders National Campaign for Support.

Advocates Extending Merit Principle to Most Jobs.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Springfield, Ill., Sept. 10.—The twentieth annual convention of the National Federation of Federal Employes, in session here since last Monday, adjourned today, with the organization's executive council announcing plans for a Nation-wide campaign to mobilize public opinion for national legislation to root out the spoils system and extend the merit principle to practically all Federal Civil Service positions.

"Clearly recognizing the crisis which confronts the merit system and the increasing sway and rapacity of those whose ultimate aim evidently is the destruction of the whole Civil Service edifice, the twentieth jubilee convention of the N. F. F. E. has just placed the organization squarely on record not only as favoring the continuance of our efforts to extend and strengthen the merit system, but of expanding those efforts to the utmost limit of our ability.

Result Depends on People.

"The executive council is acting to give immediate impetus to the convention action.

"Under the direction of the resident national officers in Washington, the campaign of public education with respect to the spoils versus merit issue will be broadened in every respect. All avenues and media for the dissemination of information on the subject will be employed. . . .

"Whether the merit principle is to prevail, or whether the spoilsmen are to continue in their successful forays, in the final analysis depends upon the people of the United States. The needed legislation will not be enacted by Congress until the people demand such legislation. That has been thoroughly demonstrated.

Resolutions passed urged:

Extension of classification to all positions in both the departmental and field service; enactment of legislation establishing a general governmental policy of salary increases to be granted at regular and stated intervals upon the attainment and maintenance of the required standard of efficiency; establishment of a fair, just and workable plan for advancement of employes from grade to grade and to supervisory and administrative positions; enactment of legislation requiring the standardization and addition by the Government of an up-to-date method of making efficiency ratings; setting up a central personnel agency; placing of facilitating and supervisory personnel of the CCC camps under the merit system; doubling the present N. F. F. E. membership of 75,000.

Rhine Criticises Action.

Henry Rhine, national organizer for the United Federal Workers of America, an affiliate of the C. I. O., today criticized the N. F. F. E. vote against joining the C. I. O.

"Luther C. Steward, president of N. F. F. E. stated that he had a conference with President Roosevelt," and then read to the convention a letter from the President dated August 16," Rhine said. "He neglected to mention that Jacob Baker, president of the U. F. W. A., and myself were also invited and participated in the conference.

"After Steward read President Roosevelt's letter he referred to the employes affiliated with the C. I. O. as 'scum of the Federal personnel' and stated that they would become 'pawns in the hands of labor manipulators.'" Rhine continued. "It is unfortunate that Mr. Steward takes occasion time after time to attack bitterly the entire labor movement in America and to attack equally as well the loyal public servants of the United States. We feel furthermore that President Roosevelt resents Mr. Steward's implications that the President is opposed to labor unions."

Rhine complimented the convention for refusing to eliminate the word "union" from all designations in the constitution.

Rev. R. H. Miller Unites Daughter to Ohio Man; Couple Is Spending Honeymoon in New England.

THE MARRIAGE OF Miss Katharine Elliott Sherrod, daughter of Gen. and Mrs. Grover Cleveland Sherrod, of the Argonne Apartments, Columbia road, to Paul Branson Zumbro, son of Mr. and Mrs. S. B. Zumbro, of Chester Hill, Ohio, was solemnized at 8:30 last evening at the National City Christian Church. The Rev. Raphael H. Miller performed the ceremony in a setting of palms, ferns, and gladioli, over which white tapers in candelabra shed a soft glow.

Gen. Sherrod gave his daughter in marriage. She wore an ivory satin gown and her tulle veil was held by orange blossoms worn by her mother at her wedding. She carried calla lilies and also a rose point lace handkerchief used by her mother when she was married.

Mrs. Morin Is Matron of Honor

Mrs. R. L. Morin, sister of the bridegroom, served as matron of honor, wearing a period gown of antique gold satin and carrying talisman roses tied with green ribbon. Miss Christine Sherrod and Miss Doris Sherrod served as their sister's bridesmaids, and Miss Carolynn Vail Hope was junior bridesmaid. Their period gowns were of ice-green satin and they carried yellow rosebuds tied with pink ribbon. Morley A. Jull, jr., of College Heights, Md., was ring bearer.

Robert Snyder was best man, and the ushers were Robert Bell, jr., Van Rensselaer Sill, Elmer Rowalt and Gerald Ryerson.

Mrs. Sherrod wore a costume of blue velvet and Mrs. Zumbro, mother of the bridegroom, chose brown lace. Both wore corsages of gardenias. A supper for relatives and close friends followed the ceremony.

On Northern Wedding Trip

When she left on a wedding trip to New York and New England, Mrs. Zumbro was wearing a three-piece suit of cinnamon brown, fur trimmed, and dark brown suede accessories. On their return Mr. and Mrs. Zumbro will reside at 2929 Connecticut avenue.

Out-of-town guests at the wedding included Mrs. R. V. Hope, of Washington, N. C., mother of the junior bridesmaid, and Mr. and Mrs. L. V. Edgerton, of Chicago.

The bride attended William Woods College in Fulton, Mo., and Union University, in Jackson, Tenn. Mr. Zumbro, who is associated with the Department of Agriculture here, is a graduate of Ohio State University.

ABOUT THE TOWN

With Dudley Harmon

A Danish mayor of public welfare—and that little country has a big reputation for coping successfully with such matters—is arriving in New York tomorrow and is due to reach Washington on Wednesday. Between calls at the State Department, Minister Otto Wadsted is buzzing busily over a schedule of dinners, suppers and a lecture for Viggo Chrisensen, the distinguished visitor who is making his first trip to this country.

Mr. Wadsted hopes that Miss Perkins, Secretary of Labor, will be able to attend the dinner he is giving for the mayor on Thursday evening. On Saturday—a week from tonight—Mr. Chrisensen will lecture at the Washington Club on "Soocial Legislation in Denmark," and this will be followed by a supper and reception.

Complicated is the word for the system of government in Copenhagen, where the visitor comes from. The city is governed not by one mayor, but by five, each one of whom has a special department under him. No wonder the Danish capital has a reputation for good government!

Mr. Chrisensen will be accompanied here by his wife, and they will remain in Washington until September 20. The mayor for a long time has been a leader among the Social Democrats, the most powerful political party in Denmark, and has held many important posts.

John Peyton Weds Miss Ethel Priest

Ceremony Is Performed at Rapidan, Va.

Of interest to Washington is a wedding which took place on Wednesday afternoon in the Waddell Memorial Presbyterian Church, Rapidan, Va., when Miss Ethel Priest, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Henry Priest became the bride of John William Peyton, son of Mrs. John William Peyton, and the late Mr. Peyton. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Thomas G. Faulkner, rector of the Emmanuel Episcopal Church.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her brother, Frank Priest, of Orange, Va., wore a traveling costume of dark blue wool crepe with hat to match. Her bouquet was of white roses and asters. Miss Lena Peyton Priest, her sister and only attendant, wore a gown of dark blue crepe with a large blue hat. She carried a bouquet of orchid asters.

James F. Peyton, of Alexandria, was his brother's best man, and the ushers were James Franklin Armentrout and Mack Crenshaw, both of Rapidan.

Marion Willis Visits in Capital

Margaret Sanger's Niece Is Week-End Guest of Nan Stewart.

MISS MARION WILLIS, of Fishkill, N. Y., niece of Margaret Sanger, arrived in Washington Thursday for a short visit with Miss Nan Stewart, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Harrison Stewart.

Miss Stewart entertained at luncheon yesterday and at dinner Thursday in honor of her guest, who will spend the week-end here and then go on to Pennsylvania, where she will attend Linden Hall School. Miss Willis, who was graduated from Fairfax Hall in June, has a number of friends in Washington.

Her aunt, Margaret Sanger, who in private life is Mrs. J. N. Slee, is now on the high seas bound for the Orient. Mr. Slee is in Honolulu.

Miss Stewart and Miss Willis became friends when Dr. and Mrs. Stewart were living in Fishkill, where they still frequently spend their vacations. A graduate from high school here in June, Miss Stewart will enter Trinity College this fall.

Miss Anderson, Mr. Wilkins Wed

Of interest to Washingtonians is the marriage of Miss Anne Johnston Anderson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. Wesley Anderson, of Rock Hill, N. C., and Washington, D. C., to Donald L. Wilkins, son of Mr. and Mrs. John M. Wilkins, of Gloucester, Mass., and Washington, D. C., which took place September 4 at the home of the bride's grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. T. L. Johnston, in Rock Hill, N. C. Officiating at the quiet ceremony, which was witnessed only by immediate members of the families, was the Rev. J. H. Marion, jr., of Oakland Avenue Presbyterian Church of Rock Hill.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore her mother's wedding dress of duchess satin. Caught to her hair with a bandeau of orange blossoms, her veil of bridal illusion fell the entire length of the train. Her flowers were orchids and bride roses, showered with lilies of the valley, and her only jewelry was a strand of pearls, her wedding gift from the bridegroom.

Mr. and Mrs. Donald L. Wilkins are now on a trip to Nova Scotia and will eventually make their home in Washington. Both are graduates of the Law School of George Washington University.

Women's Leader Cites Communist Advances

Mrs. J. L. Whitehurst Asserts Reds Have 300 Periodicals and Thousands of Groups; Action by Clubs Urged.

By Jessie Ash Arndt,
The Post Club Editor.

A challenge to women of the United States to take cognizance of the spread of Communist propaganda and the growth of crime among the youth of the country and to do something about it, was issued by Mrs. John L. Whitehurst, of Baltimore, chairman of education for the General Federation of Women's Clubs, yesterday afternoon. Mrs. Whitehurst, who is a nominee for first vice president of the General Federation and a member of the board of regents of the University of Maryland, addressed a forum held at the university under the auspices of the American Citizenship Department of the Prince Georges County Federation. Approximately 300 women were present from Maryland, Virginia and the District.

"Many of our people sit complacently in their homes today and say 'It can't happen here.' If they would take the time to investigate what is going on in many of our schools throughout the country, they would know it is happening here, she asserted.

"Facts must speak for themselves," said Mrs. Whitehurst. "There are six times as many members of the Communist Party and its affiliated movements in the United States today as there were in Russia at the time of the revolution. There are 300 Communist newspapers and magazines printed in all languages in this country. There are thousands of local dance schools and clubs, art schools, baseball and soccer clubs, theater groups, strike schools, atheist Sunday schools, summer camps, and college chapters in the United States maintained by the Communists.

"There are thousands of students receiving money for their tuition and maintenance in colleges and universities whose one duty is to stir up discontent among their fellow students. This money is paid by the 'ism' propagandists.

"Recently a Fascist government launched a series of radio programs in this country. They are listed under the title of a Youth Movement. Our women would do well to investigate this project.

"Why are we so blind? Why so apathetic? It is the women who suffer the most poignant grief when dictators rule their lives."

Urges Education Against Crime

Quoting the statement of J. Edgar Hoover that "parents have become too concerned in enjoying the fleshpots of the age to give proper attention to their offspring," Mrs. Whitehurst declared the clubwomen must answer this challenge by a campaign for compulsory crime prevention and character building education in our schools. The home and the school hold the key to the solution of the crime problem among the youth of the country, she said, for records show that 20 per cent of the crime in the United States is committed by youths less than voting age.

All of the work of the Department of Education of the General Federation of Women's Clubs has been outlined with three general objectives in view, Mrs. Whitehurst explained: Educational preparation for leadership in governmental affairs, the development of a more intelligent citizenry and the preservation of democracy. Under the first heading, she urged creation of a demand for the merit system and the elimination of the spoils system.

"The United States maintains the most extensive school system in the world and yet makes less use of it in the selection of public officials than do any other self-governing nations. In nearly every field, except government, we have placed greater and greater reliance upon the person of competence and training for the work he is expected to do. There are 175,000 independent units of Government in this country today, each with power to raise and spend money, yet we still cling to the old method—spoils system—of appointing officials to operate these units.

"Clearly we must learn in this country to bring trained intelligence to bear upon the problems that affect our political, social and economic welfare. This means we must find ways of curtailing and eventually destroying the spoils system in public affairs. Every position on the administrative, professional, clerical, skilled and unskilled labor levels should be a career position."

Mrs. Whitehurst advocated a National Academy of Public Affairs—an idea which has been promoted by Mrs. Roberta Campbell Lawson, president of the General Federation—to train both men and women for governmental and diplomatic service. It would be an institution for training leaders in Government, of similar standing to West Point and Annapolis, which train officers of the Army and Navy.

Education Primary Club Function

Adult education was one of the projects she urged toward the development of a more intelligent citizenry.

"The primary function of a woman's club is education," she said. "Through its nine departments the federation is trying constantly to educate the millions of United States clubwomen in public affairs. However, during this chaotic transitional period they have to go beyond the confines of their clubrooms and clubhouses—they should develop programs for the millions who haven't been so fortunate in securing educational advantages in schools or clubs."

Closing her address, Mrs. Whitehurst warned of propaganda. "You are absorbing it in your clubs without being aware of it," she declared. "There are speakers who sell you propaganda and you applaud because they have interested you and because, in most cases, you have such a good orator without paying an honorarium. There is the type which tries to impress you with the fact he believes our democracy should be preserved and then launches into all of its weaknesses and defects while he points out good features of fascism, communism or Nazi-ism. Another asserts there is nothing to this talk of subversive propaganda, thus putting you off guard; closing your eyes to true conditions. A third type asserts that any attempt to combat subversive propaganda would interfere with free speech and liberal thought. These advocates should go to one of the countries where a dictator is in power—where there is no such thing as either free speech or liberal thought.

Women Must Meet the Problem

"The women of America face a challenge. It is up to them to start in their homes and schools to bring back respect for the church, the home and the state and prevent the catastrophe which has always occurred down through the ages when people have lost respect for all but material things."

Mrs. Whitehurst was introduced by Mrs. Elmer C. Mayberry, president of the Prince Georges Federation, and the program was under the chairmanship of Mrs. Ralph J. Sheffer, of Hyattsville, head of the department of American citizenship of the county federation. Dr. Harry C. Byrd, president of the university, welcomed the club women and was host at a reception in honor of Mrs. Whitehurst given at Margaret Brent Hall, following the program. Harlan Randall was in charge of the music, and Mrs. Randall sang.

Receiving with the host and guest of honor at the reception were Mrs. Mayberry and past presidents of the Prince Georges Federation, including Mrs. Enos Ray, Mrs. Ernest Cory, Mrs. R. A. Bennett, Mrs. B. F. Wade, Mrs. G. S. Musgrave, Mrs. John Paul Troy, vice president of the Maryland State Federation, and wives of faculty members of the university were among the guests. Mrs. Frank M. Hoadley, president of the Maryland federation, is now on a vacation in New England and was unable to be present.

North Carolina Society Officers Honor Smalls

Former Representative John H. Small, past president of the North Carolina State Society, and Mrs. Small, a member of the board of governors, yesterday received a vote of appreciation from officers of the society for their long and helpful work, at a meeting of the board held at the Lafayette Hotel. Mr. and Mrs. Small, who are the oldest members of the society, leave soon for Charlotte to make their home.

Giles Newton, president of the organization, Commander O. C. Foote, United States Navy, a past president, and Robert H. McNeill, also a past president and now head of the Southern Society, all spoke briefly in tribute to Mr. and Mrs. Small.

Plans for the coming season were made at the business meeting of the board preceding the informal program honoring the Smalls. The social calendar starts with Governor's night, November 20, when officers, members of the board of governors, past presidents and past secretaries of the society and their wives will entertain in honor of Gov. Clyde R. Hoey and Mrs. Hoey at a dinner, followed by a reception and dance, at the Shoreham Hotel, where all of the meetings of the society will be held during the coming season.

A Christmas party will be given December 18, congressional night will be observed January 22, a Valentine party is planned for February 19, a spring dance on March 19 and a dinner for visiting Daughters of the American Revolution from North Carolina on April 21.

Officers present at yesterday's meeting included Mr. Newton, John Wilbur Jenkins, first vice president; Mrs. Aubrey McFadyen, second vice president; Miss Annie Lee Chisholm, secretary-treasurer; the Rev. Charles B. Austin, chaplain, and Mrs. Boydston Satterfield, historian.

Moose Women Hear Reports

Columbia Chapter Honored by International Body at Conference.

Members of Columbia Chapter, Women of the Moose, last night heard reports of past Regents Mrs. E. T. Deegan, Mrs. Anna Wagner and Mrs. Wade H. Mitchell on the international conference held at Cleveland September 1 to 5.

These reports indicated Columbia Chapter had accomplished outstanding work in the international organization, receiving the major award for publicity and honorable mention for its Moosehaven committee as well as having sponsored locally the Moosehaven hospital fund, which was adopted at the Cleveland conference as an international project, Past Regent Deegan contributing on behalf of her chapter the first $100 for it.

The Veterans Association, instituted at the conference, with Deputy Grand Regent Mrs. Mary Hooper, of Baltimore, as grand dame, will undertake the completion of the Moosehaven hospital enterprise.

Mrs. Margaret Bates, chairman of the emblem committee, announced Senator Robert Reynolds, of North Carolina, will be the principal speaker on the Constitution Day program at the next meeting. Senator Reynolds is past president of the Carolina Moose Association.

The monthly meeting of the executive board was held Wednesday evening at the home of the senior regent, Mrs. Robert Baldwin. The publicity committee met Wednesday at Moose Hall to issue the chapter Monthly News Bulletin.

Mrs. George B. Clark will entertain the alumni committee, of which she is chairman, and the Mooseheart committee, of which Mrs. Emil Rada is chairman, at her home, 4119 Twenty-second street northeast, Tuesday evening. Plans for the annual Mooseheart Day program in October will be discussed.

On Thursday evening the ritualistic committee will meet at Moose Hall to begin rehearsals under the new ritual. This ritual will be used locally for the first time in October, when the past regents class will be sponsored by the membership committee, now conducting a six-week campaign for new members.

D.A.R. Unit to Fete Former Official

About 30 members and guests of Manor House Chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution, of which Mrs. Barton S. Embry is regent, will gather at Hains Point this afternoon for a picnic in honor of Mrs. Jane Hooker, a former vice regent of the chapter. Mrs. Hooker now resides in Corinth, Miss., and is on a short visit in Washington.

Mrs. Charles Carroll Haig, State regent, will be another honor guest and will call special attention and extend an invitation to the Constitution Day program sponsored by the D. A. R. Friday evening at Memorial Continental Hall at 8 o'clock. The President's message will be received by radio as part of the program of the occasion. The massing of the colors will be in charge of Miss Lillian Chenoweth, State vice regent and member of Manor House Chapter, and Mrs. Earl Brentwood Fuller, State corresponding secretary.

Miss Mary Lee Goddard and Miss Helen Montgomery are in charge of arrangements for the picnic today. Officers of the chapter, in addition to the regent, are Mrs. William L. Hill, vice regent; Mrs. G. N. Walkley, chaplain; Mrs. John F. Porter, recording secretary; Miss Helen L. Montgomery, corresponding secretary; Mrs. H. H. Newlin, treasurer; Miss Clara S. Follin, registrar; Mrs. C. H. Davey, historian, and Miss Mary Lee Goddard, delegate.

Among the guests of the chapter members who will attend the picnic will be Mr. Haig, Irving Bucklin, Orlando Smith, Charles A. Montgomery and Miss Justine Roseman.

Evangelist's Wife Visits Washington Friends

Underwood & Underwood.

MRS. BILLY SUNDAY, who has just returned from Europe, photographed as she sews for the children of Central Union Mission, where she is spending a few days with Mrs. John Bennett.

"Madame Chairman" . . .

By Suzanne.

MRS. BILLY SUNDAY is in Washington. She came directly from New York last week to be with Mrs. John Bennett on receiving news of the death of Mr. Bennett when she arrived there on her return from a trip to Europe. Mrs. Sunday and her late husband had been close friends of the Bennetts since the time of the famous Billy Sunday evangelistic campaign in the Capital, in 1918. She had expected to visit them on her return from abroad and she is now remaining a few days with Mrs. Bennett at Central Union Mission before leaving for the West.

Officers and members of the Board of the Business Women's Council, which was formed in connection with the Billy Sunday revival 20 years ago, gathered at the home of Mrs. Bessie L. Dudley on Wednesday night for an informal welcome in Mrs. Sunday's honor. Other than that, she has spent her time with Mrs. Bennett while she has been here, and has been busy with sewing for children of the mission.

She was in Europe with a party of friends this summer on a tour of ten countries. Next week she expects to leave for Winona Lake, Ind., which she calls "home," although she spends little time there. The habit of traveling from place to place as she did for many years while her husband was conducting revivals has left with her a feeling of restlessness which makes it hard to remain in one place for too long a time, she says.

From Winona Lake, she will go to her ranch in Oregon for a short time and from there to Los Angeles to spend Thanksgiving with her two sons and remain with them until February. Then she will go again to Oregon.

Mrs. Sunday serves on the board of Bob Jones College in Tennessee and on those of several mission schools which she visits on occasion. She goes elsewhere as need arises for her aid in religious or educational work carried on by the church.

THE LADIES AUXILIARY of the Army and Navy Union will give a bingo party Tuesday night at the home of Mrs. August Stevenin, 1738 P street northwest, at 8 o'clock, for both members and friends.

The group was organized last February as an auxiliary to the President's Own Garrison of the Army and Navy Union. Mrs. Elizabeth Ellis is lady commander; Mrs. Colita Dimas-Aruti, lady senior vice commander; Mrs. Marie Anderson, lady deputy commander; Mrs. Mary Holt, lady officer of the day; Mrs. Auralia Crim, lady paymaster; Mrs. Mary Hartley, lady chaplain; Mrs. Jean Morrow, lady adjutant.

Opportunity House Plans Tea Series

A series of "neighborhood membership" teas will be inaugurated, beginning Sunday afternoon, September 19, at Opportunity House.

In the past year, the interest in this settlement house has grown under the direction of a board which includes such fine civic leaders as Mrs. Harvey W. Wiley, Mrs. Laura J. Bogue, Mrs. James M. Doran, Mrs. Arthur Clarendon Smith, Mrs. Elmer Bertholdt, Mrs. A. J. Day, Mrs. E. S. Reinohl, Mrs. Margery Connelly, Mrs. F. T. Northcross and Mrs. J. C. Kern, with a list of men also, headed by Arthur Clarendon Smith, as president.

Mrs. Northcross is to be the general chairman of the forthcoming series of teas, assisted by Mrs. Doran and Mrs. Bogue and by Miss Bessie Baker, the resident director.

Gradually, it is planned to enlarge the membership of the Opportunity for Service Club, which conducts the house, so that its "opportunities" for residents of the neighborhood may become greater as the little house becomes more and more the settlement center in this part of the city.

When the teas begin on September 19, it is expected that they will be held every two weeks on Sunday afternoons, with music and other features.

Church Unit Sets Institute For October

Women's Council Begins Plans for Missionary Discussion.

Conference to Open With Special Session for Young People.

Plans for the Missionary Institute of the Woman's Council of the Washington Federation of Churches, October 26, 27 and 28, were made yesterday at a meeting of the administrative committee, at which Mrs. Frank A. Linzel presided. The meeting was held in the new headquarters of the federation, 1749 N street.

The institute is the principal event of the season for the council and the program always includes discussion of the home and foreign missionary study books for the year. The books will be "Rebuilding Rural America," by Mark A. Dowher, which will be discussed by Mrs. Dan B. Brummitt, and "Mecca and Beyond," by E. M. and R. W. Dodd, which will be presented by Miss Gertrude Schultz. The two women chosen to conduct the study of the books are leaders in Christian education.

Denominational representatives will have a morning meeting October 18 at the federation headquarters to complete preparations for the institute. A luncheon will follow, and, in the afternoon, there will be a program with a speaker.

The opening event of the institute will be a mass meeting on Sunday afternoon, October 24, for young people and business and professional women. Mrs. Grace Sloan Overton, who was a member of the Preaching Mission here last season, will speak on "The New Person and the New World." She also will be among the speakers at other sessions of the institute on "Is Building a Christian World an Idle Dream?" "Marriage and Family Life in the New World" and "Citizenship in the New World."

The institute will be conducted, as in former years, at the First Congregational Church.

November 30 was set as the date for a peace class to be sponsored by the Woman's Council, the program for which will be made public later. This will be at federation headquarters.

Contrast Popular On Latest Gloves

Paris (AP).—Those who like novel treatments in accessories may have their gloves slit down at the top and turned back in revers. The revers may be faced with contrasting color or merely with contrasting leather, such as glace kid facings for suede gloves.

Sometimes the whole thumb is contrasting thumbs, in fact, when they are darker tend to make the hand look slimmer.

Turn-down cuffs are coming in again for the shorter morning gloves. The majority have pipings to outline their fancy cuts.

On or off cuff duty, however, pipings rank high in glove developments generally. Their chief role at present is a straight line or a wavy course from the glove top down to a neat finish at the tip of the third or fourth (little) finger.

MARY HAWORTH'S MAIL

Calling Gentle, But Obdurate, Mother-in-Law 'Fly In Ointment,' Wife Asks Advice.

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: I have been married for several years to the finest, sweetest man in the world. We have two small, adorable, active children and barely enough money to make both ends meet. The fly in the ointment is his mother. Although one of the most unselfish, truly sweet and gentle women in the world, opposing her is like butting your head against a stone wall. With her, my biggest problem has always been to counteract her influence for extravagance over my husband and children.

* * * *

Now the problem is acute. My husband's firm has given him a traveling assignment which makes it impossible for the children and me to go with him. I have a position of my own. We have our home here and are buying it on the instalment plan. His father has been very ill recently and their finances are in bad shape. So they urged our doubling up, pooling our resources and both saving money. I finally agreed, provided they would let me handle the household finances, as they are virtual children where money is concerned, having always lived extravagantly in a rosy, optimistic world of their own, serenely anticipating a "break" just around the corner that was to put them on easy street for life.

* * * *

His mother refuses absolutely to respect my ideas about the children and is pathetically hurt when I won't let her buy countless fancy toys for them, candy and ice cream between meals. She undermines their discipline and is so hysterically frightened of everything herself that she communicates fear to them and is reducing them to nervous wrecks about the dark, storms, etc. The maid, a wonderfully calm, efficient and intelligent woman, is almost ready to leave (though I have had her for years) because she can get no work done with my mother-in-law going over and over every detail of what to do for the day, and then keeping her from doing it by talking endlessly about how well we are all going to get along together.

* * * *

If I get off for a week-end with my husband, as happened recently, I come back to find expensive new toys and a nearly hysterical maid telling me how the children's routine has been completely upset as regards discipline, meals, etc. The eldest (he is 5) behaves like a spoiled brat, talking back to me, quoting grandmother's promise of elaborate toys if I won't give them, and crying at the slightest excuse. Grandmother denies absolutely giving them anything between meals, though both the children and maid testify to ice cream cones every afternoon.

* * * *

She doesn't mean to make trouble. She just cannot comprehend my point of view and thinks I am a little cracked, as well as the hardest, most unyielding, unresponsive person alive. They make me feel like a mean, penny-pinching wet blanket because I must do the economizing and fact-facing for all of us. The position is so untenable, the strain so severe that I have almost lost my sense of humor and sometimes wish I had never met any of them. I have had to give up almost all of my hobbies and even my music and friends, for my mother-in-law is so affected (in her genuine desire to make everyone happy) that she flatters my friends so extravagantly that they are just uncomfortable and I hate to ask them to the house. She is really a pathetic figure, for she never had any interests except her husband and children—and now mine. I would like to share everything with her, but if I relax vigilance for an instant, she takes such advantage.

* * * *

How can I avoid hurting her and still keep her from ruining my children? I can't and won't bring my husband into it. He has enough worries of his own, keeping both families afloat. It is bad enough for him on his few trips home, for they undermine his self-confidence so and bring out all his old restlessness, unhappiness and sense of defeat, which I have fought so hard to overcome. Let me know what you think as soon as possible. A good dose of your calm logic, even if you think I am wrong and just ought to drift along, will help tremendously. Sincerely, TIRED.

* * * *

The Thing to Do.

DEAR TIRED: For a cruelly keen analysis of this type of mother-in-law, read "Belle Mere," one of Kathleen Norris' earlier novels. She gives you a merciless pen portrait of another one of these "most unselfish, truly sweet and gentle women of the world," who, when opposed, proved—like your mother-in-law—to be just about as pliable as a stone wall. As the plot unravels, she also tells what must be done to save your husband's health and happiness, your children's character and well being, and yourself from commitment to a sanitarium, if you happen to be the daughter-in-law in the case.

* * * *

My personal opinion, like that of Mrs. Norris as advanced in her fictional study of a similar situation, is that you simply cannot afford to "drift along" in such an untenable position. Unless your mother-in-law subscribes absolutely to a hands-off, mouth-shut policy when it comes to the management of your home and your children; unless she is willing, honestly and graciously, to recognize her status as that of "paying guest" under your roof, with an obligation to be as self-effacing and non-interfering as justice to the trying circumstance demands, then, I say, she and her husband should be divorced altogether from your household. And because there is, in my opinion, virtually no hope that she will concede the necessity for, or be able to live up to, such self-disciplined conduct, I am convinced that you, as budget-maker and fact-facer for the family, must devise a plan which will provide for their maintenance elsewhere.

* * * *

One of the first facts you must face is that you cannot remedy this potentially disastrous situation without hurting your mother-in-law's feelings; possibly to an extent that she may never be willing to forgive. But you must remember that you are not to blame for her make-up, for her hypersensitivity, her lack of mature wisdom, common sense and ability to co-operate sacrificially for the family good. Remember that it's too late to attempt to make her over; that she must be dealt with "as is," and that your children's destiny, your husband's success and well being, and your own physical and nervous health, far out-weigh, in the scales of human justice, any purely sentimental consideration for a dangerously meddlesome, even though well-intentioned, elderly woman.

* * * *

As you picture her, she is something of a child and must be dealt with more or less as a child. As the adult-minded person on the immediate scene, yours is the responsibility for making, and enforcing with inexorable firmness, such plans as will make for your children's orderly, wholesome growth; your husband's prosperity; his parents' security, and your own peace—which, in the last analysis, means reasonable happiness for all.

* * * *

I imagine the only way out of the situation is to place your parents-in-law in a boarding house, convalescent home or with some elderly person or couple who might appreciate their companionship. This will be cheaper than their maintaining a place of their own, or your providing a separate establishment for them. If they must look to you for support or partial support, they must—whether they like it or not—subscribe to whatever conditions make, unquestionably, for the greatest good of the greatest number.

New Handbags for Fall Have Luxurious Note In Tune With Style Trend Toward Elegance

Jewels and Bright Linings Emphasize Richness of Accessory.

By Ethel Ehlen,
The Post Fashion Editor.

WITH the mode going opulent and glamorous, handbags are assuming a more important role in this drama of luxurious dressing. Materials are softer and richer, trimming has an air of elegance, fittings are often jewel-decorated, and linings echo the richness of the bag fabric. Regardless of this, the new fall handbags are more practical than they ever have been—larger and with tops that open sufficiently to be able to see the contents at a glance.

In line with matching accessories, handbags are designed to be in harmony with other costume accents. Many bag designers are working with designers of gloves, belts and the like, to produce correlation in the accessories; this applies to both color and styling. Antelope is the most popular bag material, with satin and calfskin next in importance for daytime, and jewelled and beaded affairs of novelty silks and satins, for formal evening. Because of the vogue for gold accents on fall frocks, bag frames and fastenings, in many instances are of gold-colored metal.

The newest handbags are of diverse shapes, from those which look like bottles or feed bags to pyramids and dress skirts. There is a definite trend toward "dress-maker" touches in the fall bags, both as to shape and the intricate details. In this realm, too, are the tops of bags, mounted with the bag material, instead of metal and composition, as of other seasons. Gussets and inverted pleats are noted in many of the afternoon-type handbags; sometimes these are of gold kid, or the bag material, piped with the gold.

Echoing the trend in shoes, handbags are appearing with pinhole perforations, as a decorative medium. This "air-conditioning" idea is then transferred to the matching gloves. Because gloves and bags are so closely associated, it is necessary that they either match exactly, or form a smart contrast. At any rate, it is imperative that they be harmonious. In the realm of strictly tailored bags, many interesting things are happening to give even casual accessories that look of opulence, exploited through the wardrobe. For instance, a bag of antelope, squarish in shape with the popular top handles, is cleverly trimmed with cross-stitching — a slide fastener gives it a wide opening for convenience.

Black is the leading color, but both tailored and afternoon bags are available in all of the chic costume colors. Since bags match shoes, belts or hats in color tone, or the color of the costume (if it is dark in tone), you will see many handbags in deep green, wine, rust, and the numerous brown tones. It is a season when accessories are of paramount importance. It all depends upon the care with which it is chosen, and the manner of matching up your accessories.

Many Shapes Available; Most Equipped With Larger Tops.

Sanitary Hair Brush Essential to Health

Regular brushing of the hair with an immediately clean brush, brings immediate dividends in shining, lustrous backs, provided of course, that it is supplemented by frequent soap and water shampoo. A soiled hair brush is worse than none at all. Like a soiled powder puff or towel, it rubs dust and dirt back into the surface from which they were removed.

Once a week is none too often to give the hair brush a bath. Whip up an abundant sparkling lather, add a few drops of ammonia and work the soapsuds well into the bristles.

If you place a wet brush on its back the water may seep below the surface and loosen the bristles. On the other hand if you set it face down, the wet bristles may lose their stiffness.

Foxy Little Terrier on Cloth Makes Dishwashing Daily Joy

By Alice Brooks.

TERRY, the terrier, will dry your dishes with the same "punch" he displays when rolling glasses and hurdling silver. It will make your dish drying a joy just to see his jolly self on the towels you use. These motifs require so few stitches, so little floss, they're economical and ideal pick-up work. Single, outline and cross-stitch make this splendid embroidery for gift, prize or fair donation. In pattern 5746 you will find a transfer pattern of six motifs averaging 5x8½ inches; material requirements; color suggestions illustrations of all stitches used.

To obtain this pattern send 10 cents in stamps or coin (coin preferred) to The Washington Post, Household Arts Department, 259 W. Fourteenth street, New York, N. Y. Be sure to write plainly your name, address and pattern number.

Autumn Leaves Provide Motifs For Fall Clothes

IN CREATING the new fall clothes, designers turned to Mother Nature for tips to make them gay and bright.

Lavin's collection shows multi-colored sprays of leaves on day dresses, black velvets and gold kid gloves for evening. Some of the winter coats were in contrasting colors like green or black and burnt orange on green.

Autumn leaves were appliqued on velvet and leather for dress decorations. Corks, acorns, feathers and bells will lend color, novelty and variety to the new dresses. For instance, cork flowers are made into clips, double acorns become broaches, while feathers are turned into corsages and real flowers become bell bracelets and evening earrings.

Herman Plaut, leading manufacturer, recently showed flowers for costume jewelry. One new evening arrangement was a row of real flowers that went from the front to the back of the head like a crest. Corsages made of big purple violets, with matching violet bracelets, were shown with black evening gowns.

TODAY'S HEALTH TALK

Logan Clendening, M. D.

Palatable Milk.

"I HAVE been advised to drink milk, but it does not agree with me. I can't stand it. What shall I do?"

This wail that comes to my desk is one that doctors have to answer all the time.

To analyze the situation we can recognize that there are four possible reasons why milk disagrees, and they may be catalogued clearly by answering the following questions:

1. Does milk disagree with you every time you drink it or just sometimes?

2. Does it give the same digestive symptoms every time it disagrees or do they vary?

3. Does it affect your digestion alone?

4. Can you take milk in other foods—in coffee, tea or ice cream, in bread, with oatmeal?

The first group of milk disagreers are those with a slight digestive disturbance anyway—an irritable colon or a mild gall-bladder infection. Milk, with all its excellencies, is a particularly digestible food, and these people in the periods when their digestive functions are upset revolt at it.

The second group is a modification of the first, and without any definite digestive disorders they have a sensitive digestive tract in some way which milk upsets. In some people milk produces a diarrhea, in some a constipation. When it is well digested it is constipating, when not, diarrhea results. Modifying the milk, using boiled, skimmed milk, will get around the tendency to diarrhea. And adding cream will get around the constipating effect. The curd in cow's milk is large. Boiling the milk lessens the curd. That is why it makes it more digestible. The addition of carbonated water, or lime water, does the same thing. A mixture of equal parts of milk, cream and carbonated water is more palatable and more digestible than plain milk.

The best way to insure against the formation of large curds is to curdle the milk before ingestion. That is why in this group buttermilk, junket and koumyss are better tolerated than raw milk.

The third group are those who are allergic to milk. They should have, to prove this, other symptoms than those referable to the digestive system—such as hives or asthma. I believe these cases must be far rarer than the reports one hears indicate.

The last group, the group who says yes to question 4, are those who have a psychic aversion for milk. It is the largest group. I must say I have a great deal of sympathy with them. Intellectually I praise milk, gastronomically the smell and taste of it are insipid beyond words. But for these milk soups, milk punches, egg noggs, ice cream and even the addition of cream, half and half, solves the difficulty.

The modification of milk for adults should be studied as much as it has been for children. With proper resourcefulness nearly any prejudice can be overcome.

EDITOR'S NOTE: Seven pamphlets by Dr. Clendening can now be obtained by sending 10 cents in coin for each, and a self-addressed envelope stamped with a 3-cent stamp, to Dr. Logan Clendening, in care of this paper. The pamphlets are: "Three Weeks' Reducing Diet," "Indigestion and Constipation," "Reducing and Gaining," "Infant Feeding," "Instructions for the Treatment of Diabetes," "Feminine Hygiene" and "The Care of the Hair and Skin."

The average Southern girl spends $579.27 annually, exclusive of college charges, if a seminar study of student expenditures at Hollins College, Va., is typical. The figure was obtained after compiling information received from two-thirds of the Hollins student body, covering a nine-months period.

The largest item of expense, $270.83 was for clothes. A minimum of $25 was spent by one student, and a maximum of $915 by another. The second largest item of $64.75 was for recreation, including movies, concerts, lectures, sports and sports equipment, extra food, cigarettes, meals for guests, hotel bills and dances.

Health and appearance (meaning soap, toothpaste, cosmetics, shampoos, etc.) account for $26.02 of the spending quota. The maximum spent for these necessities was $90. Other expenses met annually are: Contributions and gifts, $29.79; room furnishings, $9.18; medical and dental attention, $16.40; travel, not including vacation, $27.65; incidentals, $14.33.

More and more students each year are being allowed by their parents to administer their own finances. Nearly 70 per cent of the Hollins students receive allowances. These vary from $5 to $100 monthly, with an average of $19.60.

Your Figure, Madame!

Women, 21 to 50, Enroll for Exercise to Keep Trim Lines.

By Ida Jean Kain.

SINCE EXERCISE has moved over to Fifth avenue, all the best people have taken it up! This sudden popularity of the daily dozen is due to the fact that figures have become of first concern in the quest for beauty.

Statistics show that the age of enrollment for exercise runs from 21 to 50, with the greatest number between 30 and 40. No woman of any age wants to lose her trim waist and slim hips.

The emphasis, in exercise, is no longer place on muscular development but, rather, on curve control. The whole idea back of modern exercise is to normalize the measurements. The objective is a slimly sculptured figure.

Scientific exercise applies the laws of body mechanics. For there is more to exercise than you might suppose. Muscles give your figure shape, and stray curves or disfiguring hollows are evidence of lazy muscles in those areas. In order to reach these spots you will have to put the lazy muscles to work, and that's where kinesiology comes in.

Kinesiology? That's the science behind your daily dozen. It gives you the most effective exercise positions for bringing the idle muscles back to tone and form.

Bending exercises do not reduce your tummy, and stretching exercises do not affect your hipline. If you will keep the correct exercise positions in mind while you are going through your daily dozen, you can make your figure over into perfect proportions. No matter how hopeless your figure may appear, you can bring it back to lovely line.

The hip measurement, which designates hips and buttocks, can best be slimmed with exercises which raise the leg to an angle of 45 degrees. Since in the day's routine there is little activity which requires this angle, hips are the chief feminine worry.

There are only two exercises movements which perfect the thighline. The inner and outer thigh muscles can be strengthened and the thighs tapered and beautified when the legs are swung from side to side, also in flexing the knee. Dancing brings the hips and the thighs into these effective positions, and as a rule dancers have beautifully molded figures.

You have a choice of three positions for firming the stomach muscles. You may lie flat on the back and contract the lower abdominal muscles. You may get down on the hands and knees with the lower abdominal wall retracted. You can also affect these muscles to a remarkable degree in the reflex contraction of stretching or hanging from a bar.

The waistline muscles are most benefited by twisting and stretching. All suppling exercises slim the waist.

Exercises to beautify the arms, bust and shoulders are those which are performed with the arms at shoulder level or with the arms high overhead.

Exercise can correct your figure faults.

Pleasant Homes.

Every lady deserves so much frivolity in her life, and about the easiest way to have it is in an absurdly fluttery dressing table with a skirt that looks like the favorite party dress of your dancing days. Elizabeth MacRae Boykin's article on the woman's page tomorrow discusses the whys and wherefors as well as a few fashion trends in draped dressing tables. Watch for it if you're in the market for ideas on how to have a pretty home without spending much money.

Women Reveal Diverse Ideas On 'Ideal Man'

By The Associated Press.

LONDON.—A literary luncheon discussion by women on the subject of "my ideal man" has revealed an amazing difference in opinion and brought a degree of mental comfort to the ordinary, average, purely garden-type of men.

Not every woman wants a man to be tall, marvelously proportioned, unreservedly handsome, and supremely masterful.

It happened at a luncheon at a leading London Hotel. The women were numerous, intelligent, and on the whole attractive, including some of London's outstanding and beautiful actresses.

"Now my ideal man," said Edith Day, actress, "is any man with whom at the moment I happen to be in love."

"The one quality I want of a man is that I feel he is my master . . . I want that fine natural male arrogance which says I am a man and you are a woman, so now get on wit it."

Quite a few of the men present at the luncheon drooped like faded flowers on that one, but Miss Jeanne de Casalis brought what might be called indirect encouragement.

Said she: "The really nice women like a man who is either a little bit of a bounder or a weak, pathetic little creature. A woman likes someone she can either reform or someone she can stand behind and hold up." She added that women didn't go in for ideals; they were realists.

Man Advises Humorist.

Miss Marie Burke said she couldn't really cope with the idea of an ideal man. Her description of an ideal man for musical comedy ran as follows:

He must be 6 feet tall and I don't care what color his eyes or hair. He must have no stomach and sing like Richard Tauber."

One recipe for the "ideal man" was this:

"You take a Gary Cooper stature with a Robert Taylor smile and profile, add the modest charm of the Duke of Windsor and mix with the mental and spiritual quality of a grand, adventurous brain like Winston Churchill's. Spice with Bernard Shaw wit and the pathetic humanity of John Galsworthy."

It took a man to top the discussion off and George Robey, comedian did it. Said he: "My ideal man is the man who can make his wife laugh at home, because, just as no man is a hero to his valet, so no husband is a comic to his wife."

Chunky bolero—high fashion pet of the Paris openings introduced by Chanel and Rochas! Brought to you in a costume suit at a price you'd almost expect to pay for the bolero alone! Briefly topping a high buttoning nub wool of penciled slimness. More Paris in the hug throat lines, hook and eye Schiaparelli front closings, boxy to-the-wrist sleeves of the lapin bolero. Feel as if you had just stepped off a French liner with other front-page notables—you will in this suit, and for only $39.75. Misses' Sizes 12-20.

A WOMAN'S NEW YORK

By Alice Hughes.

New York, Sept. 10.

ALICE HUGHES.

IT IS precisely on this day that I sort of weaken on the bright-eyed flowers of spring, and begin to feel that the big, buxom chrysanthemum is the posy of posies. For of all the days of all the bloomin' year, the football Saturday is my great delight—even though I have to hobble into the stadium on two sticks, my co-ed days so many years behind me.

It's the air, it's the dither of the game, it's the young in the seats—so dewy, so good to look at, so ignorant of the mess that awaits them when the last whistle has blown and the stands are empty after the last big game. No—I don't think it is possible to beat the Saturday afternoon football for sheer heart-warming thrill, even though it has a nostalgic quality that causes an occasional pang on the left side of the ribs!

I have a feeling that the pretty little girls are going to be more colorful than ever this fall, as they twitter to their seats in the wake of the boy friend. The vogue for bright plaid sport coats is going to brighten up the stands no end—aided, as usual, by the helpful florists. And topping the ensemble, if the minx knows her 1937 ensemble, will be a gay beret to match; the whole effect being that of a fancy lumber-jill in technicolor!

So blow the whistles from coast to coast, and let the ceremonial kick-off be delivered. The next eight or nine Saturdays are going to be about the most jolly of the year, and old Aunt Alice is going to be wheeled to the 50-yard line every week, sciatica or no!

GIRL ABOUT TOWN—It is no end cheering to realize that our British girl cousins are just as goofy as we are in the matter gods. Weren't you cheered to read that several hundred London girls fought to a finish over a cigarette stub that Bobby Taylor nochalantly flicked from his hotel balcony? No wonder Britannia rules! The worst we ever did was tear a shoe off the poor creature!

A sudden rash of books by opera stars erupts. Frances Alda's gorgeously titled tome, "Men, Women and Tenors," is due this month, and then will arrive "Eternal Flight," by Lotta Lehmann. But the good old professional typewriter-pounders will be represented by "We Are Ten," a collection of short stories by the eternal and ineffable Fannie Hurst.

One of the smartest stores on upper Fifth avenue rocked us all back on our run-over heels the other day with its exhibition of eight new mannequins, titled "Form Divine," by Mrs. Sara Pennoyer, who thinks up its inspired promotion. The wax women combine the striking features of a Lillian Russell and the startling models at the Paris County Fair. Tiny waist, uplifted bosom, no hips and long, streamlined legs. And as far as I could see, from the first sample of "Form Divine," daring clothes. Well worth a jaunt up the avenue, ladies . . .

Helen Wills Moody, the new divorcee, has spread her clothes-designing activities from tennis to golf, now. I hear she's even playing it, too!

Mixing Her Prize-Winning Cup Cakes

In her attractive kitchen at 2000 Connecticut avenue northwest Mrs. Elsie D. Farrell whips together the almond cakes in paper cases, the recipe winning first award in last week's Favorite Recipe Contest. The cakes, mixed and decorated before baking, minimize preparation time for smart housewives.

Mrs. Elsie Farrell's Recipe for Almond Cakes Quickly Made Wins The Post's Weekly Contest

Mrs. Jessamine Charles' Caramel Date Supreme Receives Award.

By Jean Green.

IT WAS encouraging last week to see the response to the Favorite Recipe Contest. Entries came not only from Washington but also from many surrounding States. old - fashioned cup-cake recipes vied with modern adaptations. There were peanut butter cup cakes, cocoanut fillings, banana creams, and mocha chocolate to mention a few of them.

JEAN GREEN.

The first award was given to Mrs. Elsie D. Farrell, of 2000 Connecticut avenue northwest. Her recipe is practical and simple to prepare. The texture of the cake is excellent. The batter when it is mixed and ready to go into the paper cases resembles nothing so much as thick whipped cream. The cakes need no special icing as they are decorated at the same time they are made. This is a boon when cooking time is limited.

Mrs. Farrell is a Washingtonian by adoption and is employed in the Interior Department.

In her hurried business life, she has found this recipe easy to prepare for her bridge parties and afternoon teas.

Collecting recipes that have appeared in the daily papers and in magazines has been Mrs. Farrell's hobby for years. Her recipe today wins the cash prize of $3. It is a smart recipe and I believe you will want to make sure it is clipped and filed for your future baking days.

Almond Cakes in Paper Cases.

¾ cup of butter
½ cup of sugar
4 egg yolks
¼ cup of milk
⅞ cup of flour
1 1-3 teaspoon of baking powder
Shredded almonds
Powdered sugar

Cream butter, add sugar gradually, egg yolks well beaten, milk and flour sifted with baking powder. Put in paper cases, sprinkle with shredded almonds and powdered sugar and bake in a moderately hot oven. The oven temperature should be 375 degrees, the time of baking 20 minutes, the number of servings 8.

The second prize of $2 was awarded Mrs. Jessamine Charles, 2426 Fourteenth street northwest, for her caramel date supreme cup cakes. The baked cup cakes are stuffed with rich filling and iced with delicious caramel icing. A word of warning in making the filling: Be sure to stir it from time to time during cooking to prevent it from scorching.

Caramel Date Supreme.

2-3 cup of margarine, melted
1 cup of sugar
3 eggs, beaten
6 tablespoons of milk
½ teaspoon of vanilla
¼ teaspoon of lemon flavoring
2 cups of cake flour
2 teaspoons of baking powder
½ teaspoon of salt

Combine the melted margarine and the sugar. Add the eggs and beat until light. Add the milk and flavoring alternately with the flour which has been sifted with the baking powder and salt, mixing thoroughly after each addition. Place in greased and floured cup-cake pans and bake in a moderate oven (350 to 375 degrees) for about 25 minutes. Remove the cakes from the oven, cool and scoop out the centers (centers may be reserved for refrigerator cake). Ice the cakes with caramel icing and fill the scooped cup centers with a date filling. Top with whipped cream and serve with coffee.

Date Filling.

1 cup of stoned chopped dates
½ cup of walnuts, chopped
6 marshmallows, cut in small pieces
½ teaspoon of vanilla
1 cup of whipped cream

Combine the dates, walnut and marshmallows and place in the center of the cup cakes. Whip the cream until stiff, sweeten with sugar to taste and flavor with the vanilla.

Caramel Icing.

1½ cups of brown sugar
1½ cups of granulated sugar
1½ cups of milk
2 tablespoons of butter

Combine the sugar and milk and boil until it forms a soft ball (238 degrees). Add the butter and remove from the stove. Cool until lukewarm, then beat to the right consistency for spreading. Spread on the top edge and side of the cup cakes.

If you like spice, you certainly will want to try this recipe winning third prize. The cakes are light and have a delicious flavor. The recipe was sent in by Mrs. W. J. Garrison, 815 Brown avenue, Columbus, Ga.

Pecan and Raisin Cup Cakes.

1 cup of butter
2¼ cups of sugar
4 cups of sifted cake flour
1 cup of sweet milk
4 eggs
4 teaspoons of baking powder (If powder calls for 2 teaspoons to a cup of flour, use more)
1 cup of seedless raisins
1 cup of pecans, chopped
1 teaspoon of vanilla
6 teaspoons of allspice

Sift the flour, powders and allspice together three times. Cream the sifted sugar with butter. Use fresh butter if possible. Add the flour and milk a little at a time, saving out some flour to sift over and work into the raisins and pecans.

Recipe Contest

Marshmallows are just the trick for dressing up the fall desserts and salads. They give a new personality and flavor to all sorts of dishes, and now become the theme of our new favorite recipe contest.

Its 10 to 1 that you have in your recipe files a new recipe for using this food. Perhaps it is mashed sweet potatoes in orange cups with a marshmallow topping, a new sherbet recipe with a marshmallow base, a marshmallow cake filling recipe or a new combination fruit dessert. Whatever it is, enter it in this week's contest.

The first prize will be a cash award of $3, the second prize, $2 and the other three prizes $1 each.

Write out your recipe neatly, giving exact directions and mail to Miss Jean Green, Post Food Editor, so it will be received before September 18. Only one recipe will be accepted from each entrant.

Pecan and Raisin, Southern Cup Cake Formulae Are Listed.

Add the vanilla and beaten egg yolks. Beat well. Add the nuts and raisins. Fold in the whites of eggs well beaten. Bake in greased pans.

Southern Cup Cakes.

2 eggs
1 cup of sugar
2 cups of flour
½ cup of butter
½ cup of ice water
2 teaspoons of baking powder

Cream the butter and sugar. Add the ice water, then the dry ingredients. Add the eggs well beaten and flavoring desired. Put in buttered muffin tins and bake 20 minutes in a medium oven. Cover with white frosting.

White Frosting.

Boil together 2 cups of sugar, 6 tablespoons of hot water and 1 teaspoon of lemon juice until the mixture spins a thread. Pour gradually over the stiffly beaten whites of two eggs. Flavor to taste and beat until cool.

The fifth prize goes to Mrs. Byron B. Newell, 29 East Williams lane, Chevy Chase, Md. The recipe is rich with nuts, and quite moist. It will be a treat for the after-school lunch.

Cup Cake Marguerites.

2 eggs slightly beaten
1 cup of brown sugar
½ cup of flour
¼ teaspoon of baking powder
1-3 teaspoon of salt
1 cup of pecan meats, chopped

Sift the dry ingredients. Mix ingredients in order given. Bake in moderate oven. This makes 6 cup cakes.

For Sweetening.

Use sugar syrup instead of granulated sugar for sweetening chilled beverages and punches. Boil together for three minutes two cups of granulated sugar and three cups of water. Allow the syrup to cool, then store it in a covered jar in the refrigerator.

Salad Course Requires Good Serving Form

By Margaret Wallace

GOOD FORM in serving the salad course either at a formal or informal event is important to the hostess, as this course more than perhaps any other offers her opportunity for individuality in serving.

While any book of etiquette gives precise directions as to the salad course and its place on the formal dinner menu, yet there are Washington hostesses who deviate with real success from the usual procedure.

The College of Preachers of the Washington Cathedral is responsible for an innovation in Washington in salad serving. At this clerical center, the salad is always served before the dinner. Other hostesses who excel in salad making proudly have the ingredients brought to the table, where they mix, season and "toss" the salad while the admiring guests look on. This must, of course, be done with as much grace as it requires to preside at a tea table correctly, and the butler or waitress must be on the alert to serve the salad when it is mixed. The serving can be accomplished by placing empty salad plates before the guests and allowing them to help themselves from the salad bowl, or the hostess can serve the salad she has mixed on salad plates and the butler or waitress can place them before the guests.

As a Regular Course.

When the salad is served as a regular course in the usual way, it is proper to place it already arranged on the plates before the guests, and then pass the salad dressing, allowing the guests to help themselves. It is always necessary to have a large fork and spoon in the salad bowl for serving.

The preference of Southern people for salad with meat has established a custom among many Washington hostesses of serving the salad with the meat course. The salad can be served in side plates. There are very attractive crescent-shaped salad plates that do not take up much room.

Knives, or No Knives?

For the family dinner served by the housewife, or with one maid, the salad may be placed on the table at the beginning of the meal. Some housewives even, when the service is informal, like to serve the salad as a separate course. A convenient and quite proper way is to serve the salad from a salad bowl placed before the mother or some other member of the family.

The question of how to eat certain salads is of great importance in the category of good table manners. Salad is always eaten with a fork, preferably a salad fork. Knives are never used to cut salad. However, it is remembered that a Secretary of State provided knives as well as salad forks for hearts of lettuce salad when he entertained an important foreign delegation at a "stag luncheon." He explained that it was impossible to cut the hard, crisp hearts of lettuce with a salad fork, and that his guests had more important matters to consider than how to manage to eat the hearts of lettuce. Since then, Washington hostesses have often provided knives for the salad course when it includes hearts of lettuce.

The rule that salad must never be taken up in the fingers also has some notable exceptions in Washington. A visiting distinguished woman from another land once astounded the dinner guests by picking up the lettuce leaves, dressing and all, and daintily eating them.

Banana Tricorne Salad.

Ripe creamy bananas outline the three sides of a fruit salad triangle when they're arranged this way: Quarter a peeled ripe banana by cutting once crosswise and once lengthwise. Arrange three of the banana quarters to form a triangle on each salad plate. Pile canned or fresh cherries or purple grapes in the center of the triangle. Cut canned pineapple rounds into halves, and arrange three or four overlapping in a row at "apex" of banana triangle. Place wedges of cheese on each side of the bananas and garnish with greens. Serve with French dressing.

Girl Furnishes Cooking Variety

Time was when we roasted and fried, fried and roasted. Now every stove has its oft-used grill. Even the old-fashioned wood ranges turn out a grilled delight when you use one of those wire toasters, and the camp stove and bonfire permit you to take your grilling outside.

There are few rules to the grilling technique. One thing—be sure your rack doesn't stick to the food. Rub it well with a bit of suet or mazola before using, and use a bit of paper and the oil to clean it after using, before washing. Don't keep turning the food while it's grilling; makes it tough and de-juices it. Try to get it done on one side, then turn it over and finish the process. Only one drawback to it all—you really should watch your grilling rather closely. If you're an expert you probably know how long each food takes "to a side," but do keep one eye bent stoveward while the broiling is going on.

Plan Housework.

The wise housekeeper plans her day's work in advance. One help is to straighten up the living room before retiring. If chairs are in place, papers picked up, ash trays emptied and window shades adjusted, the room may be quickly dusted in the morning.

Only $1.88 Per Person Is Weekly Food Average

In a survey recently made of 5,000 families of middle-class means it was found that only $1.88 was being spent per person in one week on food. On an average the menu consisted of white bread, meat, potatoes and ready-cooked cereals. One woman's comment was, "My husband doesn't care much for anything else but meat and potatoes and bread, so that's all I buy." Yet the up-to-date physician would advise her against taking too literally the now-exploded theory that what one likes is good for one, because he knows how easily tastes are developed or warped.

Cheese Gains Popularity For Dessert

Is Effectively Combined With Fruits on Many Tables.

Edam, Camembert, Brie Gruyere, Roquefort Are Popular.

THE FALL FRUIT season offers an opportunity to be sophisticated in desserts and follow a food trend that is manifesting itself increasingly in this country.

In her recent book, "Serve it Forth," M. K. F. Fisher is so optimistic as to predict that the fresh fruit and cheese combination popular with food connoisseurs will in time replace the rich gooey cakes, pies and puddings now in common use in American homes. Here in Washington are many who will agree. In smart Washington homes the finishing touch to the menu frequently is rare cheese, perhaps wine, and chilled fresh fruit.

This appears to be a very healthful practice. The dessert is simple and brings a satisfying conclusion to the menu. For generations on the continent it has been enjoyed.

Learn Your Cheeses.

If this practice is to gain universal acceptance here, it behooves smart menu planners to keep on their toes in learning of the new dessert cheeses and ways available for serving them.

A trip to one of the more famous cheese departments brought a new realization of how many dessert cheeses are available. Among the famous ones are the Edam, Camembert, Roquefort, Liederkranz, gruyere, Brie and pineapple. Each of these cheeses has a distinctive flavor and a special manner of serving. Only two are native Americans, the pineapple and Liederkranz. For the most part the other come from the continent and their flavors vary according to the countries from which they come.

As a usual thing, these cheeses are served with crisp crackers, thin slices of dry toast and with fresh fruits. The Bartlett pears are perfect with Camembert and Brie. Plums, peaches, Tokay grapes and green seedless make colorful fruits to serve with the cheese. Later, ruddy cheeked apples will be available.

Edam Is Favorite.

If you are not certain of the cheese taste of your guests, it is best to serve a choice of cheeses with your fruit.

Camembert is a dessert cheese that has been popular for years. It recently has been put on the market successfully by an American manufacturer. It is a soft cheese, easily spread with a distinctive flavor.

Another favorite is the imported Edam which comes as a scarlet sphere with a soft white center. It is served by cutting off the top and making a scalloped edge. The lid is reserved to use over the cheese when it is stored. To serve the cheese, wrap in a folded napkin, place on the serving tray and pass with cheese scoop or spoon. Thin slices of brown bread toast or crisp Melba toast is an excellent accompaniment. For small parties, the same cheese is available in loaf form so that it can be sliced to ½-inch slices or served in cubes.

The pineapple cheese is really American cheddar cheese molded into a bee hive shape and aged in cheese cloth molds. The outside is waxed. It is served in the same manner as the Edam.

Is Like Camembert.

Brie is something like Camembert and is imported. Its flavor is excellent with fresh pears and other fresh fruit. A similar cheese with even a more mild flavor than the Brie is imported from Italy. It is the Bel Paese and has a creamy solid texture so it can be sliced and served on the tray with the fruit. Norwegian flat bread is delicious with it.

Gorgonzola is an Italian Brie, with a mild flavor. Gruyere is another universal favorite and has a creamy mellow flavor.

There are many other types available so there is no chance for motonony when the new simple dessert regime is inaugurated.

Any of the fresh fruits in season may be effectively combined with the cheeses. Right now they may include pears, peaches, plums and grapes.

Dessert for Sophisticated Palates

Colors of Fruit Are Attractive In Salad Bowl

Almost every homemaker is salad conscious these days. In planning menus, the question is not whether or not salad is needed, but just what salad will be best.

The markets now offer a wide assortment of fruits for salad bowls. These can be combined in a great many ways. Often the arrangement of the fruit in the bowl will mar the eye appeal.

The colors of the fruit should contrast. The deep red of plums contrasts with silver pears and green seedless grapes. Golden hearts of peachers, and pink watermelon balls can be used successfully in these fresh fruit combinations.

The latest trend is to place these fruits together in definite groups. Serve the fruits on a wide chop plate or in a deep bowl with a garnish of lettuce or chicory.

Here is a fruit combination chosen from fruits available this week on the market. Substitutes can be made as desired.

Fresh Fruit Salad.

3 slices or orange
4 slices of pink-cheeked apples
4 crescents of cantaloupe
4 banana fingers
Watermelon cubes
Seedless grapes
Quarters of peaches

Prepare the apple, peach and banana slices and dip into lemon juice to prevent them from becoming dark. Arrange the fruits in groups on a chop plate. Garnish with chicory. Pass honey French dressing with the salad.

'Brunch' Replacing Early Breakfasts

A mid-morning meal is taking the place of the early breakfast in many households on Sundays and holidays. This hearty "brunch," as it is called, is filling and adequate unless there are young children in the family who need meals on schedule.

Brunch.

Orange Juice
Lamb Kidneys and Bacon
Pan Broiled Tomato Halves
Toasted Doughnut Rings
Coffee Milk
Fruit Bowl

Instead of the toasted doughnut rings, sweet rolls or nut buns, purchased ready to serve, can be used. Danish pastry is delicious, especially when dotted with butter and placed in the oven for a few minutes before being served. Muffins made from the ready-to-mix flours can be whipped together in a few minutes.

PLEASANT HOMES

By Elizabeth MacRae Boykin.

THE TROUBLE with Edith's dining room was that it was all right. Not a thing the matter with it except that it was just a little outdated. A built-in buffet and a built-in colonade and cupboard effect were Edith's main banes and yet they were useful and not really eyesores. Furthermore, there wasn't a lot of money to throw at the birds, so any changes would have to be done chiefly by work rather than by any additions of new furniture.

So Edith and Fred sat down and tried to get a stranger's eye view of the room. The easiest solution, of course, would have been to tear out the colonade effect entirely and combine the living room and dining room. But they needed the two separate rooms, so Fred replaced the colonade with a bookcase partition going about half way up with an opening in it the width of double doors, the book shelves facing toward the living room. Then the walls of the living room were painted a canary yellow, while those of the dining room were done in robin's egg blue, creating thereby an "invisible wall" above the bookcase partition. The top section of the built-in buffet, which included a mirror and two tiers of glassed-in shelves at either side, was removed, leaving only the lower drawer compartment. Fred built open and shallow hanging shelves to go above this drawer compartment and on these shelves they placed Edith's prettiest pottery plates and mugs to contribute a pleasant pattern to the room.

Since the living room rug was cedar colored and the furniture coverings in a pleasant blue and in brown, they slip covered the old dining chairs in a figured chintz with a cedar-colored ground and flowers predominantly blue. In both rooms the curtains were yellow theatrical gauze and accessories were in yellow pottery.

The trouble with many a perfectly good room is just the thing that ailed Edith's old dining room . . . it looks like 1921 with everything still too good to discard. Usually the main answer is to be found in slip covers, which are a king cure-all. But many a time a bit of refixing of shelves will do the trick, such as taking off the glass doors and painting the insides a contrasting color. Or replacing a fancy colonade with simple shallow shelves. Or doing something smart with a wall paper border. Or just making a clean sweep of pictures and ornaments (you'd be surprised how they give your age away) and replace them with newer or older ones more carefully chosen.

Start Your Indoor Garden

DOESN'T IT sound delightful? Your living room a bower of bloom from frost to spring from bulbs you can start now—in one short afternoon's work.

The marvelous colchium or autumn crocus needs literally only a few days in a dish of water to burst into rosy flowers, so it happily begins your indoor garden in October.

Narcissus started at the same time blooms several weeks later—in November. Put the bulbs in a dish with pebbles and water and keep for a few weeks in a cool, dark pantry.

The Dutch hyacinths for December, calla lilies for January and daffodils for February you plant now in pots—in two parts garden soil and one part sharp sand. Hyacinths and daffodils you keep in a cool, dark spot or in a cold frame until their blooming periods are near. The calla does best if it's put right away on a sunny window sill.

Lilies of the valley you can delay starting until late February. For at that season blooms come three weeks after you start the pips. They grow in a bowl of water with sand or fiber, and ask to be kept in a dark, warm spot until they have 3-inch shoots.

Then complete your indoor garden by starting a sprig or two of wandering jew. This graceful vine flourishes in water with little care. Ferns are lovely, too—particularly the Boston and the asparagus ferns. In fall keep them a little on the dry side.

Many more pointers for indoor gardens are given in our 40-page booklet, "Success with House Plants and Flowers." Terrariums, dish gardens, house plants. A treasure for the indoor gardener.

Send 15 cents for our booklet, "Success With House Plants and Flowers," to The Washington Post, Home Institute, 109 West Nineteenth Street, New York, N. Y. Write plainly your name, address and the name of booklet.

To Remove Crystals.

Crystals sometimes form on grape jelly. Although they are cream of tartar crystals and are, therefore, harmless, many people do not like their appearance. To get rid of crystals, place the drained juice in a jar and let it stand over night. The crystals are likely to form on top, and may be removed easily.

New Vegetables, Fish and Fruit Reach Market

Cabbage, Peppers and Black-Eyed Peas Abundant and Cheap.

AT THE Washington markets this week we find a few vegetables which have just made their appearance, such as turnips, cultivated dandelions and parsnips. Savory cabbage and green peppers at a low price and black-eyed peas (fresh) are invaluable sources for the menu planner to obtain changes in the daily diet. Potato prices are low, probably due to the richness of the soil from recent rains.

Lima beans and peas have advanced in price in comparison with summer lows. Red tomatoes and yellow egg tomatoes, at slightly increased prices, are plentiful. Some mushrooms are available and parsley, mint and watercress for garnish are on the market.

Celery, green onions, radishes, lettuce, cucumbers, along with cabbage, already mentioned, are the raw vegetables available for a delightful salad bowl. Mustard greens and turnip greens are more unusual foods to be purchased.

Melons of all varieties, such as honey dew, Rocky Ford cantaloupe, mellow gold, Persians and casabas with a large range in price still are available. Concord grapes fast disappearing, still can be purchased. Peaches at a low price are abundant. The Macintosh apple, a good cooker and a fair eater, is a popular variety for consumption. Quinces for jelly making purposes have come into Washington markets.

At the water front we find local varieties of fish, such as rock, trout and croakers, Southern shipped fish, such as red snappers, bluefish and speckled trout and northern fillet of haddock and Boston mackerel.

Stuffed Pineapples.

Pineapples may be used for holding appetizers, salads or desserts. Use pineapples of uniformly medium size. Cut them in halves lengthwise and, using a fork, scrape out the pulp. (It may be used later.) Wash and chill the cases. Stuff them with fruit, melons or berries.

Apple Batter Pudding Hits the Spot With Approach of Crisp Autumn Days

Apple batter pudding belongs to the first crisp days of fall. Its spicy fragrance appeals to sharpened appetites. Serve it warm with cream

Apple Batter Pudding.

4 to 5 tart apples
¼ cup sugar
2 tablespoons butter
½ teaspoon cinnamon
¼ cup hot water
1 egg
½ cup sugar
1 tablespoon softened butter
¾ cup bread flour
1 teaspoon baking powder
2 tablespoons butter.

Core and pare apples and cut in slices, crosswise. Put into deep pudding dish, sprinkle with sugar and cinnamon, add tablespoons of butter, cut in small pieces and pour water over the top.

Spread over the top a batter made as follows:

Beat the egg light, add the sugar gradually and continue beating, then the softened butter and last the flour mixed with the baking powder. Dot over the top of the batter with two more tablespoons of butter and bake in a moderately hot oven (400 degrees F.) until the apples are soft. This will take about half an hour.

Yield: Four servings.

This Morning

Bronko Nagurski Visits Our Fair Village.

By Shirley Povich.

At first blush you felt just a trifle sorry for the great hulk of a guy who was up on his feet, toying with his unused soup spoon and a stray fork as he tried to find words to acknowledge the luncheon in his honor. Bronko Nagurski, you guessed, would a thousand times rather be lugging his 230 pounds and a football through the walls of the place.

POVICH.

The embarassment that was written across his features as he heard himself introduced before the Touchdown Club and the Minnesota State Society at the Harrington Hotel was something to see. A tinge of red crept around the tips of his ears as he heard himself described as Minnesota's greatest football immortal, and he had squirmed uncomfortably in his chair as a succession of speakers hailed him as the wrestling champion of the world.

• • • •

And so his appearance was utterly disarming when, at long last, he raised himself to his feet and began haltingly to say that he appreciated all this. There was something plaintive about it as he made excuses for his speechmaking and then——he drew down the house!

• • • •

"I'm a know," said Bronko, "it's nice to be in Washington. Wrestling has taken me into most of the big cities in the country, but I can truthfully say, honest, that I have met more friends of mine—more Minnesotans—in Washington than in any other town I've been."

• • • •

"There must be some easy money here."

• • • •

The Bronko, who was once described as the only fullback who ran interference for himself, revealed that he had been wrestling so steadily he needed a vacation. He said he was going to take a nice, long rest this fall—by playing professional football with the Chicago Bears.

• • • •

Of course, the fact that Nagurski is now recognized as the world's wrestling champion in most places didn't prove a drawback in his 1937 contract negotiations with the Chicago Bears. He wangled a salary out of 'em that is exactly double what he was paid in 1936 when he already was tops among the gridiron mercenaries.

• • • •

He was telling the folks after the food had been stowed away how it was quite by accident that he broke into the rassling racket—an accident to his manager, Tony Stecher, who dug Bronko up out of a gymnasium at one of the amateur clubs in Minneapolis, back in '33. But Stecher finished the story.

• • • •

"Guys around Minneapolis were telling me that Bronko could wrestle, but they were always tipping me off about this or that football player who couldn't get out of his own way on the mat. But I kept hearing these stories about Nagurski until I got downright curious about him.

• • • •

"I used to wrestle myself, when I wasn't managing my brother, Joe Stecher, who was world's champion twice. I was a pretty good middleweight in my day and was still working at it when I hunted up Nargurski in the gym of that amateur club. Thought I'd work out with him and see what he had. We went at it for five minutes, and I signed him to a contract right then and there."

• • • •

Only five minues?

• • • •

"Yeah, that Bronko broke a couple of my holds like there was nobody else in the ring but him. Then he picked me up, banged me on the floor with a body slam, broke two of my ribs and put me in the hospital for three weeks. I figured anybody who could do that to me was going to go pretty far in this business.

• • • •

Cox Downed By Nazurski In 40 Mins.

Grid Star, Colorless, but Effective; Spins and Tackles Decide.

By Bob Garrison.

Buckin' Bronko Nagurski, the 236-pound blond wizard, who earned his reputation as an All-American football player who needed no interference, had to have the way cleared for him last night as he successfully defended his world's heavyweight wrestling championship against Joe Cox, of Kansas, at Griffith Stadium.

Four thousand persons, the largest crowd of the current season, watched the former Minnesota grid great pin his villainous foe with a series of flying tackles and airplane-spins after 40 minutes of one-sided grappling in which the referee, Billy Clark, National Wrestling Association's selection, collaborated with the champ in disposing of his fourth victim since he won the crown from Dean Denton.

Nagurski Colorless.

As colorless as the dark center field behind the wrestling stage, Nagurski failed miserably to arouse the spectators one way or the other as he methodically went about his task of winning. And, self assured, he suffered but little punishment at the hands of Cox. Each brutal hold that Cox applied was quickly broken by Referee Clark.

The end came suddenly after Cox had been hurled from one side of the ring to the other, beaten about the face, and catapulted through the ropes numerous times. Nagurski, used his football training to advantage, when he threw three body blocks at the stunned Kansan, tackled him and then took him for an over the head merry-go-round ride.

Came the Finish.

At this point, under Cox's 227 pounds, the merry-go-round broke down, with Nagurski emerging on top of his weary foe, pinning him without a tussle.

Ray Steele, veteran title claimant, defeated Bill Sledge, of Texas, in the semifinal match in 18½ minutes with a series of body slams. They offered the best demonstration of grips of the evening.

In preliminary events, Abe Coleman and Wee Willie Davies, billed as the battle of "David and Goliath," wrestled to a 30-minute draw, as did Al Mercier, of Canada, and Rudy Dusek, Omaha veteran; and Billy Hansen pinned Eddie Cook in 10½ minutes with a body press.

Year's 21st Smash Beats Wes Ferrell

Ross, Tight in Pinches, Issues 8 Passes in Series Finale.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Philadelphia, Sept. 10.—Bungling their scoring chances with such consistency that 14 Nats were left holding the bag, Bucky Harris' Washington athletes were slapped down today by the seventh-place Athletics, 5 to 3.

It was mostly the fault of three guys—Outfielder Bob Johnson, who pumped his twenty-first home run of the season into the leftfield seats with two men on base in the fourth inning, and the Nats' Freddie Sington and Cecil Travis, who couldn't stir up a hit when a hit was sorely needed.

The defeat was marked against Wesley Cheek Ferrell, who encountered two damaging innings—the fourth and the seventh—when he surrendered to the A's six of their ten hits and all of their runs. Actually, the Nats outhit Connie Mack's crew, but when Washington athletes could be scored in bunches young Lee Ross frustrated the Nats nicely.

Nats' Lead Disappears.

Washington's 1-to-0 lead disappeared in the fourth inning when the first three batters to face Ferrell connected solidly. Newsome singled to left, Werber doubled to right and then it was that Johnson bashed that homer of his to put the A's in front, 3 to 1.

They made it 5-1 in the seventh after two were out. Ross had walked and Moses had forced him when Werber looped a single to center that scored Moses, who had stolen second. Werber then promptly stole second and Johnson pushed him home with a single past Travis.

The Nats had bounced into a 1-0 lead in the third after Rookie George Case, who was to make three hits, beat out a single to Newsome. Two walks filled the bases, but the rally sagged in the middle when Lewis popped up for the second out. Travis' high bounder through the box scored one run, but Freddie Sington obliged the A's by forcing Travis and leaving three of his pals stranded.

Sington Ends Rally.

Sington brought a fifth-inning uprising to an unhappy end when, after Almada had walked, Lewis had beat out a bunt, and Travis sacrificed, he fouled out. And in the sixth, with three on base and Ross wavering, Travis could only produce a tame grounder that Werber converted into a force play.

Washington filled the bases again in the eighth with one out, but could stir up only one run which scored on Lewis' fly. Sington ended that threat with a meek bounder back to Pitcher Ross.

Bosox Beat Yanks, 4-3, In 1 Inning

Get All Hits and Runs in Single Frame to Whip Leaders.

By the Associated Press.

New York, Sept. 10.—The Boston Red Sox clubbed out six hits and all their runs in one inning today to make it two straight over the Yankees with a 4-to-0 victory.

Lefty Grove pitched a seven-hitter to turn in his fifteenth pitching victory of the year. He was in trouble only in the sixth when three hits produced two Yankee runs, and the seventh, when another pair of safeties added the other New York tally.

Except for those two frames, and the big Boston rally in the fourth, it was a pitchers' battle all the way between Grove and Ivy Paul Andrews, who gave way to Johnny Murphy at the start of the ninth.

Col. Mills opened the fourth inning for the Sox with a double. Ben Chapman and Gene DeSautels singled in order; a run came in on Bobby Doerr's force-out and then Doc Cramer, Joe Cronin and Jimmy Foxx singled in order to put the game on ice.

Si Johnson, Card Hurler, Hit by Ball

Slight Concussion Said to Be Result of the Accident.

By the Associated Press.

Chicago, Sept. 10.—Si Johnson, veteran St. Louis Cardinals' right-hander, suffered a slight concussion today when he was hit on the head by a batted ball during pregame practice preceding the Cards' game with the Chicago Cubs.

JOHNSON.

A line foul from the bat of Cubs' first baseman, Phil Cavarretta, hit Johnson as he was sitting in the Cards' dugout and felled him.

He was rushed to a hospital (Edgewater), where Dr. John F. Davis, Cubs' team physician, examined him, nd then announced:

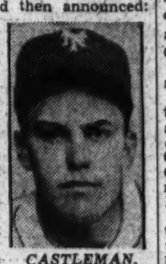
Memphis, Tenn., Sept. 10.—Clydell Castleman said today he had no hope of recovering from an injury this year in time to help the New York Giants in their National League pennant drive.



CASTLEMAN.

The big right-hand pitcher came here this morning for examination by Dr. John K. Speed.

"Dr. Speed was noncommittal," Castleman said. "He said he could tell me nothing until he had made more thorough examinations."

Flanagan Sets Three New Swimming Marks

Ralph Wins 440-Yard Free-Style Mark and Sets Records in 300-Yard and 400-Meter Events; Kiefer Keeps 100-Meter Title.

(By the Associated Press)

Chicago, Sept. 10.—Ralph Flanagan, of Miami, Fla., stroked to three New American records today as he won his second straight National A. A. U. 440-yard free-style championship, finishing in 4 minutes 46 seconds to better his own standard of 4:48.6.

The brawny Florida star, who yesterday won the mile swim in world record time, won today's shorter race just as easily. Taking the lead at the start, he pulled away steadily to finish about 50 yards ahead of Tom Haynie, of the University of Michigan, who staged a final spurt to beat John E. Patton, jr., of Fort Lauderdale, Fla., for second place. George Lowe, of the University of Illinois, was fourth.

Flanagan also bettered two other American marks, passing the 300-yard mark in 3:14.2, as compared to the listed record of 3:18 credited to John Macionis, of Yale, in 1935, while his 4:46 also bettered his own 400-meter standard of 4:47.8.

Adolph Kiefer, Chicago's world back stroke champion and 1936 Olympic victor, easily retained his 100-meter title and set a new meet record of 1 minute 6.3 seconds in doing it. Kiefer led from start to finish and had a 7-yard margin over Francis Heydt, of Iowa City, Iowa, at the finish. Leroy Ogle, of the Detroit A. C. was third, and John Sherill, of Ann Arbor, Mich., landed fourth. The former meet record of 1:06.5, was set by Kiefer last year. His world record is 1:05.6, established in 1935.

Ray Kaye, of the Detroit A. C., contributed a huge upset in winning his first 200-yard breaststroke championship, with the 1936 champion, Johnny Higgins, of Providence, R. I., third back of Michael Sojka, of the Fort Worth (Tex.) Y. M. C. A. Kaye, Sojka and Higgins raced inches apart most of the way, with the Detroit star staging a sensational final length to snatch the decision from the Texan. Higgins slowed down badly near the close of the race and was about three yards back of Sojka. Robert Ousley, of Canton, Ohio, was third.

Kaye's time, made in choppy water, was 2:52.3, far short of Higgins' American and meet record of 2:43.3.

The Lake Shore A. C. quartet of Charles Wilson, Otto Jaretz, Irving McCaffrey and Adolph Koefer, smashed a 10-year-old American record by winning the 880-yard free style relay in 9:20. The Chicago club trailed the University of Michigan through the first leg, but starting with Jaretz, piled up a margin of about 20 yards over the Detroit A. C., which landed second. Michigan was third, with Yale, the 1936 title winner, a remote fourth.

The Lake Shore's performance shaved 2 seconds off the former American standard established by a picked team of greats, Johnny Weissmuller, George Kojac, Harry Glancy and Walter Laufer, at Honolulu, August 26, 1927. Yale's meet record of 9:21.6, established last year, also was replaced.

Hope Knowles Is Net Finalist

Philadelphia Girl to Meet Barbara Winslow.

Philadelphia, Sept. 10. (AP).—An East-West match for the singles championship of the twentieth annual girls' national tennis tournament was assured today by victories of Hope Knowles, of Philadelphia, and Barbara Winslow, Hollywood, Calif.

They will meet for the championship tomorrow afternoon.

Miss Knowles, first Philadelphian to reach the final round in almost a decade, defeated Patty Kilmartin, of Mount St. Joseph's College, 8—6, 6—3, on the Philadelphia Cricket Club courts. Miss Winslow eliminated Bunny Harshaw, of Drexel Hill, Pa., 6—2, 6—1.

Miss Knowles, still playing in top form, returned to the courts teamed with Polly Morrill, of Dedham, Mass., and overthrew the first seeded doubles team of Miss Winslow and Margaret Jesse, of Sacramento, Calif., 4—6, 7—5, 6—4.

Miss Knowles and Miss Morrill will meet Helen Bernhard, New York, and Patricia Cumming, of Westfield, N. J., tomorrow afternoon for the doubles title.

Baron Wins After Long, Tough Duel

Tennis Schedule

11 a. m., veterans—Dr. Heinrich Kleinschroth, Germany, vs. Cedric A. Maer, New York.
1 p. m., women's—Anita Lizana, Chile, vs. Jadwiga Jedrzejowska, Poland.
2:30 p. m., men's—Baron Gottfried von Cramm, Germany, vs. J. Donald Budge, Oakland, Calif.
(All matches in stadium.)

By Bill Boni,
Associated Press Sports Writer.

Forest Hills, N. Y., Sept. 10. Before a capacity crowd of 14,000 in the West Side Tennis Club Stadium, J. Donald Budge, of Oakland, Calif.; Baron Gottfried von Cramm, of Germany; Jadwiga Jedrzejowska, of Poland, and Anita Lizana, of Chile, today battled their way by varying routes into the finals of the National Men's and Women's Singles Championships.

Budge, continuing the phenomenal streak that has brought him down to the title round for the second year in a row, blasted his way to victory at 6—2, 6—1, 6—3 over Frankie Parker, his Davis Cup teammate from Milwaukee. Von Cramm, on the other hand, was carried to his fourth straight extra-set match to eliminate Robert L. Riggs, chunky, 19-year-old Los Angeles youngster, 0—6, 6—8, 6—3, 6—3, 6—2.

Neither of the women finalists was extended. Miss Jedrezejowska scored at 6—4, 6—4 over veteran Helen Jacobs, beaten finalist last year and champion in the four preceding seasons, while Miss Lizana, hitting out with effortless ease, found 21-year-old Dorothy May Bundy, of Santa Monica, Calif., no obstacle at all and brushed her aside at 6—2, 6—3.

Von Cramm, cutting things too fine in trying for placements along the sidelines and baseline, failed to take a game as Riggs, sharp-shooting with precision and serving better than at any previous stage of the tournament, broke the baron's feared service three times in succession in the first set. Twenty-six errors for the German to 17 for Riggs with placements 8 to 4 in the American's favor, told the story.

Takes Second Set.

Riggs' coolness combined with the baron's continued inability to get his ground strokes under control, gave the stocky-legged Californian the second set at 8—6. Usually a keen judge of lobs, Von Cramm misjudged one in the fourteenth game on his own service to give Riggs set point, held it off twice with placements at the net, then belted one out again for the set. Forty errors, 20 of them nets and most of these off his backhand, were chalked up against the German, despite the fact he out-scored his 19-year-old opponent on placements.

Riggs, apparently aiming at a conservation of his energies, eased up in the third set, which the German captured at 6—3. The final game, when Von Cramm gained his second service break, was typical. Riggs merely keeping the ball in play with no effort at accuracy.

Baron Comes Back.

Returning to the court with more assurance and staying on the base line, the baron squared the match by running through the fourth set at 6—3. Now it was Riggs' turn to overshoot the chalk stripes and, after an exchange of service breaks at love, the baron reeled off the next three games for the set. Riggs scored only 6 points in the last four games, while spot-shooting placements were scored by the blond German at crucial points.

Riggs had little opposition to offer in the final set, won by Von Cramm at 6—2 for the match. The baron, with nine placements to his credit, broke through the Californian's service three out of four times, had a 3—0 lead before Riggs could pull himself together, and finished off the match with three grass-cutting placements.

Jadwiga Is Victor.

The first of the women's semifinal matches produced a not-unexpected development when Jadwiga Jedrzejowska, the hard hitter from Poland, mixed in a slow ball and change of pace good enough to give her a 6—4, 6—4, decision over Helen Jacobs. The chop strokes that had helped Berkeley Helen win the title from 1932 through 1935 and had carried her into the final again last year were not enough to combat the top-ranking foreigner.

Katy Rawls Sets New 55-Yd. Mark

Temple, Ariz., Sept. 10 (AP).—Katherine Rawls, comely Fort Lauderdale, Fla., swimming star, bettered her own world mark for the 50-meter breast stroke by streaking the length of the pool in 38.9 seconds tonight at the Far Western championship meet.

Alex Makarob, swimming commissioner for the Arizona A. A. U., announced six watches had clocked Miss Rawls under her own previous mark of 40 seconds. She swam without competition.

Wirephoto: Jockey Escapes Death Under Flying Hoofs at Aqueduct

Bees Take 2-to-1 Decision Over Giants; Cubs Trample Cards, 11 to 0

MacFayden Winner Over Schumacher

New Yorker Eases Up in 12th and Loses; Cubs Cut Lead.

By the Associated Press.

Boston, Sept. 10.—Hal Schumacher eased up for just one inning today, and before he could recover the Bees shoved over the run that gave them a 2-to-1 decision over the New York Giants in a 12-inning pitching thriller between Schumacher and Danny MacFayden.

The defeat, coupled with the Cubs' victory over St. Louis, cut the Giants' National League lead to two games.

On the records, Schumaker actually outpitched Deacon Danny, giving up only six hits to the 12 the Giants collected. But he allowed seven walks and was handed a tough break by one of the two errors the Giants made behind him, to make up for the difference.

A short fly to rightfield by Elbie Fletcher, with the bases loaded and one out in the third overtime frame produced the game winning tally. Eddie Mayo, who had walked, gone to third on Gene Moore's tricky two-bagger and stayed there while Tony Coccinello drew a pass, carried the game-wrecking run across after the catch on Fletcher's fly.

Up to that point the ball game was as close as your next breath. The Bees had scored in the second when Mel Ott's two-base wild throw on Cuccinello's grounder was followed by Fletcher's single sending the tally in. The Giants tied it up in the seventh on Hank Leiber's single to left, Deb Garms' error which allowed him to reach second, Johnny McCarthy's sacrifice and Harry Danning's Texas leaguer that pushed Leiber over.

Cubs Swamp Cards; Carleton in Form

Chicago, Sept. 10 (AP).—Supporting Tex Carleton's brilliant pitching with an extra-base attack that brought them runs in five innings, the Chicago Cubs closed in on the league-leading New York Giants today by romping to an 11-to-0 victory over the St. Louis Cardinals in the finale of the series.

Their thirteenth victory in 18 meetings with the Redbirds this year, the triumph moved the Chicagoans to within two games of first place, as a result of the Giants' defeat at Boston. The Cubs took the series, three games to one.

Gabby Hartnett's two homers, Phil Cavaretta's perfect day of a triple, three singles and a walk, and George Stainback's double and two singles led the cannonading that finally routed Bob Weiland in the Fifth inning and was resumed in the seventh and eighth frames against Jess Haines.

Despite this ambitious support, Carleton bore down on every pitch on his way to his season's thirteenth victory. The result was that he struck out 11 and walked but one. He allowed but six hits. After a pass and Don Gutteridge's double put two men in scoring position in the seventh, Carleton struck out Leo Durocher, Brusie Ogrodowski and Pinch Hitter Stan Bordagaray in order.

Selections at Narragansett.

Dear Al:

Washington will have rooting interest in the $25,000 Narragansett Special today. John A. Manfuso's Aneroid will carry the hopes of many Capital turf fans in the mile and three-sixteenths test. As predicted in this column yesterday, the son of The Porter was shipped to the Rhode Island course last night. In backing Aneroid to take the rich stake, one has to gamble on his ability to show his best form without the benefit of a "tightening race." It was Aneroid, himself, who made his entry for the Special. Trainer Dian Kerr and Owner Manfuso believed that Aneroid would have to wait until the Havre de Grace meeting before returning to competition. In fact, Aneroid was doing his training at The Graw. About a week ago, Aneroid began acting as he does before running his best. He was cleaning up every ounce of food placed before him and using up energy in playful actions. Last Tuesday, the owner and trainer gave him a rather stiff workout. Aneroid not only showed keen speed but came off the track apparently feeling great. Perhaps figuring that he would get 25- on Aneroid, Manfuso made the decision last night to ship the horse. Of course, the mutuel odds on Aneroid will not be 25-1, I don't believe. However, it will cost Manfuso upwards of $1,000 to get the horse in the race. If Aneroid wins the $25,000 that will give the owner 25-1. Aneroid, when in top shape, lost a hair-line decision to Seabiscuit. Today he receives an 11-pound shift in the weights. Another thing, Aneroid, since he became a stake horse, has not had first flight riders. I understand Basil James will handle him today. That fact may or may not help. I'm forced to pick Seabiscuit but I'm going to root hard for Aneroid. BILL.

First Race—Laddie Stone appears to be the best thing of the day. Finds conditions that suit and I expect to start the day with a winner. Fair Deal is a good one and will be close in the final drive. Lottafun has good early speed and may be a keen factor.

Second Race—Wise King is well placed in this event. I expect no mistakes from this fellow. Slavonia is generally close and will be in the thick of contention. Loloma has a fair figure and probably will be along in time to hold the others safe.

Third Race—Galon Boy appears to have located the right spot. He has worked briskly and I believe he's head for a set of brackets in this company. Ebony Parasol packs a punch and should make it interesting. Wax Wing for the show award.

Fourth Race—Marmara and Patriotic should battle it out for the main money in this field. Both are in excellent condition and ready for best efforts. Exhibit runs good races occasionally and if in a running mood he will have to be beaten.

Fifth Race—Seabiscuit, weight and all, is the natural selection in the feature. The Hard Tack speedster holds the handicap championship and has whipped about everything in sight since finishing second in the Santa Anita Handicap. I'm going to take Aneroid for the place money with Snark for the show.

Sixth Race—Ramshead has proven his mettle of late and needs only to repeat that last smashing effort to take down the big cash here. Corum and Lost Friend to take care of the others.

Seventh Race—Miss Ponne has returned to best form and will be out to show a lot of speed in this event. I'm going to string along. Van Nuys is good now and deserves some consideration. Lady Tichner for the minor money.

Eighth Race—Brass Monkey came out of the clouds to score a surprise victory last out. The veteran seldom runs two races alike, however. Opoca and Don Manuel should complete the money bracket.

Best bet—Laddie Stone.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—BOB C., $43.00, $12.60, $8.00; LADY INFINITE, $3.90, $3.20; COLD BREEZE, $9.60.

BOB C., going improved, opened up a good lead in the opening quarter mile, was steadied along under slight restraint and hard ridden at the end, lasted to hold LADY INFINITE safe. The latter, in nearest pursuit of the winner for greater part of trip, finished slowly wearing down the winner. COLD BREEZE was prominent the entire way and held on with good energy in the final drive.

SECOND RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $1,000; claiming. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good from gate. Won ridden out; place driving. Went to post 2:54. Off 2:56½. Winner, Miss L. C. White's b. m. Two-dollar mutuels paid—BYE BYE MARY, $12.60, $4.80, $3.50; MAPLE QUEEN, $3.90, $2.60; JACKFULL, $3.70.

BYE BYE MARY, away alertly but unable to maintain her advantage in the run down the backstretch, began moving up in the last three furlongs and driving through on the inside at the stretch turn, went to the front nearing the furlong pole and drew out steadily. MAPLE QUEEN went up fast on the outside after leaving the backstretch and was up in the last stride to snatch the place from JACKFULL. The latter moved up on inside to gain command in the opening quarter mile and hard ridden through the stretch was bearing out at the close.

THIRD RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $1,000; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from gate. Won easily; place driving. Went to post 3:23. Off 3:28. Winner, Brandon Stable's br. f. (3), by Boot to Boot—Truga. Trained by T. M. Waller. Value to winner, $750; second, $150; third, $70; fourth, $30. Time, 1:46 2-5.

MODEST MANNERS	(Mora)	106	1	Wheeled						12.00

Two-dollar mutuels paid—SUGABOOT, $8.50, $5.30, $2.90; KIMPTON, $8.20, $3.80; ZOR, $2.50.

SUGABOOT was steadied along within striking distance of the pace for first five furlongs, moved up stoutly when called upon and taking command when NEMONT began tiring, drew into a good lead and ridden out smartly through the stretch, was never threatened. KIMPTON, restrained early, moved up gamely after rounding the far turn and although holding on gamely, never could endanger leader. ZOR made up some ground, but was unable to endanger the first two.

FOURTH RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $1,100; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from gate. Won ridden out; place driving. Went to post 3:57. Off 3:58½. Winner, I. Romm's b. f. (4), by Waygood—Wildwood. Trained by L. Haymaker. Value to winner, $825; second, $165; third, $75; fourth, $35. Time, 1:10 4-5.

JACK STING	(Porter)	112	1	7	7	7	6nk	7	10.75

Two-dollar mutuels paid—IDLE WAY, $7.90, $4.00, $3.40; ORINOCO, $4.00, $2.90; MY KIN, $3.70.

IDLE WAY was steadied along in pursuit of the pace established by MISS PRUDENCE, wore the latter down for command and was clear at the end. ORINOCO, far back for first three furlongs, came to the outside when improving his position and, finishing gamely, was up in the last stride to take the place. MY KIN, slightly reserved early, responded gamely to urging, moved up gamely, but was unable to reach the leader and just failed to last.

FIFTH RACE—Two miles. Purse, $1,400; claiming. The Endurance No. 5. For 4-year-olds and upward; allowances. Start good from gate. Won easily; place driving. Went to post 4:28. Off 4:31. Winner, Mrs. J. J. Dolan's ch. g. (6), by Atwell—Gypsa. Trained by J. J. Dolan. Value to winner, $1,050; second, $210; third, $100; fourth, $40. Time, 3:27 2-5. (New track record.)

FIRING SQUAD	(Paradise)	103	3	2	2¹	6	6	6	6	20.50

Two-dollar mutuels paid—JOE SAM, $5.80, $3.50, $2.30; SALLANDRY, $4.40, $2.60; CHIEF YEOMAN, $2.20.

JOE SAM was under steadying restraint for the first mile and a quarter, began working his way up gradually thereafter and, coming to the outside when reaching the stretch, wore down SALLANDRY, drawing out fast through the last furlong. SALLANDRY, under stout restraint for the first mile and one-half, went to the front when CHIEF YEOMAN began to tire and although holding on willingly, was no match for the winner. CHIEF YEOMAN went to the front after passing the stand the first time and rated along well in front, but unable to keep up.

SIXTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $1,000; claiming. For 3-year-olds. Start good from gate. Won driving; place same. Went to post 5:01. Off 5:08½. Winner, J. J. Powers' b. f. (2), by Strolling Player—Loch Heime. Trained by owner. Value to winner, $750; second, $150; third, $70; fourth, $30. Time, 1:46 3-5.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—ORPHAN LASS, $10.60, $6.70, $4.10; GENAIBI, $6.70, $4.30; STARWICK, $3.20.

ORPHAN LASS outran her field to the first turn, was rated along in front under slight restraint and withstanding repeated bids from GENAIBI in the last five-sixteenths, held her safe to the end. GENAIBI, restrained early, moved up gamely nearing the stretch and despite finishing willingly, was unable to overhaul the winner. STARWICK, permitted to drop far back during early stages, closed good gap, but unable to threaten the first two.

SEVENTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $1,000; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from gate. Won ridden out; place driving. Went to post 5:35. Off 5:41. Winner, S. Trenchard's b. g. (3), by The Scout—Riva. Trained by owner. Value to winner, $750; second, $150; third, $70; fourth, $30. Time, 1:49 2-5.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—SCIVA, $13.90, $6.80, $4.90; MALICE, $10.90, $6.30; SANDY BOY, $3.70.

SCIVA followed along within striking distance of the early leader, went to the front when called upon, drew away into a good lead and hard ridden through the stretch, was never threatened. MALICE, unable to keep up early, worked his way up steadily in the last half mile and closed gamely on the outside in the stretch run. SANDY BOY was prominent all the way, met determined opposition from ALWAYS BLUE and disposing of him, was unable to withhold bids of the first two.

EIGHTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $1,000; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from gate. Won driving; place same. Went to post 6:08. Off 6:13. Winner, Mrs. F. P. BRIGHT MELODY	(Marrero)	111	3	1	7nk	7nk	9¹½	10	10	12.25

Two-dollar mutuels paid—FOOL 'EM, $7.30, $4.90, $2.80; SIR ROSE, $6.90, $3.70; STONE MARTIN, $2.50.

Sports Postscripts

JIM LONDOS.

JIM LONDOS, former heavyweight wrestling champion, who recently returned to this country, is in a quandry . . . he can't decide whether to return to the grunt wars or start a physical culture school . . . or both . . . BUDDY BAER, younger brother of Max, will fight an exhibition match in London against JOE LOUIS, the English papers are saying . . . it is listed for early November . . . BUTCH CLARK, the Colorado University sensation, who made good in pro football with the Detroit Lions of the National League, is not Dutch at all . . . being a mixture of English and Swedish decent . . . he turned down an offer to take a screen test because he gets homesick . . . he says he can't bear to stay away from the mountains for longer than three months a year . . . he will coach and play with the Lions this year . . . and Steve Hannigan, publicity agent superb, has been hired to publicize him.

* * * *

Speaking of nationality mix-ups, here's one you will be interested in having unmixed . . . WAYNE MILLNER, Redskin end, who was all-American at Notre Dame in 1935, was picked on the Jewish All-American eleven that year . . . and his father like to had a fit . . . not from glee, but amazement . . . because WAYNE is not Jewish at all . . . he is Italian . . . what a champion that PETE SARRON is . . . lost to FREDDIE MILLER in a nontitle fight in South America . . . then knocked the flour dust off MILLER when they met with the crown at stake . . .

* * * *

BRONKO NAGURSKI, who risked his world wrestling championship against JOE COX, of Kansas, last night in Griffith Stadium, has been for years one of the highest salaried players in pro football . . . with the Chicago Bears . . . and can't lose . . . if he bows to anyone else in the next few months, he can return to football and reap a fortune which would nearly equal his wrestling income . . . he is sending his younger brother, Marion, through Marquette University . . . and he looks like a great football prospect . . . BRONKO (that's his real given name) was a great at Minnesota '27 to '29 . . . and has been in pro football since and has been all-league choice for fullback every year . . . his manager, TONY STECHER, is the brother of the great wrestler, JOE, who is rated with GOTCH, HACKENSCHMIDT, and LEWIS, as the greatest in the games history . . . JOE, incidently, is in ill health and his life is threatened . . . and "A little child shall lead them" at Dartmouth . . . through a printer's error, no doubt, a Dartmouth tackle is listed as 12 years old on football team's roster.

Seabiscuit 4-5 In Special at Narragansett

Howard Horse Tries to Rout 'Jinx;' Snark Highly Rated.

By the Associated Press.

Pawtucket, R. I., Sept. 10.—C. S. Howard's 5-year-old Seabiscuit, the outstanding handicap star in training, will be doubly loaded tomorrow when he and six rivals start in the fourth renewal of the $25,000-added Narragansett mile and three-sixteenth special at Narragansett Park.

The bay son of Hard Tack will carry 132 pounds, top weight, and, because he is certain to close as an odds-on choice, probably at 4-5, he will have to brave the jinx that persecuted equally regarded favorites in the three previous Narragansett Specials.

In the last of his string of seven consecutive victories, the $50,000 Massachusetts Handicap at Suffolk Downs, this Wheatley Stable castoff, purchased by Howard for $8,000, defeated four of the rivals he will be called upon to outdistance on the Rhode Island oval.

The Middlebury Stable's Esposa, J. A. Manfuso's Aneroid, E. K. Bryson's Calumet Dick and Mrs. Walter E. O'Hara's New Deal were forced to trail Seabiscuit when he shaved two-fifths of a second off Suffolk's track record for the mile and one-sixteenth distance while lugging 130 pounds.

Seabiscuit's old Wheatley stablemate, Snark, in with 117 pounds, appears to be the former's outstanding rival. Snark holds the world record for the 6½ furlongs. Another with an excellent chance to score, provided the jinx is on hand to annoy the favorite, is Aneroid, with the second heaviest weight of 121 pounds, which was nosed out by Seabiscuit in the Brooklyn Handicap.

40,000 to Watch National Cup Steeplechase

Foxcatcher Race Choice Is Argonaut

Bulky Field Is Named; 3 Other Events on Today's Program.

By the Associated Press.

Fair Hill, Md., Sept. 10.—Granted fair weather, 40,000 followers of the turf are expected tomorrow for the fourth renewal of the Foxcatcher National Cup Steeplechase over a course that has come to be known as America's Aintree.

Members of the society set from New York, Philadelphia, Wilmington, Baltimore, Washington and other centers will assemble for the classic test of horseflesh and riding skill over the 3-mile course with 19 brush jumps averaging 6 feet in height.

There will be three supporting races; the Fair Hill Steeplechase, 2 miles over brush for 3-years-old and up, with 19 entries; the Big Elk flat race at a mile and 7 furlongs over turf, 17 entries, and the Lewisville flat sprint at 7 furlongs, 22 entries.

Twenty thoroughbreds have been entered for the Foxcatcher National. Of them, Argonaut, 10-year-old gray son of Tetratema, owned by William J. Strawbridge, of Philadelphia, bids fair to go to post the favorite. Morris Dixon, who trains this veteran campaigner, is slated to ride him in tomorrow's race.

A field of 15 or more may go to post in the contest for $6,700 prize money, the trophy cup and turf glory.

The other entries are Wellstepped, Crooning Water, Zadora, Daffy, Snake Charmer, Sunny Thoughts, Sir Gareth, Maccolon, Toy Maker, Drapeau, Bell Man, Postman Home, Corky, The Scamp, Big March and Lawbreaker.

Overlin Battles Steele for Crown

"You can tell the world there will be a new middleweight champion tomorrow night," said Chris Dunee, Overlin's manager. "I have never seen Ken in better condition and I have never seen him boxing better than during the last few days. All he needs is the chance."

Overlin has been on the coast two months awaiting a crack at the title. Twice the fight has been postponed, but this time it looks to be on for sure.

Detton to succeed to that guy's claim as the world champion, Stecher has been attempting to scotch the belief that Nagurski is a mushroom champion, crowned by the wrestling syndicate in an attempt to cash in on Bronko's football fame.

* * * *

"That's my biggest job," Stecher was saying, "convincing people that Bronko is more than a green hand at this business. Why, he's been wrestling for five years. Just because I've been keeping him under cover while I was teaching him how to wrestle, people think he's a phoney, but look here." And Stecher displayed a sheaf of neatly-kept clippings.

* * * *

"There's the results of 232 matches Nagurski had from 1933 to 1937 before he became champion. He didn't wrestle any big names, but he was in there against some tough guys. All of that time, he was learning how to wrestle. He isn't any Sonnenberg who knew nothing but a flying tackle when he came out of college. Bronko's a finished wrestler now. Whole football teams couldn't stop him, so howinell is one wrestler gonna beat him?"

Personally, I dunno.

Scrimmage Listed for C. U. Squad

Bergman to Gain Initial Line on Team; G. U. Is Disappointing.

An approximate idea of damage wrought to Catholic University's football machine by graduation will be obtained today when the Cardinals array themselves in battle formation for the first scrimmage of the season. It may be the last, too, material being as scarce as it is.

The so-called "A" team will take the field with Bunsa and Calabrese at ends; Katalinas and Schuldenski at tackles; Capt. Vic Sochon and Sabo, tackles; Ambrose, center; Munhall, quarterback; Vidnovic and Carroll, halfbacks; Pirro, fullback.

This 1937 edition may not be much, numerically speaking, but may surprise a lot of disgruntled Brookland fans by its smartness and alertness. The first eleven will be as good as last year's and possibly better, and with a few capable reserves and a miraculous escape from injuries it may go places.

At Old Point Comfort Georgetown's squad ploughed through its initial sham battle with gratifying results. Elmer Moulin, Wychunas, Barabas and Dooley worked in the first backfield, and while they carried out their assignments raggedly, did well enough to satisfy Coach Hagerty that they will be in stride in a day or two.

A battle for the end post left vacant by Ray Hanken's departure is stealing the show at George Washington's camp. Pete Yurwitz and Lloyd Berry appear to be the outstanding condidates at this writing, with the edge, if there is any, in Berry's favor. Pete has more experience, but Berry the most speed, and line coach "Botchy" Knock wants fast ends.

Sandlot All-Stars Meet F.B.I. Today

Washington's little "All-Star" baseball game is at hand. For at 2:30 p. m. today at Griffith Stadium the cream of the sandlot stars of the city clashes wtih the strong Bureau of Investigation nine in a benefit game for Tony Barruto.

Frank Cinotti has arranged the contest, and, with the aid of several sandlot experts, has succeeded in selecting a squad worthy of its name—the all-stars. Thus, the several thousand fans expected to watch the classic will be attracted by a twofold magnet. Not only will the outstanding amateur players of the city perform, but one of the most beloved sandlot figures in the city will be honored as well as assisted in his need. Barruto was for years one of the better sandlot managers and made a host of friends. Now he lies very ill in a hospital, and the boys are out to make this affair a grand success.

The admission is only 25 cents, and all proceeds will be donated to help defray Barruto's expenses.

K. C. Horse Show Booked Tomorrow

Horse lovers are due a treat tomorrow when the third annual Columbus Horse Show will be staged at the Meadowbrook Horse Show Grounds, on the East-West highway. Although an infant as far as years are concerned, the Columbus show has grown with leaps and bounds, and virtually every show horse of class in this section will vie for the ribbons and trophies. A varied program has been arranged with the first class due to be called at 11 o'clock. Action will continue almost until sundown. Among the handsome trophies donated is one from Gov. Harry W. Nice of Maryland. The show is being sponsored by the Forest Glen Council, No. 2169, of the Knights of Columbus.

Palace Gridmen Drill.

The Palace A. C. eleven will practice tomorrow at 11:30 a. m. Last year's players and new candidates are asked to report at Seventh and H streets southwest.

Time Out! By Chet Smith

A correction, Mr. Announcer. That home run Gehrig just hit did not fall into the street!

ProGridmen Waging War ForPositions

Wilmington Game Key to Flaherty's Pruning of Redskin Squad.

With the action geared to a faster tempo as players fought for jobs and the accompanying salaries, the Redskins yesterday staged a brief but bruising scrimmage that may have revealed to Coach Flaherty the makeup of his 1937 squad.

The battle for positions became downright vigorous and it was with an extra-bit of effort that the linemen, particularly, banged into each other for six of them are slated to be pruned off the squad come next week.

The final test for the border-line candidates will come, however, on Monday night when Flaherty takes his Redskins to Wilmington, Del., for an exhibition game with the Wilmington Club, coached by Jake Slagle, former Princeton star.

In that game, the Redskins will be meeting a sturdy collection of former collegiates who are being handsomely paid by duPont interests for representing the city in football, and Flaherty has told his squad that no punches will be pulled. On their performances in that game will hinge the jobs of a half dozen Redskins.

Down at Fairlawn Field, Sammy Baugh abandoned for most of the afternoon his pass-throwing role and was fitted into the club's running attack in a long workout. He was calling the signals for a great part of the time, alternating in that capacity with Riley Smith, but before the session ended he was throwing his varied assortment of passes into the hands of Millner, Maloney, Pinckert, McCheney, Irwin and Justice.

At the end of the workout, Coach Flaherty entrained for Philadelphia, where he scouted the Pittsburgh and Philadelphia Clubs in their league battles last night.

Eagles Bow To Dodgers' Eleven, 13-7

Nori Throws Pass to Barrett to Win as 12,000 Watch.

By the Associated Press.

Philadelphia, Sept. 10.—A 60-yard forward pass, Fred Nori to Jeff Barrett, in the last quarter, gave the Brooklyn Dodgers a 13-to-7 victory over the Philadelphia Eagles tonight in a National League professional football game before a crowd of 12,000 at Municipal Stadium.

Nori, a stocky 168-pounder formerly of North Illinois Teachers, entered the game in the last quarter for Ralph Kercheval with the Dodgers behind, 7 to 6, and apparently beaten. On his third play of the game he faded back to his own 30-yard line and heaved a 40-yard pass to Jeff Barrett, an end, streaking down the sidelines.

Barrett caught the ball over his shoulder on the Eagles' 30, reversed his field, shook off a couple of would-be tacklers, and ran the remaining distance to the goal line. The play was good for 60 yards from the line of scrimmage. Joe Maniaci added the extra point from placement.

The Eagles scored first in the second period on a 53-yard drive started by a 33-yard dash off tackle by Dave Smukler that put the ball on the Brooklyn 20. Emmett Mortell plunged to the 16, then Smukler faked a plunge and tossed a basketball pass over the scrimmage line to Bill Hewitt for the score. Smukler kicked the extra point from placement.

The Dodgers took the ball on the succeeding kickoff and marched 80 yards to their first touchdown. Kercheval plunged off tackle six yards for the score. McPherson, a sub guard, blocked Kercheval's attempt to convert.

Los Angeles Beats Pittsburgh Amerks

Pittsburgh, Sept. 10. (AP).—The Los Angeles Bulldogs demonstrated their power to Eastern members of the American Professional Football League tonight with a convincing 21-to-0 victory over the Pittsburgh Amerks.

Cleveland Eleven Beaten by Detroit

The Lions took full advantage of every Cleveland mistake to score four touchdowns. One of Detroit's scores was made on a bad pass from center that rolled over the Cleveland goal line, and another on a blocked pass which Tom Hupke recovered in the air and raced 43 yards for a touchdown.

Detroit led, 21 to 0, at the end of the first half. Ernie Caddel, former Stanford star, accounted for the final score early in the third period on a 27-yard run.

Kelley Leads Stars As Pros Bow, 14-0

Boston, Sept. 10 (AP).—Larry Kelley, Yale's all-American opportunist, concluded his active football career in spectacular fashion tonight when his All-Star Collegians converted two of their three scoring chances into a 14-0 victory over the Shamrocks, Boston's entry in the American Professional League before an 8,000 crowd.

It was the second game against professional opposition in three nights for most of all stars, who were beaten 14-7 by the New York Giants in the Polo Grounds Wednesday night. Ten of them also played on the winning side against the Green Bay Packers in Chicago last week.

O'Hara Wins Court Victory; Track Stays Open

By the Associated Press.

Providence, R. I., Sept. 10.—Victorious in a court battle to prevent his removal as managing director of Narragansett Race Track, Walter E. O'Hara, Providence turfman-publisher, who is free on bail on two criminal libel charges, tonight was assured of the running of the $25,000 Narragansett Handicap at his rich Pawtucket race plant tomorrow.

The court victory was hardly public before the State racing commission announced it had agreed to continue until next Tuesday a hearing on its order that the Narragansett Racing Association "show cause" why its license should not be revoked?

O'Hara's attorneys spent a long day and a busy one jumping from court to court and from court to commission.

Their motion for a commission-hearing continuance granted on the ground they had not had sufficient time to prepare answers to the State body's six allegations, the lawyers returned to Racing Commissioner Francis P. Kiernan's office for a late afternoon conference, the nature of which was not divulged.

the publisher of the Providence Star-Tribune was arraigned in West Warwickson on that warrant, and had no sooner made bail than he was whisked to Providence for arraignment on a second warrant charging he libeled William E. Beehan, of Larchmont, N. Y., general counsel for the Outdoor Advertising Co.

O'Hara pleaded innocent to both complaints and the required bail—$15,000 in each case—was furnished by Mayor Thomas McCoy, of Pawtucket, friend of the turfman and political rival of Gov. Quinn.

Trial on the Quinn charge was set for Sept. 17 and on the Beehan charge for September 23.

In the same edition Wednesday night, O'Hara published denials of six allegations upon which the State racing commission based its "show cause" order.

The controversy started last Saturday when the commission ordered O'Hara removed as managing director of the track, alleging he had "threatened and intimidated" James Doorley, State steward at the Pawtucket race plant.

Burke Leading Toronto Open

Champion Little Blows His Chances With 150.

By the Associated Press.

Toronto, Sept. 10.—A wide-open struggle for the Canadian Open golf championship developed today as Lawson Little tossed his title overboard with a 76 on the second round while a half-dozen or more sharpshooters battled to take his place.

Little, who set a tournament record of 271 for 72 holes over the same course last year, reached the halfway mark total with 150, just a dozen strokes behind the leader, Bill Burke, of Cleveland, former United States Open champion.

Burke fired his second straight 69 today to reach the turn two strokes under par and one up on "Light Horse" Harry Cooper, of Chicopee, Mass. Cooper, tied for the lead after a first-round 67, dropped back to a 72 for his second tour of the links.

Broad-shouldered Ralph Guldahl, of Chicago, United States Open champion, duplicated Burke's 69 on top of a 71 to fill the third spot with a 140 total.

Deanna Durbin Charms Crowds In New Picture

'100 Men and Girl' Also Features Stokowski and Able Cast.

"ONE HUNDRED MEN AND A GIRL." Universal picturization of an idea by Hans Kraly adapted to the screen by Charles Kenyon, Bruce Manning and James Mulhauser, starring Deanna Durbin, supported by Leopold Stokowski, Adolphe Menjou, Alice Brady, Eugene Pallette, Mischa Auer, Jed Prouty and Frank Jenks. Directed by Henry Koster. Reviewed Friday afternoon by Dorothea Lewis.

There should be dancing in the streets, for here is something new and sparkling and lovely. Something you simply must see if you want to be happy and amused and excited for the too short time it lasts.

We're not quite sure why "One Hundred Men and a Girl" is so lovely and so exciting but we think it is because of two great talents which adorn it—the fresh, dear, young charm and voice of little Deanna Durbin and the fine, beautiful, mature genius of Leopold Stokowski. To see such a beginning and such fulfillment at one time is thrilling enough for us.

Lest all thsi talk about talents and loveliness, etc., raise fears of "artiness," let us hasten to say that we haven't had so much fun during working hours (reviewing is work, you know) for many, many months. For Deanna is as spunky and full of devilment as her voice is full of high notes, and the story and dialogue are packed to the brim with amusement.

Has Honest Title.

The picture, just as the honest title indicates, concerns itself with 100 men—unemployed musicians—and a girl who tries to get them work. Patsy is the daughter of a trombone player, "a fine trombone player," and she wants him to work for Mr. Stokowski and to have an overcoat, with a fur color, and turkey on his birthday, and so she organizes her own symphony orchestra and finds her own sucker—pardon, "sponsor,"—and manages to cause a great deal of trouble, complications and exhilarating entertainment.

The music, which is a deftly and importantly integrated part of the whole, is quite magnificent. There is Liszt, Mozart, Tschaikowski, Verdi, brought to life by those wonderful hands of Stokowski and Deanna's voice.

The fun centers in the excitable Miss Patsy and that amazing feather on her hat, but there is also a very unusual taxi driver, with words and music by Frank Jenks; a practical joking duo played by Eugene Pallette and Jed Prouty, the hysterical Alice Brady and the delightful Mischa Auer.

And, although we reach him late, there is a touching performance by Adolphe Menjou, who has so gracefully left his best-dressed man days behind and becomes a sincere and likable actor of parts.

Star Is an Actress.

We want you to be sure to understand also that Miss Durbin is an actress as well as a singer, excellently handling a rather demanding assignment.

Subsidiaries include an intensely interesting "March of Time," which devotes brief minutes to studies of plant pests in U. S. A., and then gets down to the real business of telling about China during the past important ten years of building for its future and the tragic present which has destroyed much of that future. There is also a Scrappy cartoon and the newsreel, but what is likely to cause at least one Meakin jig on Fifteenth street is the feature, a picture which has everything and somehow manages to make that everything seem completely new and natural.

Last week we said this would be Keith's week. Now we say this should be the beginning of at least three Keith's weeks. If you go right away, you'll have more time to go again.

Loew's Capitol

"WIFE, DOCTOR AND NURSE." Twentieth Century-Fox picturization of a story by Kathryn Scola, Darrell Ware and Lamar Trotti, featuring Loretta Young, Warner Baxter and Virginia Bruce, with Jane Darwell, Sidney Blackmer, Maurice Cass, Elisha Cook, Jr., Minna Gombell, Margaret Irving, Gordon Elliott, the Brewster Twins, George Renavent, Landers Stevens and Hal K. Dawson. Directed by Walter Lang. Reviewed Friday afternoon by Mary Harris.

That place in the movie spotlight formerly reserved for wife, husband and secretary seems to be shifted to "Wife Doctor and Nurse."

But the writers of this amiable frippery at least offer a departure in triangle treatment. They do not disentangle this medical threesome at all. They dissect it, pull it to pieces and haul it around and then leave the whole result on their operating table and call it a happy ending. It seems that the doctor cannot do without his wife, nor can he do without his nurse so they all just settle down to make the best of it.

Loretta Young plays a spoiled Park avenue heiress in her endearing style that always triumphs over the natural snooty moronism of such roles. Warner Baxter again demonstrates that he can make a good part out of any old part, this, even though he is getting a bit mature for the chore of creating twitters in virginal bosoms. Virginia Bruce, sweetly sad, manages to look quite scientific while puttering around with test slides and X-ray machines. So much for the stars. They play beautifully, and they are the whole show with the exception of oleaginous Jane Darwell and a quite inadequate glimpse of Sidney Blackmer.

The story of "Wife, Doctor and Nurse" is such a bit of fluff that we imagine that it was beaten up in an electric mixer instead of being written. Among its slight disadvantages is the constant bearing down on the theme that matrimony and medical practice are intensely humorous. Nor do we imagine that the ending will be a highly popular one with audiences who have a general weakness for liking to see true love triumph without reservations.

Among the really glittering sequences are those where Miss Young and Miss Bruce wage polite warfare for the doctor, their claws so prettily sheathed but snapping out with a cruelly artful scratch every once in so often.

Johnny Perkins goes into the third week of his jolly, go-as-you-please master-of-ceremonying. Washington will miss him. Johnny should not really be called an M. C. His style is too original to deserve being tagged into any class.

Phil Lampkin's Orchestra elevated to the stage offers an effective background for a group of smart acts. June Carr, a tiny bit of saucy blondeness, gives Johnny Perkins strong competition for comedy honors. Geraldine and Joe, juvenile tiny dancing stars, step like mad in novelty numbers climaxing with an Apache dance in reverse. Dancer Betty and the Carr Brothers offer exciting and comical stunts. The Four Carolinians, all super-suntanned, sing effectively in both typical Negro harmonies and Hawaiian style.

"STELLA DALLAS." Samuel Goldwyn picturization for United Artists of Olive Higgins Prouty's novel, adapted to the screen by Victor Heerman and Sarah Y. Mason, starring Barbara Stanwyck, with John Boles, Anne Shirley, Barbara O'Neil, Alan Hale, Marjorie Main, Edmund Elton, George Walcott, Gertrude Short, Tim Holt, Nella Walker, Bruce Satterlee, Jimmy Butler, Jack Egger and Dickie Jones. Directed by King Vidor. Previewed Tuesday, Septembre 7. At Loew's Capitol.

To his new picturization of Olive Higgins Prouty's familiar story of an uncouth mother's futile aspiration to achieve social eminence for her daughter's sake—a story in which vibrant drama and tearful pathos are inherent elements, and the sacrifice that effort entailed—Samuel Goldwyn has brought all of the resources of Hollywood. He has seen to it that under the able direction of King Vidor the characters of primary importance in the play are sharply contrasted, at this sharp definition is carried to the backgrounds against which the developments of the tale are revealed and that no pains or expense be spared to make "Stella Dallas" a monument to his discernment.

BELL.

There are times during the action of the drama when the canvas has been daubed with broad strokes, tempo accelerated and climaxes sharpened to a Damascus sharpness, but by these transparent devices the final, infinitely pathetic scene of the picture is made to stand out in more vivid poignance than otherwise would be the case.

Stella Dallas is discovered, first when she still is Stella Martin, daughter of the squalid home of a mill worker. Her ambition soars beyond the dingy confines of the tumble-down cottage, with its picket fence and rickety floors, and dreams of affluence and life in the city among the "best people." The fulfillment of all her longings seems to have been reached when she marries Stephen Dallas, a mysterious young man who is identified through a newspaper rotogravure section as the masquerading son of a millionaire, who has come on evil days.

Wills Clash.

But in the perfection of an idyllic domestic bliss Stella and her husband do not see eye to eye—he plans a careful and substantial future; she wishes only to become a social butterfly, as the saying is. After their daughter is born, he leaves her in the mill town while he goes on to achievement and success—and to the home of a former sweetheart, widowed with three small sons. Stella finds solace in the rowdy companionship of Ed Munn, the betting man, whose specialties are slow horses, the bottle and susceptible women not above the low reaches of his bawdy humor.

The beginning of the play's dominant dramatic clash begins when Laurel Dallas attains an age that permits her to spend part of her time on visits to her father in New York. The atmosphere of simple elegance and good breeding in which Stephen lives his life enchants her. But underneath it all is a dogged and unshakable devotion to her mother. Divorce does not alter this filial affection. And then it is brought home to Stella, in an attempt to provide the same environment her daughter has enjoyed with her father, that she is a laughing stock in the eyes of the people among whom she wishes her daughter to be accepted as an equal. It is from this sudden realization that the tremendously moving climax of the play springs.

Is Flawlessly Cast.

In the title role, Barbara Stanwyck takes rank with the better of the cinema's character actresses, just as all who remember her work in "Burlesque" on the stage have felt sure that eventually she must. By deft shadings and subtle touches she causes a magnificent maternal emotion to penetrate the blatant vulgarities of a woman born to the dregs. It is a fine, if at times flamboyant, performance.

No less vital to the completion of the play's purpose is the ingenuous and charming impersonation of Laurel contributed by Anne Shirley, whose authenticity never varies, no matter what the age she is assuming. It was only by a necessary deception that her faith in her mother was shaken.

John Boles, as the father and husband, portrays Stephen Dallas as a sane, balanced and slightly aloof young man, with deep love for his family and a supreme consciousness of his mapor duty. It is one of his most restrained and most effective characterizations, matched by the kindly dignity of the widow, Helen, as played by Barbara O'Neil.

In Lesser Roles.

To Alah Hale must be accorded credit for one of his most impressive chores in the raucous role of Ed Munn, the playboy whose possessions gradually slip away along with his hold on such character as he ever possessed. Mr. Hale in many scenes is the life of the party, both figuratively and literally. As the young lover, Tim Holt, son of Jack Holt, proves a talented youth with something the fire of his dad. There are numerous others in the cast who aid in maintaining the film's uniform excellence, among them the three lads who play the sons of the second Mrs. Dallas.

The picture "Events of the Day" further augment a feature which will hold irresistible appeal for feminine audiences and probably will dampen a few eyes among their male escorts.

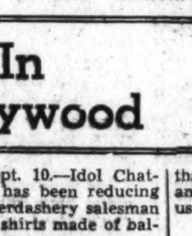
Principals in Triangle Romance

In "Wife, Doctor and Nurse," the current screen attraction at Loew's Capitol Theater, the first two of the title roles are played by Warner Baxter and Loretta Young, who are pictured above in a moment of marital felicity. The third angle of the triangle is in the capable hands of Virginia Bruce, who had much the same type of part in the recent "Between Two Women."

In Hollywood

With JIMMY FIDLER

Hollywood, Sept. 10.—Idol Chatter: Jack Oakie has been reducing ever since a haberdashery salesman tried to sell him shirts made of balloon silk. One of filmtown's more profitable industries is wigmaking—you would be surprised if I told you how many handsome screen heroes wear toupees.



JACK OAKIE.

Best off-screen comedy of the week: Jim Cagney's impression of a stutterer trying to report a fire. No fooling, that goofey-looking contraption that Loretta Young has been wearing is a hat. Wonder how many actresses, offhand, could make a complete list of all their rumored "engagements."

The most valuable autograph in Hollywood is C. B. DeMille's—as an officer of a local bank, he signed thousands of $100 bills. My idea of the perfect model for a hosiery ad: Alice Faye. Eddie Garr, Universal's new comic, is only half as conceited as most screen stars—he knows that one side of his face does not photograph well. All publicity aside, Ida Lupino is a talented song writer. One word description of the costume Gypsy Rose Lee (alias Louise Hovick) wears in "Ali Baba:"——!

For his own good, Gregory Ratoff should see the candid camera shots Dolores Del Rio snapped of him while he was directing ""Lancer Spy." Cited for the Hollywood Croix de Merite: Elissa Landi, photographed on the witness stand during a recent damage suit, she courageously refrained from crossing her knees. Since his Mexican fishing trip Fred Astaire's reach has developed nearly 6 inches. The least theatrical-appearing actress in Hollywood, when dressed for the street: Myrna Loy. Edward Arnold says that a doctor friend of his, when examining a producer's heart always uses a microscope.

Had lunch with Anita Louise, a young lady so ethereal in appearance that one would expect her to live on sea-foam and moonbeams. And I watched, in amazement, while she devoured a thick beefsteak, a baked potato, a generous helping of string beans and all of the incidentals. Perhaps it was impolite, but I expressed my wonder and was brightly informed that she has never found it necessary to diet—that no matter what or how much she eats, she never gains weight. After she had rushed back to the set, I stopped for a moment's chat with Joan Blondell, who sat at a nearby table, glowering at an endive salad. "That Anita Louise," she growled. "I could choke her for eating a meal like that in front of a starving woman!"

Stopped on the "Marco Polo" set for a monosyllablic chat with the reticent Gary Cooper. I asked him what he thinks of Sigrid Gurie, the beautiful new Norwegian discovery who is playing opposite him in the picture. "Well," said Gary, thoughtfully, yet with enthuiasm, "she has . . . well . . . sort of blue eyes . . . dark blue eyes . . . that have depth . . . kind of like a mountain lake, I mean. And she has a sort of a glow under her skin. It makes you kind of feel that she's . . . well . . . more alive than most people. I like her. She's all right!" That girl MUST have something to make Montana's most silent son so loquacious!

Three wives have decided that John Barrymore is better on the screen than in the home and a fourth seems to have difficulty in making up her mind. Rudolph Valentino could not make a go of matrimony. Clark Gable is a matrimonial failure. And yet a mug like Stu Erwin marries one of the most beautiful girls in the world—and they are as happy as bugs in a rug.

Metropolitan

Picking up its downtown run at the Metropolitan Theater yesterday, after having closed a capacity week at the Earle only the night before, "Lost Horizon" continued to exert the deep appeal of its fantasy and picturesqueness over enthusiastic audiences throughout the day.

Adapted from James Hilton's novel of the same name, this Columbia production, under the thoughtful direction of Frank Capra, visualizes the fantastic but gripping story of a group of outlanders who escape from a revolution in China only to be kidnaped by a strange Mongolian airship pilot to a Utopian lamasery in the high Himalayans. Here they encounter all manner of adventures, both physical and romantic, and hear expounded the philosophy of life as it is lived in Shangri-La.

The argument of the film is entirely on the side of the Golden Rule and leaves an indelible impression despite the fact that it is made part of a story that fairly seethes with action and develops many unexpected climaxes.

The principal roles are played by Ronald Colman, as a young English diplomat and soldier of fortune; Jane Wyatt, Margo, John Howard, H. B. Warner, Sam Jaffe and, for comedy relief—an overworked term, if ever there was one—Edward Everett Horton. All perform their allotted tasks efficiently and well. The spectacular tragedy that marks the end of the picture is scarcely less impressive than the realistic plane crash that opens its major course of action.

"VARSITY SHOW." Warner Brothers picturization of a story by Warren Duff and Sig Herzig, adapted to the screen by Jerry Wald, Richard Macaulay, Sig Herzig and Warren Duff, with Dick Powell, Fred Waring and His Pennsylvanians, Ted Healy, Rosemary and Priscilla Lane, Walter Catlett, Johnny Davis, Buck & Bubbles, Sterling Holloway, Mabel Todd, Lee Dixon, Halliwell Hobbes, Roy Atwell and Ed Brophy. Music and lyrics by Dick Whiting and Johnny Mercer; finale created by Busby Berkeley. Directed by William Keighley. Previewed Tuesday night, September 7. At the Earle.

The rah-rah spirit of college life—without a football game anywhere in the action—is rousingly reflected in this campus yarn of the difficulties encountered by the Quadrangle Club of dear old Winfield University in putting on their annual show. As the picture opens, the production isn't going so well. The snap is all taken out as rapidly as it is introduced by a mossback faculty that perceives the ultimate in gay entertainment in classic dance measures executed to the strains of Mendelssohn's "Spring Song." It all looks pretty discouraging.

Then someone remembered that a Winfield alumnus, who used to stage the Quadrangle annuals, nowis Broadway's most illustrious musical comedy producer. With an anticipated but utterly nebulous $1,000 as a lure, a committee is enrolled from the student body to journey to New York and induce "Chuck" Daly to return to his alma mater and pull the youngsters out of the fire. Having just gone broke on a succession of glorious floppos and not being too sure of that Hollywood offer, Chuck is persuaded by his henchman, William Williams, to take a chance.

Arriving in Winfield, the distinguished Mr. Daly finds himself in a bit of a mess. The show is a hopelessly amateurish conglomeration of feeble material, the resentment aroused in the faculty members by his presence is something to write home about, and nothing looks good but the $1,000 that nobody ever as yet has seen.

Comes the Dawn.

Then the school hop night comes along and Daly and his stooge are prevailed upon to scour the hall for talent. This they do with amazing results. The place is alive with it and Mr. Daly takes the job. There you have the basis of a substantial story structure that involves a sufficient number of conflicting elements to keep things sizzling.

It may be felt by some that the early scenes of "Varsity Show" seem a little less than professional in the unpatterned exuberance of their ramifications. That is true. The subsequent developments of the story would be seriously weakened if it were not. It is the gradual emergence of a finished and variegated stage production from these tottering beginnings that marks this Warner musical as different and apart from all its predecessors.

As "Variety Show" progresses, it is thickly sprinkled with catchy songs, nimble dances, college glees, comedy scenes, orchestral interludes and a generous measure of campus romance. There are so many wholesome ingredients employed in this concoction that there must be something somewhere for every known amusement taste that can find pleasure this side of classic drama and grand opera.

Furthermore, this subject is peopled by players largely new to the followers of strictly Hollywood screen product. Fred Waring and his Pennsylvanians furnish the musical foundation of the whole thing. Practically every member of the band so well known to Washington has a speaking part in the play's bona fide cast of characters. The specialists with the orchestra have been similarly recruited. Thus it comes about that we have Fred Waring playing a juvenile lead, as well as leading the band; Rosemary Lane cast as leading woman and her sister, Priscilla, as ingenue; Johnny Davis playing a comedy role, singing and tooting a trumpet; "Scotty" Bates and "Poly" McClintock doing their familiar stuff and the Pennsylvanians' vocal ensemble lending a real college touch to many of the campus scenes, with Tom Waring as pianist-soloist.

The "Big Time" Stars.

All of this is in addition to the stellar activities of Dick Powell, as Daly; Ted Healy, his shadow, never funnier; Walter Catlett, the fussy professor who thinks he is a stage director; Roy Atwell, Halliwell Hobbes, Sterling Holloway, Mabel Todd, Lee Dixon, the dancer who was with Powell in "The Singing Marine;" Ed Brophy and scores more recruited from stage, screen and radio. It is all very gay, very fast and very amusing.

Finally defeated at Winfield, the Quadrangle Club moves its show to New York and rehabilitates Chuck Daly's waning reputation in one of the most hilarious scenes ever filmed. The Broadway production is climaxed by one of Busby Berkeley's most colorful and far-flung bits of spectacular extravagance. Whew!

Gracie Barrie returns to the Earle this week to headline the vaudeville bill and scores her usual ovation in a cycle of songs that included "Johnny One Note," "Sweet Lelani," a medley of "Shall We Dance" numbers and "Rain in Cherry Blossom Lane" yesterday afternoon. The self-possessed and gifted Miss Barie is in fine voice and fine fettle for this visit.

The stage program is opened by the Gilbert Brothers, gymnasts, and closed by Jack Seymour, assisted by the three Byrne Sisters, singers and dancers, and Adele Miller, a plump acrobatic dancer, in a speedy dance revue. In between come Joe and Jane McKenna in their slightly theradbare adagio burlesque and rough-and-tumble comedy. The Paramount News rounds out a rich entertainment value.

Neutrality Act Fears Depress Wheat Prices

By the Associated Press

Chicago, Sept. 10.—Sharp breaks in wheat prices today, 2½ cents a bushel at the extreme, received many different interpretations, including as one reason a stock market collapse.

Another cause assigned for the tumble of wheat values was much notice taken of possible use of the United States neutrality act in connection with the undeclared war in the Orient. It was asserted that such use of the neutrality act might result in serious restriction of American export trade in agricultural products like cotton and wheat as well as in arms.

Persistent reports of big export rivalry on the part of Russia were also a factor in disturbing confidence of wheat holders. In particular, solicitude relative to prospects for United States wheat export business was aroused by word that 45 steamers the past few days had been chartered for big grain shipments soon from south Russian ports.

At the close, Chicago wheat futures were 1½ to 2⅛ cents under yesterday's finish; September, 1.05¾ to 1.06; December, 1.07¾ to 1.07⅞; May, 1.09¾ to 1.09⅞, with corn unchanged to 1¼ lower; September, 1.05 to 1.05¼; December 63 to 63⅛; May, 64¾. Oats varying from ¼ cent decline to ¾ advance; December, 30⅝ to 30¾, and rye 1 cent to 1⅞ cents down; December, 79. Provisions results were unchanged to setback of 15 cents.

Cotton Breaks Under 9c Level

New York, Sept. 10 (AP).—Cotton broke below 9 cents today for the first time since October, 1933. December deliveries eased from 9.10 to 8.96, and closed at 8.97. Final prices generally were 14 to 16 points net lower.

The market opened 3 to 6 points lower in sympathy wtih Liverpool under Southern selling. Offerings were not agressive but were more liberal than buying orders. Prices showed considerable resistance during the greater part of the day but in the final hour December broke through the recent resistance point.

Except for a more favorable view of weather conditions in the Eastern belt, there was no marked change in the news. Sentiment however, was influenced by nervousness over foreign political conditions, the easiness of the French franc and weakness of domestic securities.

Silver imports totaled $1,781,820 and $1,647,048 for the respective weeks.

Four Industries Exceed Output Of 1929 Boom

New York, Sept. 10.—Present indications are that aggregate industrial production this year will be nearly 15 per cent ahead of that for 1936, and will be nearly double the depression low year, 1932, according to the Standard Statistics Co. If present expectations are realized, industrial activity this year will be less than 10 per cent below the 1929 showing, which year, of course, marked the record high. This year's output of four capital goods industries, petroleum, electricity, auto trucks and steel will be well above the former 1929 highs.

While the recovery from the depression low has been substantial, the improvement has been by no means uniform. It is generally recognized that during a depression period the consumers' goods industries are considerably less affected that the capital goods trades. During the past depression, for example, the recession in production in the consumers' goods lines from 1929 through 1932 was only about 30 per cent, whereas the capital goods industries receded nearly 70 per cent.

The lighter lines likewise are the first to feel effects of recovery influences. These trades have been expanding operations steadily since the latter part of 1932, but a real upturn in capital goods did not get under way until three years later.

Stock Declines Are General; Trading Heaviest Near End

By Frederick Gardner,
Associated Press Financial Writer.

New York, Sept. 10.—Stock market leaders were swept overboard today in one of the steepest plunges in more than four years. General declines ranged from 1 to 6 points, with some as much as 13 to 20. New lows for about a year and a half were recorded by the principal sufferers. It was the broadest market in weeks, 950 issues changing hands.

In the heaviest selling wave near the final hour the ticker tape fell 5 minutes behind floor transactions. There was a lag of a minute near the close. A few recoveries appeared at the finish, but most shares ended near bottom levels of the day.

Brokerage opinion as to the cause of the fresh collapse was mixed. Some, however, were inclined to put the blame on the fall and winter business outlook.

While there was less war talk heard in the boardroom, the Mediterranean scene and the Far Eastern sector, it was realized, held potentialities for serious international trouble. At the same time observers doubted the foreign situation brought out the principal offerings.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks was down 3.4 points at 57.8, a new bottom since April 29, last year. The rail average broke through to a new low since 1935. Today's drop in the general average compared with Tuesday's slump of 3.5 points, which was the sharpest day's setback since July 21, 1933. Transfers totaled 2,322,220 shares, the largest since April 28 last. It compared with 1,411,550 shares yesterday.

The market was inclined to ignore several encouraging items. Last week's freight loadings were up more than seasonally and U. S. Steel's August shipments, although under July, were the best for any August since 1929. Steel scrap, however, continued to decline. Dun & Bradstreet also noted retail sales improvement over the same week a year ago.

Conspicuous share losers included U. S. Steel at 93, off 6 points; Bethlehem 80¼, off 6¾; Chrysler 94⅞, off ⅝; General Motors, 48⅝, off 2¾; Westinghouse 127⅜, off 10⅝; Allied Chemical 203, off 12; Hercules Powder 135, off 20; Coca Cola 138, off 7; Norfolk & Western 212, off 9; Texas Corporation 51, off 3¼; Standard Oil of New Jersey 58⅞, off 2⅝; J I. Case 137, off 13; Deere 108, off 10; Consolidated Edison 31⅜, off 1⅜; Montgomery Ward 51¼, off 3⅝; Santa Fe 59, off 5¼; U. S. Gypsum 85, off 7; Anaconda 48¾, off 3, American Smelting 79, off 4½, and U. S. Rubber 40½, off 5⅝.

International Telephone pushed against the trend for a while on a favorable earnings statement. It slipped later and finally was off ½ at 8⅛.

Railroads Decline.

Railroad obligations and convertible issues were swept from 1 to 5 points lower in a generally crumbling and active bond market today. Federal loans were resistant and ended a trifle higher.

After Thursday's short-lived rally, carrier issues again came under fire and the Associated Press averages for 20 rails dropped .5 of a point to 87.1, the lowest since January 2, 1936.

Industrial liens took a severe buffeting, with the averages showing a decline of .4 of a point to 102, the lowest since May, 1936. Utility obligations came off with the lightest punishment. The averages for 10 such issues stood at 96.8, down .1 of a point for the day.

Federal loans rode out the session on a fairly even keel, with the majority of the list drifting a little higher on light turnover. Gains ranged up to 7-32 of a point, while losses, which were in the minority, were held to around 6-32 of a point.

Attention of bond circles focused on Washington reports that approximately 94 per cent of the 3¼ per cent notes maturing September 15 have been converted into the new issues which the Treasury offered in exchange.

Foreign dollar bonds bent backward with the exception of some Italian loans. Rome 6½s were up 2 to 72, and Milan 6½s gained ⅝ to 71½. Japanese and South American issues were generally lower.

Among heavy losers in the corporate section were Alleghany 5s of 1949, at 75, off 5; Great Northern 4s, at 111, off 5½; Studebaker 6s, at 90, off 8½; Rock Island 4s, at 25¼, off 3¼; Remington Rand 4¼s, at 103¾, off 1¾, and B. & O. 4½s, at 56½, off 3½.

Turnover for all bonds totaled $9,636,400 face value against $7,774,500 yesterday. Today's transactions were only slightly below Wednesday's volume, which was the heaviest since May 13.

Nazi Treasury Fills Oversubscribed Loan

Berlin, Sept. 10 (AP).—The treasury decided today to accept a 150,000,000 marks oversubscription to its new 700,000,000-mark ($280,500,000) bond issue, making the total issue 850,000,000 marks (about $340,000,000). The issue was announced August 17 for 15-year 4½ per cent treasury bonds, offered at 98.75. Last May a loan of 800,000,000 marks was floated. These loans are for funding operations.

It was also announced that unemployment in Germany had fallen to 509,000, or 2½ per cent of all workers, compared with 6,014,000 unemployed at the end of January, 1933.

Sport a Guide, Branch Rickey Tells Bankers

Special Dispatch to The Post.

St. Louis, Mo., Sept. 10.—Banking, business and government "can well occasionally look a bit to fields of sport for examples pointing the way to friendly and satisfactory solution and settlement of trouble," Branch Rickey, vice president and general manager of the St. Louis Cardinals baseball team, declared here tonight in a radio address to the annual joint commencement exercises of American Institute of Banking chapters throughout the country.

Dr. Harold Stonier, national educational director of the institute, which is a section of the American Bankers Association, introduced Mr. Rickey. He said that the institute founded 37 years ago, is the largest adult educational undertaking in the country, with an enrollment of over 40,000 students in 293 chapter and study groups, the year's graduating class aggregating 2,867 bank men and women.

"In the hope of stimulating some graduate of the institute to have a tremendous urge to do the best he can, to make his ability meet his capacity, I will give you the three things that I think help most to qualify a man to win a championship in my game," Mr. Rickey said.

Three Winning Points.

"First, the thing he is doing must be worth while. There must be a reason for doing it. It must be something that ought to be done. Religion has to qualify on that basis. I think it does. So does sport, even professional sport.

"Banking must be worth while, too. There should be a very real appreciation of the almost unlimited influence of finance not only within a country but between countries. The opportunity for wide public service is the greatest of all. A job must challenge a man with its worthiness. You to whom I am speaking tonight stand upon the threshhold of a career that challenges every ability you have to make yourself counted.

"Second, having concluded that the thing to be undertaken is good, one must undertake it with a great desire to do the job. A desire to win that completely consumes a player is the greatest qualification of a champion. Assuming that the objective is worthy, then the realization of it is everything."

The third requirement in any line of endeavor is correct technique, Mr. Rickey continued. "It is pathetic to see a man of fine strength and ability consumed by desire to succeed, and yet fail because he cannot co-ordinate his forces," he said. "He cannot arrange his assets. He cannot become a master of technique."

Curb Recedes Under Selling

New York, Sept. 10 (AP).—Curb stocks bowed before a rush of selling today and losses of fractions to around 8 points were the rule. Prices broke after Thursday's brief rally.

Specialties and oils suffered the worst setbacks. American Cyanamid "B" dropped 3⅛ to 28¼ and Aluminum Co. gave up 8½ to 123. Pttsburgh Plate Glass was off 4¼ to 114¼ and Montgomery Ward "A" closed at 139, off 3½.

Declining 1 to 2 points were Lake Shore Mines at 47½, McWililams Dredging at 19½, Niagara Hudson Power at 47, Gulf Oil at 51, American Light & Traction at 15⅞ and Electric Bond & Share at 13⅞.

Rallying a little were Pan American Airways at 52¼, up 1⅛; Northern States Power "A" at 18½, up ¾, and Berkey & Gay, up a minor fraction to 1½.

Volume totaled 514,000 shares, the same as Tuesday's transactions, and the highest since April 28, compared with yesterday's transfers of 318,000 shares.

Freight Traffic Climbs Above 800,000 Cars

Volume for September 4 Week Is 5.2% Over Year Ago.

Loading of revenue freight for the week ended September 4 totaled 804,633 cars, the Association of American Railroads announced yesterday. This was an increase of 39,502 cars, or 5.2 per cent above the corresponding week in 1935. Figures for 1935 were reduced due to Labor Day. Loading of revenue freight for the week of September 4 was an increase of 17,260 cars, or 2.2 per cent above the preceding week.

Grain and grain products loading totaled 38,191 cars, a decrease of 3,065 cars below the preceding week, but an increase of 5,439 cars above the corresponding week in 1936, and 1,452 cars above the same week in 1935. In the Western districts alone, grain and grain products loading for the week ended September 4 totaled 26,855 cars, a decrease of 3,216 cars below the preceding week, but an increase of 5,958 cars above the corresponding week in 1936.

Increase in Livestock.

Livestock loading amounted to 14,582 cars, an increase of 585 cars above the preceding week, but a decrease of 2,370 cars below the same week in 1936, and 513 cars below the same week in 1935. In the Western districts alone, loading of livestock for the week ended September 4 totaled 11,521 cars, an increase of 683 cars above the preceding week, but a decrease of 2,030 cars below the corresponding week in 1936.

All districts reported increases in the number of cars loaded with revenue freight, compared with the corresponding weeks in 1936 and 1935.

Fundamental Investors Declares 25c Dividend

Fundamental Investors, Inc., a mutual investment company, has declared a dividend of 25 cents per share, payable October 1 to stockholders of record September 16. This compares with a dividend of 25 cents per share in the first and second quarters of 1937 and with the special year-end distribution of $1.75 per share in the last quarter of 1936.

Undistributed earned surplus available for dividends and other corporate purposes for the first eight months and eight days of this year were $321,539.37; shares outstanding on September 8 had increased to 502,474 from 366,209 at December 31 last year.

Foreign Markets.

By the Associated Press.

London, Sept. 10.—The stock market closed irregular today, with transatlantics somewhat easier. The gilt-edge group was steady, while German bonds were fractionally lower. There was considerable week-end profit-taking and a lessening of public support of quotations in most lines.

Paris—Government bonds developed firmness on the bourse today, after heaviness in early trading. Generally, however, the closing tone was heavy. The banking group was irregular, with the Bank of France closing 130 points higher. Suez canal gained 270 points and Royal Dutch Shell 245 points.

Liverpool—Wheat futures closed quiet at ⅛d to ⅝d lower. Liquidation on a large Australian private crop estimate and reports of heavy Russian charterings in the sliding market. Cotton traders were nervous over the French financial situation. Selling was induced by prospects for clearing weather in the American cotton belt. Prices closed steady, 1 higher to 1 lower. Hedging was absorbed by Bombay straddle buying and investment purchases in new-crop positions. At Manchester a goodly inquiry for cotton goods has developed, but most bids are not workable.

INSPECTOR WADE — Registered U. S. Patent Office — By Edgar Wallace

"STELLA DALLAS"

CHAPTER 6

Stella Dallas, determined that her daughter shall live with her father, succeeds in tracing Ed Munn, who has long since passed out of her life, in a cheap boarding house. He is down-at-heel and drink-sodden; she gives him money, makes him understand that he is to sober up and come to her apartment.

When she returns home, Laurel is already there. Stella assumes a hard-boiled attitude, feigning surprise at Laurel's return and announcing breezily that she is waiting for Munn. Laurel, saddened and shocked, begs for an explanation.

Though Stella is on the verge of breaking down, she continues her act. She plays cheap music, sings raucously, smokes a cigarette and tells Laurel that she no longer wants the bother of bringing her up. Unbelieving at first, Laurel is finally convinced that her mother wants to be rid of her so that she can marry Munn. Wounded and frightened, she runs from her mother, never realizing the true depths of Stella's love.

Laurel returns to her father and his new wife. Her emotions are further dulled when she receives a letter from Stella telling her that she has married Munn and is leaving for South America. Not until Helen explains the extent of Stella's sacrifice does it dawn on Stephen what his first wife has done.

On her wedding day there is only one cloud to dim Laurel's happiness . . . she has heard nothing from her mother. Helen assures her that her mother is far away and does not know. But outside in the drizzling rain there is a drab figure watching Laurel become a bride, and thrilling with happiness for her. It is Stella Dallas.

NAPOLEON AND UNCLE ELBY Even science fails to tame Napoleon—Sunday By Clifford McBride

Bob Burns Says—

It looks like no matter how hard you try to perfect anything, there's always a catch in it.

I had an uncle who was always complainin' about his potato crop. Year after year he would find that his potatoes would be nice and big in some parts of the field and runty in others. Finally one day a government potato expert came through that part of the country and he showed my uncle just what to do to his field to make the potatoes all come out even.

That fall, the expert came back through that part of the country and he called on my uncle and says, "Well, how did your potatoes come out? Didn't they all turn out good?" and my uncle says, "Yes, that's just the trouble—they was all good—I ain't got no bad ones for the pigs!"

3 Clergymen To Celebrate Golden Jubilee

St. Aloysius' Pastor and Assistants Will Offer Thanksgiving.

The Rev. Laurence J. Kelly, pastor of St. Aloysius' Parish, and two of his assistants—the Rev. Thomas A. Becker and the Rev. Joseph J. McLoughlin—tomorrow will celebrate the golden jubilee of their entrance into the Society of Jesus by offering a solemn high mass of thanksgiving at 10 a. m. in St. Aloysius' Church.

His Excellency, Most Rev. Ameleto Giovanni Cicognani, Archbishop of Laodicea and Apostolic Delegate to the United States, will preside and impart the papal blessing.

The Rev. Sanctus Catalano and the Rev. George O. McAller will be masters of ceremonies. The sermon will be by the Rev. Daniel J. Quinn, of St. Ignatius' Church of New York, a fellow novice of the jubilarians.

Special Choir.

Music of the mass will be rendered by a special choir composed of Mrs. Agnes Whelan McLaughlin, Miss Carolyn Manning, Benedict Konopa and Gerald L. Whelan, with Miss Katherin McKenna directing.

A reception will be given for the three church leaders at 8:15 p. m. tomorrow in Gonzaga Theater by the parishioners and friends of the jubilarians.

That a pastor and two of his assistants should be celebrating their jubilee together in the same parish church is an event rarely paralleled in the history of the church in this country.

Father Kelly, who is president of Ganzaga College and former provincial superior of the Maryland-New York province of the Society of Jesus, and Father Becker entered the novitiate of the society on August 13, 1887, at Frederick, Md. Father McLoughlin entered the next day. All three were ordained to the priesthood by the late Cardinal Gibbons in the Chapel of the Sacred Heart, at Woodstock College, June 28, 1903.

Long Service.

Father Kelly is a native of Philadelphia, but served his longest term of service in the southern Maryland missions, first at Sacred Heart and Holy Angels, on the Wicomico, and later at St. Aloysius' Church at Leonardtown. He has filled his present position since 1932.

Father Becker is a native of Washington. As a scholastic, he taught at Holy Cross College. He made his tertianship at Poughkeepsie, N. Y., where he remained as prefect of studies in 1905 and 1906. Twice he returned to Poughkeepsie in the same capacity, 1922-1924 and 1925-1928. He taught humanities at Fordham in 1906, and was recently transferred to St. Aloysius from Woodstock.

Father McLoughlin was born in New York City. As a priest he was stationed first at St. Ignatius Church in Baltimore in 1903. He went to Poughkeepsie for his tertianship and was returned to Baltimore, where he remained until 1913. He served five years in the British West Indies. He came to Washington in 1929 from Gesu Church, in Philadelphia.

Joseph Scroggins' Funeral Set Today

Funeral services will be held at 2 p. m. today at the Chambers Southeast funeral home, 517 Eleventh street southeast, for Joseph Scroggins, 86, retired watchman of the Interior Department, who died Sunday in Oklahoma City. Burial will be in Cedar Hill Cemetery.

A native of Washington, Mr. Scroggins had lived here until four years ago when he went to Oklahoma City to make his home with his daughter, Mrs. Julia S. Holman. He was a member of Grace Baptist Church here for 50 years and was a former member of the Society of Natives of the District of Columbia.

Surviving, in addition to his daughter, are two grandchildren, several nieces and nephews.

Mass to Be Said Today For Lieut. Claud Hughes

Requiem mass will be said in Fort Myer Chapel at 10 a. m. today for Lieut. (J. G.) Claud W. Hughes, U. S. Navy, who died Thursday at Pensacola, Fla. Father Charles J. Hacherl, Chaplain Corps, U. S. Navy, will officiate.

Interment with full military honors will follow in Arlington National Cemetery.

Cab Driver Traps D. C. Holdup Suspect

Boasting Traps 'Tavern' Bandit In 8 Raids Here

Confesses in Baltimore After Cab Driver Causes Arrest.

Arrested yesterday as he fled his last two holdups, the "Little Tavern" bandit who made a specialty of robbing the Little Tavern on New York avenue, was to be returned from Baltimore this morning by Detective Sergt. E. E. Thompson.

The bandit, who held up Little Taverns September 2, September 4 and yesterday, collecting $18, $28 and $10, respectively, was caught because he bragged to a taxi driver about his prowess with a gun. He had just completed two holdups yesterday.

The man who told Baltimore police he was James Wilson and also gave the name of James Davis, aged 22, was carrying a bag containing $120, Baltimore officers said, when he was arrested after the cab driver shouted "Help! Holdup" to a patrolman on downtown Baltimore streets.

Driver Calls Police.

There was no holdup at the time. The cab driver was merely summoning a policeman after a halt in a gasoline station in which Wilson was quoted as saying:

"I'm certainly glad to get away from that place. Did you see those three police cars pull in just as we left?"

The cab driver, James Wilkinson, asked his fare why he disliked policemen, and got this answer:

"I'm the guy that pulled all those holdups in Washington. You're getting a break. I usually put a gun in the driver's ribs and make him go along on a job with me."

Wilkinson said the bandit hired him on the streets of Washington and ordered him to drive to Baltimore. Riding in the front seat with Wilkinson was Mrs. Edith Broadus, of the 1400 block Massachusetts avenue, the same block in which the cabman lives.

Admits Eight Holdups.

Police Capt. Charles A. Kahler, of Baltimore, said the suspect confessed to a series of robberies here, starting August 30, including one double robbery of a tavern in two days.

August 30—Lunchroom at Seventh and F streets northwest, $5.

September 2—Little Tavern, 1300 block New York avenue, $18.

September 4—Same tavern, $25.

September 7—Bus driver, Cheverly, Md., $10.

September 8—Ice cream store, First and I streets, $10; $100 overlooked.

September 10—Little Tavern, 1300 block G street, $10.

Convention Notes

Some advance jottings on the American Federation of Government Employes sixth annual convention that opens Monday in Philadelphia: The vanguard of delegates, as far as Washington is concerned, leaves from the Union Station at 1:30 p. m. tomorrow . . . Arriving in the convention city, they will find much of the groundwork already laid, this having been done by the executive council, which went to work on Thursday.

To the list of heavy speakers now goes the name of Charlton Ogburn, general counsel of the A. F. of L. . . . The list includes A. F. of L.'s President Green; Chairman Robert Ramspeck, of the House Civil Service Committee; Mrs. Lucille Foster McMillin, of the Civil Service Commission, and maybe President Harry B. Mitchell, of the commission . . . A voluminous report from President Stengle is in the drawer awaiting release.

The heavy business, of course, centers in discussion of the legislative program for the coming year, and probably someone will start the ball to rolling toward a big membership drive . . . The N. F. F. E. did so in Springfield and the U. F. W. A. is chronically in a recruiting mood . . . Entertainment of the delegates has been long prepared for, particularly by John F. Daniels, chairman of the Philadelphia convention committee; the national office says he has done a good job.

In the entertainment features are sightseeing, a breakfast for the visiting ladies, a banquet, etc. . . . The visitors also may witness some noteworthy events that will occur in Philadelphia during the A. F. G. E.'s sojourn . . . Some of these are in connection with the observance of Constitution Week . . . There will be a street parade Monday evening and the Mummers' parade on Wednesday, beginning at 7:30 p. m.

Speaking ahead of time, the national office points out: "There are many problems ahead, chief of which, perhaps, is the problem of Government reorganization" . . . Hot subjects otherwise will be the involved matter of retirements, the five-day week . . . But it is a long and tedious list.

New Relaxation

Interior's workers, who tussle with Indian affairs, keep the count on the building of big dams and otherwise heave around the work of a vast Government department, are planning to turn to the giddy relaxation of badminton. A first-rate badmintonist has been found among them—Nelson A. Loomis, of the National Park Service. He has been engaged by the I. D. R. A. to organize a badminton league in Interior.

He has arranged to give instruction to all beginners. This column has heard little (in fact nothing) of badminton in these parts, so it may be proper to discuss what badminton is all about before discussing its possibilities for success in Interior.

Badminton, a game originated in India, is very popular there. English army officers carried it to England where it was first played about 1875. It is similar to tennis, except that a singles match may be made considerably faster. Doubles and mixed doubles are very popular with women. The latter can hold their own with the men in such play.

It is played on a court, generally indoors, with racquets and a shuttlecock (or "bird"). The "bird" is a cork in which 16 feathers are imbedded at the quills. The quills are about 3 inches long. The top of the net is 5 feet from the ground. Scoring is similar to tennis. The column hopes the players have more success with the game than it had with explaining it.

Gratified

In a recent public utterance, Chairman Ramspeck, of the House Civil Service Committee, condemned the policy of having the Senate confirm appointments to supervisory positions. Jacob Baker, president, U. F. W. A., is glad to hear it and comments:

"We are very happy to note Representative Ramspeck's position upon this subject, as the United Federal Workers of America was the first organization to protest vigorously to the Senate and House, the provisions of the housing bill, farm tenancy bill and proposed wages and hours (labor standards) bill, relating to these matters.

"We believe that such action seriously weakens the structure of good administrative method; violates the merit system and contravenes the letter and spirit of the campaign pledges of both major political parties to uphold and expand a merit system civil service." The organization, Baker stated, would continue to fight such a policy, joining its strength with the muscle of its parent, the C. I. O.

A meeting of the Farm Credit Club Chorus will be held at 4:30 o'clock Tuesday afternoon in room 358 to elect officers and plan for the winter season. Those who enjoyed the programs last season will be glad to hear that Robert Frederick Freund will again lead the group. It is no closed organization: Everyone interested in singing is welcomed to membersip.

Rites Set Today For Mrs. Barber

Funeral services will be held at 2 p. m. today at the S. H. Hines funeral home for Mrs. Virginia F. Barber, 70, of 1435 Spring road northwest, who died Thursday.

Mrs. Barber, widow of Philip H. Barber, had resided in Washington for 50 years. She was an active member of the National Memorial Baptist Church and also was actively identified with the work of the Women's Guild of the Central Union Mission.

Surviving are three daughters, Miss Gertrude T. Barber, Mrs. J. Lester Brooks and Mrs. Lee A. Montgomery, and a grandson, J. Lester Brooks jr., all of this city. Interment will be in Fort Lincoln Cemetery.

New TVA Dam Is Dedicated to 'Joe' Wheeler

President Pushes Button Opening Fete; Address Given by Bankhead.

By the Associated Press.

Wheeler Dam, Ala., Sept. 10.—The $37,000,000 Wheeler Dam, third huge power, navigation and flood control project of the Tennessee Valley Authority, was dedicated today "for the use and benefit of the generations yet to come."

President Roosevelt pressed a key in his home at Hyde Park, N. Y., to sound a siren here which signaled raising of the American flag over the mile-long span across the Tennessee River.

The dedicatory address was given by Speaker William B. Bankhead.

The dam, located between Decatur and Muscle Shoals, Ala., with generators now installed will contribute 90,000 horsepower to the "yardstick" power program of the Government's economic experiment under the TVA.

Other Dams Operating.

The authority already is operating war-time Wilson Dam, and Norris Dam, near Knoxville. The dam here, completed early this year, was named for Gen. Joseph Wheeler, cavalry leader of the Confederacy.

President Roosevelt wired the TVA:

"The entire nation has a vital interest in the dedication today of this important link in one of the nation's great hydro-highways. Wheeler dam, second TVA navigation and flood control project to be completed and placed in service since the inception of this project in 1933, meets the popular desire expressed through Congressional mandate for planned conservation and utilization of the natural resources of a complete watershed."

Wheeler's Kin Attends.

In his address, Bankhead said the President "from the very beginning of his Administration has shown a consistent disposition by Federal authority and Federal funds to promote the legitimate advancement of Southern resources upon terms of full parity with every section of the United States."

"I state without fear of the prophecy being repudiated in the future," he continued, "that this area will be within the next few decades the greatest bee-hive of industrial and social development anywhere in the nation."

Gov. Bibb Graves, of Alabama, and his wife, United States Senator Dixie Graves; directors of the TVA, jurists, mayors and two children of Gen. Wheeler, Miss Annie Early Wheeler and Col. Joseph Wheeler, attended the dedication.

Reds Shoot 3 Ukraine Aides As 'Wreckers'

By the Associated Press.

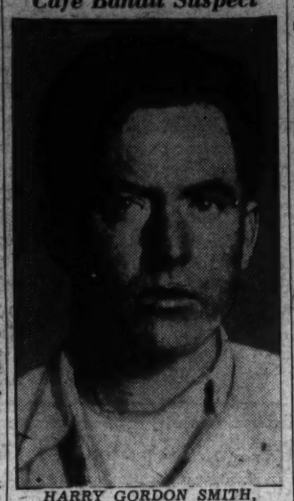
Moscow, Sept. 10.—Firing squads and courts squared state accounts with convicted "wreckers" in the Ukraine today.

Three were shot in the Zolochev region following conviction on charges of anti-Soviet activities against the collective farm program. They were the chief of a tractor station, the chairman of a collective farm and the chief of the regional agricultural department.

Five others were sentenced to five to seven-year prison terms.

The executions followed eight other shootings of regional officers Tuesday in the Ukraine and Azov districts on conviction on charges of spreading hoof and mouth disease. Pravda, official Communist organ, charged that priests and kulaks in the cotton belt of Takzhikistan continued Mohammedan practices, that school funds were misused and peasant students were unable to write their names after two years' schooling.

Cafe Bandit Suspect



HARRY GORDON SMITH, Tampa (Fla.) police character, was en route with detectives to Washington last night, suspected of being a banditry accomplice of Alfred H. Brauer, George Washington University student, who has confessed to engineering the $1,200 holdup August 31 of the S. and W. Cafeteria. Smith was arrested at the home of his parents in Tampa.

Harry Sheid Rites To Be Held Monday

Funeral services for Harry Sheid, 75, who died Thursday at a rest home in Hyattsville, Md., will be held at 10:30 a. m. Monday in Chambers funeral home, 1400 Chapin street northwest. Burial will be in Glenwood Cemetery.

A native of Washington, Sheid retired two years ago after many years' service as guard at the State, War and Navy Building. He had previously been employed by the Lansburgh Furniture Co.

Surviving are two nieces, Ruby and Pearl Sadtler, both of Washington.

Mrs. Katherine T. Sorel Will Be Buried Today

Funeral services will be held at 2 p. m. today at the Hines funeral home for Mrs. Katherine T. Sorel, 36, wife of Leo H. Sorel, superintendent of the Acme Moving & Storage Co., who died Thursday at her home, 924 Ingraham street, after a short illness.

Surviving in addition to her husband, are two daughters, Leona and June Sorel; three sisters, Miss Carrie Toepfer, Mrs. Pauline Aufrecht and Mrs. Minnie Smith, and a brother, Carl Toepfer, all of this city, and her father, Charles Toepfer, Fredericksburgh, Va. Burial will be in Cedar Hill Cemetery.

Contract Bridge

By Mrs. Ely Culbertson

Promoting Low Trumps.

South's overcall of three spades in the hand below was designed to show a hand containing at least seven winners and a trump suit which would win at least six tricks and which could not possibly lose more than one trick. After North's show of heart strength in his response of three no-trump, East wisely refrained from further bidding, and South obtained the contract at four spades. Despite the apparent solidity of his spade suit, however, South was to find out that two trump tricks could be won against him.

West opened his singleton heart, East winning with the Ace. East had no difficulty in realizing that West's purpose was to obtain heart ruffs, and returned the suit, even though South also was void.

Since there were only three trumps out against him, South had no hesitation in trumping with the ten. He could afford to lose to the King of spades, since then he would have to give up only the Ace of clubs. But despite the fact that he had made his opening lead in hopes of ruffing hearts, West, at this point, declined to overruff, discarding a club instead. The wisdom of this course speedily became apparent.

At trick 3 South laid down the Ace of spades and continued with the Queen, knocking out West's King of spades. West now led a club to East's Ace. A third heart lead assured West the setting trick with his nine of spades. Unless South ruffed with the Jack. West could make his nine of spades at once; and if South did ruff with his Jack, West's nine of spades would become the high trump.
